Train wreck near B'burg

Blame axle failure for rail pile-up

BLOOMINGBURG — Railroad officials have blamed a defective axle-coupling bar on the derailment Tuesday of 18 cars from a Baltimore and Ohio Railroad freight train on Dickey Road, just south of Bloomingburg, according to Fayette County Sheriff Don Thompson.

Clearing operations by a B&O Railroad wreck train were launched early Wednesday and a railroad spokesman said it will be possibly two or three days before the wreckage is completely cleared and railroad service can be restored.

The derailed freight cars, which were loaded with coke and coal, blocked Dickey Road and caused problems early Wednesday for school bus drivers in the Miami Trace School District. The road was impassable and students living on Dickey Road were forced to walk to the Whiteoak Road to be transported to school.

Sgt. William R. Crooks, of the Fayette County Sheriff's Department, said there were no injuries in the 18-car derailment. He said the freight train was bound for Cincinnati when the mishap occurred at 6:11 p.m. Tuesday. The derailment occurred at a speed of 40 miles per hour.

CROOKS SAID when a defective axle-coupling bar on the eighth car of the 32-car freighter became unattached, the eighth car and 17 others located behind it left the tracks and toppled over Dickey Road.

Crooks explained that when he and other officers from the Fayette County Sheriff's Department arrived on the scene of the derailment they immediately checked for any injuries sustained by the five-man train crew. The deputies also checked for spillage of any harmful materials and the possibility of an explosion.

He said coke and coal being carried in some of the cars had spilled.

In addition to the freight cars and trackage that was damaged, Crooks said telegraph poles and a fence owned by Dr. Heinz Grain Elevator Co., of Bloomingburg, were damaged.

The Bloomingburg Fire Department was immediately summoned to the scene of the derailment by Crooks in case of a fire.

The five-man crew consisted of L.R. Guard, engineer; F.T. Wheeler, conductor; D.R. Whaley, flagman; D.R. Smith, brakeman, and W.H. Black, fireman. All members of the crew except Black were from Newark. Black resides in Columbus.

Tanker blast kills one; 26 persons hurt

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Searchers plumbed the Delaware River today for eight persons missing from a Greek oil tanker that exploded and burned Tuesday night.

One man was killed and 26 persons were injured or suffered exposure after the tanker Elias erupted in a ball of flame while moored in the river.

Missing were five crewmen, plus a mother and her two children who were visitors on the ship, the Coast Guard said.

Chunks of steel were hurled into the air and burning oil spread on the surface of the river. The Coast Guard said the explosion occurred at the ship's middle tanks.

Crews began surveying for pollution from the spilled oil early today. It was not known how much oil escaped as a result of the explosion.

Flames roared through the 650-foot vessel for more than two hours at the Atlantic Richfield Co. pier near a sprawling complex of oil refineries in South Philadelphia before firemen brought the blaze under control.

"I couldn't see anything but flames," said Frank Kelly, a dock guard who witnessed the blast.

Rescuers and police told of crewmen from the burning tanker leaping from the ship into the frigid water.

Officials said the Elias was almost empty and was due to sail this morning. She had delivered 250,000 barrels of Venezuelan asphalt oil on Monday and was to finish pumping off by midnight Tuesday.

The blast left a gaping, 200-foot hole in the steel and concrete dock and damaged nearby cars and buildings.

"Everything happened very quick," said Joannis Soteris, a 26-year-old Greek crewman who was in the engine room at the time of the blast. "I grabbed a rope and got out like a monkey."

Authorities refused to speculate what caused the explosion, and they were unsure of the total complement of crew.

At least 10 of the 26 injured were listed in serious condition at three area hospitals.

One of the injured was William Gary, a janitor who was in a nearby building when the blast occurred.

All of the other injured were on board, including Merope Baltas, 23, the wife of one of the Elias' crewmen.

The explosion was heard from 25 miles away. One man called a local news bureau asking if there had been an earthquake.

Starvation predicted in Asia, Africa

WASHINGTON (AP) — Widespread, persistent starvation may hit South Asia and Africa within 10 years unless those areas cut their population growth and get massive aid, say the authors of a new computer study.

The grim warning came from Mihail Mesarovic, director of the Systems Research Center of Case Western Reserve University, and Eduard Pestel, professor of engineering at the Technical University of Hannover, Germany.

Their findings parallel a report by the Overseas Development Council, which warned that Asia could face famine next year. But the new report goes far beyond the council study, which recommended foreign aid in the form of food, fertilizer and agricultural help.

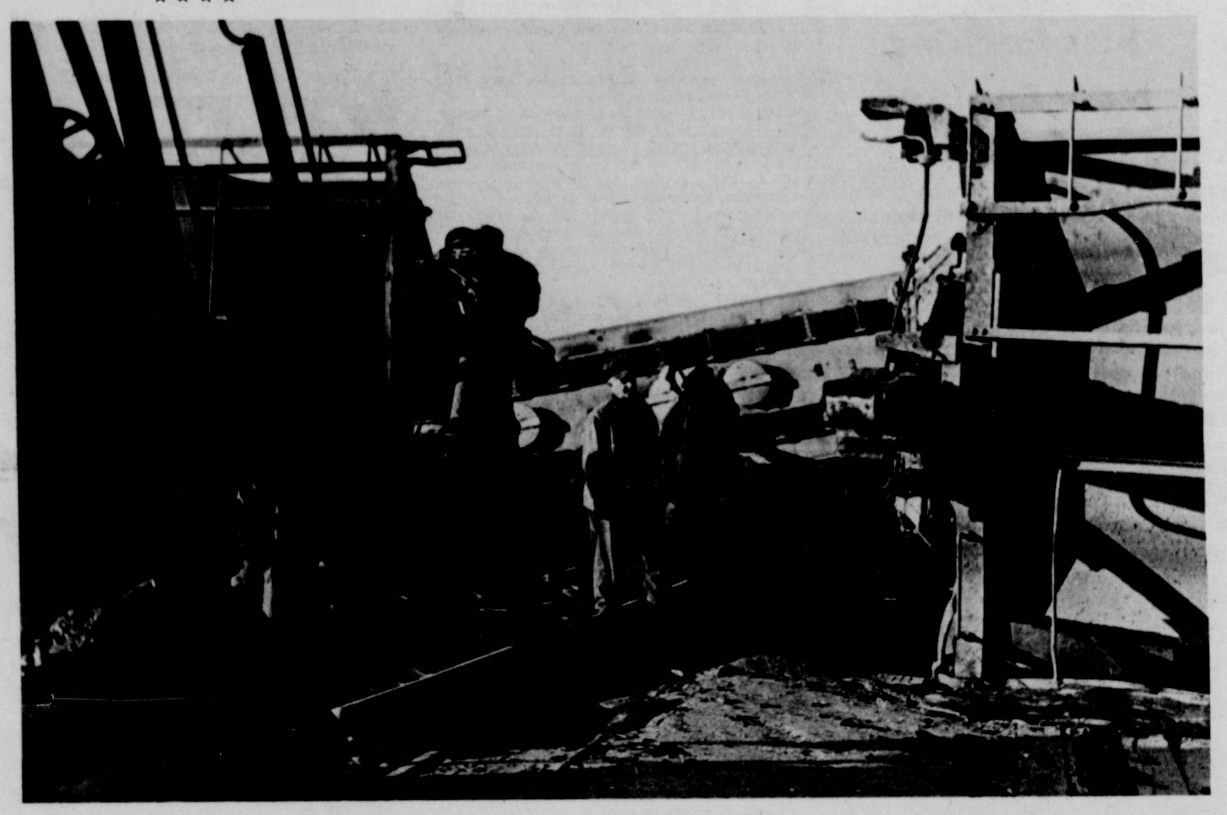

In an interview Tuesday, Mesarovic and Pestel said food shipments and agricultural aid alone cannot stave off starvation in South Asia and Africa.

Pestel estimated the industrialized nations would have to provide some $700 billion of investment aid over the next 50 years to prevent starvation, plus perhaps an equal amount to prevent massive unemployment in the underdeveloped world.

Mesarovic and Pestel conducted their computerized studies, comparing the worldwide effects of various economic and population policies, for the Club of Rome, a private international study group.

Some of Mesarovic and Pestel's preliminary findings:

—In South Asia even moderately successful population control would not keep population from outracing food supply. Without help, starvation levels would be reached by around 1985 with no end in sight.

EQUIPMENT BLAMED — Crew members from a 32-car B&O Railroad Co., freight train stand on the tracks between derailed cars. Officials blamed a defective axle-coupling bar for the derailment Tuesday. There were no injuries. The derailed cars carried coke and coal.

Answer 'maybe' to tape demands

WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of the House Judiciary Committee met in a mood of anger and resentment today to consider a White House proposal to wait two more weeks before replying to the committee's request for tapes of presidential conversations.

At separate party caucuses, both Republicans and Democrats called the White House letter postponing any response until April 22 unsatisfactory.

Individual members talked of issuing a subpoena for the material.

Chairman Peter Rodino, D-N. J., scheduled a full committee meeting Thursday for whatever action the committee wants to take.

The White House said Tuesday that "additional materials" would be given to the committee sometime after Congress returns from its Easter recess April 22, but it didn't say what the material would be.

James D. St. Clair, who is in charge of President Nixon's defense against impeachment, sent a letter to the committee. St. Clair said the White House still is reviewing the request for the taped talks between Nixon and his chief aides about the time the Watergate coverup was becoming known last year.

"We expect that the review can be completed by the end of the Easter recess and that the additional materials furnished at that time will permit the committee to complete its inquiry promptly," he said.

Chairman Peter W. Rodino, Jr., D-N.J., had no immediate comment on St. Clair's letter, which was not delivered until after the House had adjourned and most members had left. The committee had demanded the reply by Tuesday "at the latest" as to whether the tapes would be forthcoming.

Rodino said last week he thought the committee had waited long enough and that he would consider asking it to issue a subpoena for the tapes if there was not a satisfactory answer by Tuesday.

He is expected to convene the committee Thursday to consider St. Clair's letter. The promise that appears implicit in it to deliver some material after April 22 may be enough to head off demands for a subpoena at this time.

"We'll probably acquiesce," said Rep. Robert McClory, R-Ill., a senior committee Republican, who expressed disappointment at the White House response. "I don't think we're very anxious to face the alternatives."

Another member, Robert F. Drinan, D-Mass., said the panel has three options: "One is to go whole hog for a subpoena now, two is to give Rodino and (senior committee Republican Edward) Hutchinson standby power to subpoena, or three to cancel the recess for the committee and meet next Tuesday.

"I'm in favor of canceling the recess, forcing the issue," Drinan said.

Although the request remains unanswered, committee counsel John Doar told Democratic committee members Tuesday he is prepared to start presenting evidence gathered by the staff to the committee May 7. The committee has received 19 tapes and over 700 documents from the White House and also has been given secret grand jury evidence relating to Nixon's role in the Watergate cover-up.

Special Holy Week services scheduled

Services to celebrate Maundy Thursday and Good Friday will be held at Grace United Methodist Church.

The Good Friday service is planned for community-wide participation and will include presentations by the pastors of seven area churches. The public is invited to attend either or both of the special services.

There will be a Tenebrae, (Vigel of Darkness,) service on Maundy Thursday. This solemn observance of the Lord's Supper was first celebrated in the Fourth Century and centers around a graduated darkening of the church.

Eight candles symbolizing the qualities of the disciples are lighted. Then, as the disciples forsook Christ, the candles are extinguished one at a time while the minister and congregation meditate.

A ninth candle, symbolizing Christ, the light of the World, remains glowing throughout.

The service will begin at 7:30 p.m. Thursday and last for about an hour.

FRIDAY's community service will begin at noon and last until about 3 p.m. Area pastors, representing seven different churches, will take part in the Good Friday observance. Each minister will discuss one of the seven "Words of Christ," including "love," "forgiveness" and "pardon."

Also taking part in the service will be the Miami Trace Folksingers; Karen Shook, New Holland music teacher; students from Wayne and Wilson elementary schools and a double trio from the Cecilian Club.

The collection taken during this service will be used to continue and expand the chaplaincy program at Fayette Memorial Hospital. Babysitting will be provided for both the Thursday and Friday services.

Taking part in the Good Friday program will be pastors Eugene Griffith, Gerald Wheat, Robert Kline, Donald Baker, Harold Shank, Ralph Wolford and Allen Puffenberger.

Court rejects Rhodes appeal

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Supreme Court refused today to block a hearing by the state Real Estate Commission on the validity of a broker's license issued to former Gov. James A. Rhodes.

Rhodes complained in his petition to the high court the hearing before state panel is improper and in violation of his legal rights.

The commission notified Rhodes in a letter dated Mar. 12 that he should surrender the license within 30 days or face a hearing to determine whether it should be reversed, vacated or altered.

Rhodes obtained the license by taking an oral examination in the governor's office four days before his term expired in January of 1970.

Nixon visit gives lift to Xenia residents

By TERESA C. PITTS
Associated Press Writer

XENIA, Ohio (AP)—Small town hearts were stirred Tuesday when President Nixon toured this community nearly a week after a tornado spewed death and destruction through its center.

"It's truly lifted a lot of people's spirits around here," said Joan Anderson, a clerk in the Greene County Commissioner's office.

"For people from a small town, for the President to come and show his concern, it's done a lot for all our morale," she said.

"Xenia has suffered physically, but it has not suffered spiritually," Nixon told newsmen as he toured the rubble-strewn area. "I think the more it has suffered physically, the stronger it is spiritually. That speaks a lot for the people of this town."

Nixon spoke privately with county commissioners and city officials, pledging federal help and promising help to cut red tape for disaster victims.

He praised rebuilding efforts already underway. As he spoke, about 600 Ohio National Guardsmen continued clearing the debris spread out over nearly 80 per cent of the city.

"These people have lost their homes, their schools and their jobs," he said after one stop. "When we see these people smiling and saying, 'we're going to stick it out,' it's that kind of spirit that will help rebuild this town."

The President landed at Wright Patterson Air Force Base 10 miles away shortly before noon and flew by helicopter to Xenia.

"In terms of destruction—total devastation—this is the worst I've ever seen," he said on his arrival. The twister claimed 32 lives here, destroyed hundreds of homes and left thousands homeless.

He instructed his aides to "cut the red tape to the bare bone" to aid disaster victims.

The visit included stops at the city's Red Cross headquarters and the Greene County Building. He spent a few minutes at each location, chatting, shaking hands and answering reporters' questions.

Nixon's decision to visit Xenia was announced only a few hours before his arrival, and crowds were small, but friendly.

Some residents complained that the surprise visit and the barrage of newsmen surrounding the President made it impossible to get to him.

"I'm so disappointed. He was here and I missed him!" wailed Mrs. Pat Stuart after the President's motorcade pulled away from his final stop. "I dragged all four of my kids down here

Iraq claims U.S. arming rebel Kurds

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Iraq has accused the United States and Iran of supplying arms to the rebel Kurds.

"We are aware of massive military assistance rebel Kurdish leaders in the mountains of the north are getting from the Unted States via Iran," Vice President Saddam Hussein told a news conference Tuesday. "This is not a surprise for us."

He also charged Iran with a troop buildup along Iraq's eastern border to "encourage Kurdish insurgents in our north.

"But we are prepared to fight hard on all fronts...and shall carry the fighting into the territory of any country that fights us," Hussein declared.

Soviet-backed Iraq and American-armed Iran have fought a series of border clashes in the past three months.

Hussein, generally considered the strongman of Iraq's ruling Baath Socialist party, spoke to Lebanese reporters in Baghdad.

He said the 95,000-man Iraqi army has refrained from moving against the estimated 20,000-man Pesh Merga, the army of the Kurdish leader, Mulla Mustafa Barzani.

Xenia gets gas

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Public Utilities Commission of Ohio said today tornado stricken Xenia will get an emergency gasoline allocation of 375,000 gallons.

The PUCO said, in addition, the Federal Energy Office has approved an emergency shipment of 1 million gallons of fuel oil to the Cincinnati Gas and Electric Co. to meet emergency demands.

The gas will be taken from the state's reserve, the PUCO said. Ohio's reserve for April is about 12 million gallons.

Just after last week's tornadoes, the PUCO ordered 86,000 gallons of gas shipped to Xenia.

A PUCO spokesman said the fuel is necessary to service emergency vehicles in the area devastated by tornadoes.

Ronald Haines, magic specialist, dies at 67

Services for Ronald Haines, 67, a native of Fayette County who gained fame as a magician, inventor and the world's leading production specialist in playing card tricks, will be held at 1:30 p.m. Thursday in the Tredway Funeral Home, Norwood.

Mr. Haines, died Monday in Bethesda Hospital, Cincinnati, after a long illness.

A practitioner of magic since early boyhood, he was head of Haines House of Cards in Norwood for 30 years. He was past international president of Society of American Magicians, the International Brotherhood of Magicians and numerous other professional organizations.

Though his personal repertoire included all forms of legardemain, most of his original tricks involved cards. His 'doctoring' of playing cards was confined strictly to entertainment uses and eschewed any form of gaming. Mr. Haines supplied tricks in hundreds of variations to professional and amateur magicians throughout the world, and he had been known to give hour-long performances with only an ordinary deck of cards.

Born May 13, 1906, in Fayette County, Mr. Haines' early schooling was in Greenfield. He later attended the University of Cincinnati. His first paid performance as a magician was at age 17 for the Rotary Club of Greenfield.

Mr. Haines was a Master of the Greenfield Masonic Lodge, No. 318. He was a Shriner, Knights Templar, a member of the Grotto and a member of the "Invisible Lodge."

He worked as maintenance engineer for the Norwood Public Schools during the 1930's and 40's. During his military service in 1943-45 he entertained at various military hospitals in Europe and Great Britain.

Mr. Haines married the former Ruth Fritzsch of Cincinnati in 1937. She died three years ago.

He is survived by two brothers, Samuel E. Haines of Chicago, and Herbert Haines, of Port Washington, Long Island, and three sisters, Mrs. Glenn Heistand, of Washington C.H., Ruth Haines and Mrs. G.F. Lampkin of Bradenton, Fla.

Friends may call at the Tredway Funeral Home, 2131 Cameron Ave., Norwood, on Wednesday from 4 p.m. to 9 p.m. Memorials may be made to charity of the donor's choice.

Apartment blaze hits Hamilton

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP) — Fire raced through at least 10 units of an apartment building here today before firefighters brought it under control.

Firemen said one woman was injured, apparently not seriously, when she jumped to safety.

They said other occupants of the building were roused by a tenant who spotted the blaze about 6 a.m. It was extinguished within three hours, firemen said.

They said all apartments in the building, 30 or 40 of them, were damaged by smoke and water.

An estimate on the damage was not available.

just to see him, and now he's gone," she said.

Xenia's tornado death toll rose to 32 Tuesday when two more victims died in hospitals. Sabina Ehret-DeJanarette, 13, died in Miami Valley Hospital and Mrs. Ivra Taylor, 33, died in the Wright-Patterson hospital.

The toll for the state climbed to 39, not counting the two guardsmen killed in a fire Saturday in a furniture store that had been ripped by the tornado.

As cleanup efforts continued, there were these other developments:

—Police in Xenia arrested two men, Mark Leroy Wilson, 23, and Gerry Robert Jack, 23, both of Xenia, on looting charges, the guard said.

The two were picked up in the city's Arrowhead section Friday evening, said the guard.

—Gilligan announced the availability of $100,000 to local law enforcement authorities to replace vehicles and equipment damaged in the tornadoes and to restore emergency communications systems.

—The Federal Disaster Assistance Administration said the U.S. Corps of Engineers has been assigned to contract with private firms in the area for clearing rubble left on public and private property.

The FDAA estimated the cost for the work, statewide, would be $3.5 million.

Residents of the six counties hit by tornadoes were declared eligible by the Ohio Bureau of Employment Services for Disaster Unemployment Assistance.

The OBES said applications for the special aid would be processed in Adams, Butler, Greene, Hamilton, Madison and Warren counties.

—The Ohio Department of Rehabilitation and Correction said employes and inmates of the Lebanon and London correctional institutions had been made available for cleanup work in their areas.

Spring eluded Ohio again this morning, as temperatures dipped into the 20s and 30s. Youngstown was the chilly spot in the state, with a pre-dawn reading of 18 degrees.

But improvement was on the way. High pressure was to give Ohio fair skies today and the sun was expected to warm afternoon temperatures to the low 40s near Lake Erie, the 50s in the central counties and the 60s along the Ohio River.

Cloudiness was to increase tonight, with readings falling only into the 30s and 40s. Skies were to be mostly cloudy across the state Thursday in advance of another storm front. Temperatures were to remain on the mild side.

Showers and thundershowers are forecast Friday and Saturday, ending Sunday. Highs Friday will range from the 60s to low 70s and lows in the 40s. Cooler weather will arrive by Sunday with highs forecast in the 50s and lows in the upper 30s and low 40s.

Heavy snow hits Rockies, New England

By The Associated Press

One April snowstorm swirled through the Rockies today, while another in New England began to subside after dumping up to 18 inches of snow on higher elevations.

Portions of the Salt Lake Valley were hit by 4 to 6 inches of snow during the early nighttime hours. Scattered rain and snow spread through the northern and central Rockies into the intermountain areas and Pacific Northwest.

Advisories for heavy snows and cold, wet weather were issued for portions of Montana, Wyoming, Nevada, Utah, Colorado, Arizona, and North Dakota.

Although heavy-snow warnings were canceled for most of the Northeast, the snowfall was expected to continue today in the hardest-hit areas of New Hampshire, Vermont and Maine.

The Lakes Region of central New Hampshire was buried by 13 inches of snow Tuesday. The Stratton Mountain ski area of southern Vermont received 18 inches less than 24 hours after the board of directors voted to install snowmaking machines.

Snow also continued during the night in northeastern Pennsylvania, and freezing temperatures crept into the southern Appalachians.

Elsewhere, winds gusting up to 60 m.p.h. mostly in desert areas of Arizona, Utah and California cut visibility with blowing sand and dust and created hazardous driving conditions.

Winds and high clouds also increased over the Plains and Texas.

Showers sprinkled the Ohio Valley during the night.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 19 at Limestone, Maine to 70 at El Paso, Tex., and Key West, Fla.

Legion urges paid tuition for veterans

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Legion proposed today that Congress pay up to $1,000 a year in tuition and fees for Vietnam-era veterans so they will have a wider choice of schools they can afford to attend.

Its views were presented by E. H. Golembrieski, director of national veterans affairs and rehabilitation commission of the legion, in testimony prepared for the Senate Veterans Committee.

The committee has before it a bill to increase monthly payments to the veterans by 25 per cent and to set up a loan program as a supplement.

The House has passed a 13 per cent increase, higher than the 8 per cent President Nixon proposed. The administration opposes any form of tuition-fee grant.

Neighbor rescues mother, children from suffocation

A Washington C.H. mother and her two young children narrowly escaped death from carbon monoxide poisoning at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday.

An unidentified neighbor had gone to the Boyd Kerns Jr. residence, 311 W. Circle Ave., and knocked on the door.

Hearing the two Kerns children, Kristina, five months old and Angela, 2, crying and receiving no answer, the neighbor entered to find Mrs. Rhonda Kerns, 20, in a semi-conscious state, lying on the floor.

Dayton Power and Light Co., workers were contacted and they quickly summoned the Washington C.H. Fire Department to run a carbon monoxide test. The test proved positive and they were able to trace the cause to a malfunctioning furnace.

Mrs. Kerns and her two children were taken to Fayette Memorial Hospital where they were treated and released for carbon monoxide poisoning.

Fire Chief Maynard L. Denen stated the gas in the Kerns household was shut off until the malfunctioning furnace was repaired.

The name of the neighbor who made the discovery and possibly saved the lifes of the Kerns woman and her two children was not known by fire department officials.

Stock list posts gain

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market showed a small gain today in trading interrupted for 26 minutes by an equipment failure at the New York Stock Exchange.

Trouble in data-processing equipment which feeds information to the ticker tapes caused a halt in trading from 11:09 to 11:35 a.m., the Big Board said.

The market had been advancing gradually before the halt and picked up at pretty much the same pace when activity resumed. The exchange said no trading information was lost in the equipment failure.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 4.46 at 851.30, and advancing issues outpaced declines by about 5-to-3 on the New York Stock Exchange.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market-value index was up .04 at 94.74. The Amex said it had halted trading for the 26-minute period in issues related to Big Board-listed securities, but the smaller exchange appeared otherwise unaffected.

Metzenbaum urges economic council

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Howard M. Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, has proposed an Economic Preparedness Act as a means of taking preventive action before economic crisis hits.

The major provision of his proposal, Metzenbaum said in his first speech in the Senate, is the creation by Congress of a politically independent National Economic Preparedness Council.

The 12-member council appointed by the President and congressional leaders would "re-examine all aspects of American economic life and the role the United States should play in the international economic community," he said.

The council would be empowered to draft legislation and would be responsible for issuing an annual report on national economic goals and the means to achieve them.

Metzenbaum also proposed creation of a National Food Reserve over the next five years to build up a one-year's supply of grains and dry beans through a combination of government purchases at market prices and privately held inventories.

To make sure the country is never caught unprepared again, he said, a National Commodities Survey Office should be established in the General Accounting Office to provide accurate reports on strategic commodities and resources.

"Authoritative supply forecasts do not presently exist, and the lack of information on food and oil was a prime factor in the shortages and inflation that developed in these areas over the past two years," Metzenbaum said.

He also proposed:

—A $250 tax credit per dependent for individuals. Taxpayers would be given a choice between the present $750 personal exemption that is deducted from taxable income and the new $250 tax credit that would be deducted from taxes due.

Opinion And Comment

Ford's censure highlighted

The Chapin trial's reprise of the 1972 presidential campaign "dirty tricks" shenanigans throws Vice President Gerald R. Ford's recent remarks about CREEP into higher relief. The vice president's observations about the two-party system derive pertinence from courtroom disclosures about how that system was undermined by men who bypassed the party machinery.

The Committee for the Re-election of the President was an extreme manifestation of a phenomenon that has developed to some extent in both parties at the presidential campaign level. Candidates tend to concentrate on their own immediate concerns, raising their own funds and more less setting themselves apart from the party organizations.

This has played hob with the party structures, and it has opened the way to serious departures from respected political practice. This was the theme of Ford's remarks to audiences of party leaders.

Using the derogatory acronym for the Nixon re-election committee, he told them that "never again must Americans allow an arrogant guard of political adolescents like CREEP to bypass the regular Republican organization."

Ford said that those "political adolescents" had run "roughshod over the seasoned political judgment and experience of the regular Republican party organization in the 50 states." That is the nub of the matter. It is a criticism to be taken to heart by the leadership of both major parties. The party system is far from perfect.

But as the Chapin trial reminds us, there is a kind of stability and continuity in that system which helps to safeguard the political process from gross abuses.

THESE DAYS . . . by John Chamberlain

Kissinger needs a strong Navy

Henry Kissinger admires Prince Metternich, the Austrian statesman whose peace, achieved at Vienna in 1815, lasted for just short of a century insofar as any big troubles were concerned.

But, in his maneuverings to bring about a lasting Middle East settlement, our bouncy Secretary of State more closely resembles Talleyrand, the French plenipotentiary who succeeded in exploiting the differences between Russia, Prussia, Austria and Great Britain to his advantage in spite of the weakness of his own position.

The Arabs, as the fighting came to an end along the Suez Canal, still held the "oil weapon" over the U.S. But Egypt and Saudi Arabia were evidently persuaded by Kissinger that to use it as a continuing bludgeon would not serve the long-term good of the more conservative Arab states.

To take Western currencies for oil and then destroy the value by forcing the U.S. and Western Europe into a continuously galloping inflation would hardly enrich the Arab countries.

Oil needs prosperous markets — and, once the little matter of reaching a modus vivendi with Israel has been taken care of, the whole future of the conservative Arab economies depends on the intelligent use of the investment funds generated by oil profits. If the Arabs propose to spend their oil money to diversify their economies at home, they must import technology — and the only sure source of technology is in the capitalist West.

If, on the other hand, they want their money to earn money, they need a thriving world economy in which to invest. Socialist Moscow offers neither banks nor industries capable of absorbing the billions that will be accruing to the Arabs from their oil sales.

THE ECONOMIC realities have been enough to cause a split between the more radical Arab states such as Libya and Syria and the Egyptians, who want to borrow the Persian Gulf oil profits to take the Nile valley fellaheen out of their economic misery. By 1980, Saudi Arabia alone will have some $200 billion to spread around; it will be distinctly a "have" nation, with no interest whatsoever in making eternal alliances with countires committed to Marxist revolution.

Even though he may be in no haste to industrialize his underpopulated desert country, King Faisal needs someone to pay him interest on his capital, a powerful conservative Egypt to guard his flank, and a protector such as the U.S. to supply him with weapons to defend himself against revolutionaries.

The fact that the oil-rich Arab lands are due to become capitalist financial centers is Henry Kissinger's top card. By playing astutely on Arab expectancies he can conceivably wangle a peace that will assuage Arab pride and, at the same time, result in a guarantee that there will be no more talk of driving the Israelis into the sea.

The Israelis would, of course, be expected to give up much of the Sinai and some of the Golan Heights, with the surrendered territory marked off as demilitarized zones that would be off base for any soldiers save those of the U.S.

NONE OF THIS would please Moscow, or for that matter, its client state of Syria.

The Soviets have not been building a modern navy for nothing; their interest in an Egyptian victory lies in opening the Suez Canal for relatively quick passage to their ships into the Red Sea and the Indian Ocean. They must continue to have some hold on Egypt's Sadat or their investment in restoring the Sinai and the East bank of the Suez to Egyptian control will come to nothing.

The whole business, in the long run, will come down to a question of power. The U.S. Pentagon still thinks the Soviets are a power in Egypt; after all, they have been supplying Sadat with weapons. The Pentagon may underestimate Sadat's desire to shake himself free of Moscow's control.

But it is surely right in its feeling that the Russians don't have to have their technicians and advisers inside Egypt to keep Sadat in line. As long as the Soviet eastern Mediterranean fleet is stronger than U.S. naval power in that part of the world, the conservative Arabs will have to walk a tightrope.

Ohe thing is clear: if Henry Kissinger is to become the modern Talleyrand, he had better reach an understanding with the Pentagon and Congress on the need to build a U.S. Navy second to none.

In both business and financial matters, use only time-tested procedures. Don't attempt anything risky. And DON'T try for the unreasonable.

CAPRICORN

Be discriminating. No matter what the situation, don't judge on surface appearances only. Don't completely disregard first impressions of strangers, however.

AQUARIUS
(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

This should be a highly profitable day for those of you who capitalize on your innate imagination and originality. In the personal field, emotions may rise and fall, so maintain equilibrium and poise.

PISCES
(Feb. 20 to March 20)

Benefits indicated if you are alert, but opportunities could be lost through indifference or tendencies toward extremism.

YOU BORN TODAY are courageous, energetic and ambitious. Being a born leader, others follow you, and your opinions carry weight, so it's important that you never express yourself impulsively, without careful forethought. You are extremely versatile and could make a name for yourself in many fields — but especially in the law, politics and statesmanship, where your leadership and dynamic personality would be tremendous assets. You could also excel in the world of education — making a forceful and brilliant teacher — IF you can curb tendencies to be overexacting with those under your supervision. "The energy crisis is no excuse! Turn on that light and do your homework!"

Make energy from trash

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— Scrap metal and scrap paper recovery have been proposed as the first phase of a program to save money and make energy from Ohio's annual 1.8 million tons of trash.

"Each year Ohio communities spend more than $300 million to bury or burn waste," Gov. John J. Gilligan said Tuesday, unveiling the program which he said will be presented to the 1975 Ohio General Assembly.

As metropolitan areas run out of landfill space, residents will face bigger bills for hauling away garbage, he said.

"Our ultimate goal is the elimination of the environmental problems now created by solid waste disposal and full recovery of recyclable and energy-producing wastes," the governor added.

Ohio's Environmental Protection Agency drafted the proposal.

Letters To The Editor

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

A big smile and a big thanks to all the wonderful people of Fayette County who gave so generously of their time, money, resources, love and devotion to help ready the truckloads of gifts to our neighbors and loved ones, the recent tornado victims at Xenia. The helpers want to especially thank those who served them food, hot and cold drinks.

So much love went into the preparation of all those boxes of food, clothing, blankets, toys and many other items. Our hopes are that the sick and injured will rest a little better, the babies will sleep a little sounder and the children will laugh a little louder at play; that the fathers and mothers of Greene County will smile a little more then their hearts will be a little lighter because we the people helped.

A special thanks to Murphy's, Middle States Motor Freight, Armco, Mead Containers, United Church Women and Krogers.

If it had not have been for them it would not have been possible for the above to have happened. Also the city police station for allowing the truck to be parked on the street. And all the unmentioned good people who donated money, time, and labor.

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

In recent events in the news it makes a person wonder in what direction we as a nation are heading.

I am referring to the indictment of the National Guardsmen at Kent State. Here are men who are put into a position to maintain law and order and then when they do their job they are put on trial for an unfortunate incident. These men were ordered out to do this job; they didn't go out on their own. They weren't doing it for the kicks.

Now they will be on trial for carrying out orders. Where are their civil rights?

Recently here in our city we had something similar happen where one of our patrolmen had his life put in jeopardy. He also did his job, and I understand he had to face an inquiry over it. Wonder if it was necessary to do what he did.

Mike Stritenberger just did not happen to get on the force. He had to pass the requirements first. He chose this job because he, like the other police and firemen, are dedicated enough to believe in their city, state and country.

I ask you, what would we have done if we were in their moccasins. I, for one feel we should back them, not knock them. As long as our welfare is in their hands I feel we are safe.

Remember two of them lost their lives doing it.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Take a second look at that 'loving friend'

DEAR ABBY: As my husband and I were preparing to make a trip to Europe by air, one of my so-called dearest friends came to me and asked me if I would please get a $50,000 airplane insurance policy naming her as beneficiary. She said she would gladly pay for the insurance.

I was shocked to say the least.

What do you think of such a suggestion from a supposedly loving friend? I'd really like your opinion.

PEACHES

DEAR PEACHES: Let me put it this way: If this loving friend invited me to her home for dinner, I'd wonder who she was loving, and I'd also take a food-taster along.

DEAR ABBY: It's a cinch you've never been to Alaska, otherwise you never would have told that 45-year-old woman who was looking for a husband to go hunting there.

There are no extra marriageable men here, plus jobs are scarce and prices are double. You should have told her not to go to Alaska unless she had a round-trip ticket and plenty of money. She's too old to be a go-go dancer.

ERMA IN ANCHORAGE

DEAR ABBY: A few months ago I was hospitalized for a heart condition, and upon release, my doctor told me I had to take it easy.

My son, his wife and their three very active young children are neighbors to us, and the children are here more than they are at home. They wear me out but I can't bring myself to send them home.

My husband hired a housekeeper to help me the last few weeks, but my daughter-in-law has begun to "borrow" her, so once again I am alone with those undiciplined children.

My daughter-in-law is a good girl, and I'm sure she doesn't know the toll the children take on me. She's also very sensitive. My son tried talking to her about letting the children spend so much time at my house unsupervised, but she ended up in tears, all upset, and the next day they were back.

How can I handle this without hurting anyone? I love them all very much.

NAMELESS, OF COURSE

DEAR NAMELESS: First, tell your housekeeper that she is not to be "borrowed" by your daughter-in-law. Then tell your daughter-in-law to please quit commandeering your help that you love her and the kiddies but you aren't up to having them when she isn't there to discipline them. Don't worry about her ending up in tears. Better that than you ending up in a box before your time.

CONFIDENTIAL TO WORRIED AND WAITING IN N.J.: The answer is YES! See a physician at once. And if you can't get an appointment immediately or can't afford one, contact your public health department and tell them what you have told me. And do not wait another day.

Problems? you'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90212.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — While barely in their teens, the twin daughters of artist Harry Liebovitz already were regulars in the criminal courts of Philadelphia — as budding sketch artists drawing the fine line of law.

Now they're grown, married, of middle age. Each has three children. But they're still courtroom regulars, still sketching away. Only now their work is seen by millions on ABC and NBC television news programs.

Oddly enough, neither Ida Libby Dengrove of NBC nor Freda L. Reiter of ABC has covered the same trial in the three years they've worked — on a free-lance basis — for their networks. But it almost happened recently.

Mrs. Reiter said she nearly was assigned the federal court trial here of former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and ex-Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans. Her sister has sketched the trial for nearly eight weeks.

Alas, an ABC News executive in Washington, where Mrs. Reiter has sketched Watergate trials since January 1973, "would not let me go," she said. "He felt I was covering Watergate completely and he wanted me here on a full-time basis."

The sisters are part of a small network art colony whose specialized work is lucrative, if sporadic. Network officials won't say what the pay is, but industry sources say it goes as high as $100 a day.

Only NBC says it has a fulltime sketch staff under contract — seven artists, augmented by a few first-call freelancers like Ida Dengrove. CBS says it regularly calls on five freelancers, while ABC uses four of the breed.

Mrs. Reiter and her sister said they began courtroom sketching for the networks after years of similar work for a newspaper in their hometown of Philadelphia, where they attended separate art schools.

Mrs. Dengrove says she's been a bit busy of late, sketching the Mitchell-Stans trial for not only the "NBC Evening News," but also the "Today" show and the two local evening news show of WNBC-TV here.

Does she have to do different sketches for each show?

"Well, there are times when each reporter seems to have a different slant for the story, and I do try to accommodate them the best I can," she said. "But it varies.

"Usually before the (court) session we'll talk a little bit about what they want," added Mrs. Dengrove. She says it usually takes her 30 minutes to do an entire court scene "with the whole cast of characters."

Like her sister, Mrs. Dengrove says she uses pastels, charcoal pencils and a 14-by-17 sketch pad while working. She's done as many as 12 sketches and as few as three in a day at the Mitchell-Stans trial.

The artists, when they aren't in New York or Washington courtrooms, live in New Jersey only 65 miles apart—Ida in Allenhurst, near the ocean, and Freda in Cherry Hill, near Philadelphia.

Inouye says contributions returned

HONOLULU (AP) — Sen. Daniel K. Inouye said Monday he returned two campaign donations cited in the recent indictment of a Cleveland shipbuilder.

George Steinbrenner III, board chairman of American Shipbuilding Co., was indicted for allegedly contributing company funds to the election campaigns of President Nixon, Inouye and other influential members of Congress.

Inouye said he returned checks totaling $500 at the request of the donors, Robert Bartolme and Stanley Lepkowski. They were named as co-conspirators in the federal complaint but were not indicted.

No specific reason was given when the two men asked that their checks be returned, the Hawaii Democrat said. But he believes it had nothing to do with the investigation that led to Steinbrenner's indictment.

Inouye said his campaign staff also returned $5,160 donated by American Shipbuilding Co. executives. Reimbursement checks were delivered to Steinbrenner last September, he said.

Inouye said he also returned an additional $5,000 in personal funds donated by Steinbrenner.

Inouye said he met Steinbrenner in September, 1969, when they worked on a Democratic fund-raising dinner.

Marriage vows exchanged in Christian Union Church

Miss Rosemary Long became the bride of Roger Fuller in a double ring ceremony performed by the Rev. Robert Kline in the Church of Christ in Christian Union.

Miss Long is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Long, Rt. 3, and Mr. Fuller is the son of Mrs. Forrest Johnson and Wayne Fuller of Anderson, Ind.

Yellow bows marked the first three rows of pews in the church and candelabra entwined with greenery were also marked with bows. Mrs. Mary Jane Carter, vocalist, and Miss Sue Cummins, organist, presented wedding selections.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal length white organza gown which featured Venice lace on the bodice and sleeves. Venice lace formed the panel down the front of the skirt which fell into a chapel length train in the back. Her nylon tulle veil was caught to a headpiece of petals. She carried a cascade of white and yellow roses accented with baby's breath and ivy on a white Bible with white streamers.

Mrs. Linda Rumer, matron of honor, wore a long gown of yellow and peach sweetheart dotted Swiss with white organdy pinafore. Miss Cindy Buster, Miss Susan Long, Miss Carol Delawder, Mrs. Barbara McCain and Miss Chris Lindsey were the bridesmaids. They wore long gowns of yellow and peach sweetheart dotted Swiss. Each carried long-stemmed roses accented with baby's breath and long peach streamers.

The bride's mother chose a long pink and white eyelet gown with which she combined pink accessories. Her corsage was of pink baby roses accented with baby's breath. The groom's mother wore a formal length apricot gown with matching accessories and a corsage of peach roses with baby's breath.

Steve McNutt of Martinsville, Ind., served as best man. Seating the wedding guests were Dan Rumer, Tom Hawk, Mike Lyons and Bill Garver.

Hostesses for the reception held in the church activity Center on Rt. 35 were Mariann Woodruff, Carol Noble, Teresa Seyfang, Alana Walters, Melany Compton and Darla Johnson.

Following a wedding trip to Gatlinburg, Tenn., the couple is residing at 1816 Clifton Ave., Springfield.

The new Mrs. Fuller, a graduate of Washington Senior High School, is enrolled in the Community Hospital School of Nursing. Her husband, a graduate of Madison Heights High School in Anderson, Ind., attended Wright State University and Ball State University, and is presently employed at International Harvestor in Springfield.

The groom's parents were hosts at a rehearsal dinner at Anderson's Restaurant on Friday evening.

Hospital Auxiliary adds members

Fayette Memorial Hospital's Auxiliary met in the board room at the hospital when Mrs. Ralph Child presided. She gave the opening prayer and welcomed six new members. She announced that a very nice sum was earned for the Auxiliary by several volunteers who assisted taking inventory at Buckeye Mart.

During the committee reports, Mrs. James Carr, chairman of the gift shop, disclosed the weekly receipts had averaged $300.00 per week.

It was voted to furnish the new basement facility with floor tile from some of the gift shop proceeds. Mrs. Jean Tracy spoke to members and asked for volunteers at the emergency entrance. Since the new switch board, purchased by the Auxiliary, has been moved to the front office, there was a need for more volunteer help.

Volunteers help at the admission desk, work in gift shop, assist in the X-ray department, and maternity ward and help with Dr. Kubiac's program.

Mrs. Child read a letter from Mr. Robert Kunz of appreciation from him, the staff and board to volunteers who are doing such a good job and are such a great help to the hospital.

There were more than 24,000 hours of work donated during 1973.

The TV project is progressing very well under the chairmanship of Miss Marjorie Evans, her assistant Mrs. Robert Woodmansee and other helpers.

The first man volunteer was welcomed and a call for others to join the Auxiliary will be appreciated. There are many jobs to do to improve the hospital and its progress. More ladies are invited to join also.

After Mrs. Child asked for volunteers at the emergency entrance, the meeting was adjourned.

State won't aid indicted Guardsmen

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The state attorney general's office reaffirmed Tuesday its decision not to provide legal counsel for Ohio National Guardsmen indicted in the 1970 Kent State University shootings.

James Gravelle, press aide to Atty. Gen. William Brown, was responding to a statement by a guard spokesman that it was the guard's understanding the state would defend soldiers in suits resulting from actions they took while on state active duty.

"There is a big difference between a civil suit and a criminal indictment from a federal grand jury," Gravelle said. He said it is not the policy of the state to defend employes indicted on criminal offenses.

Gravelle said the guardsmen were offered legal advice when first subpoenaed, but were told they could not be defended if indicted.

He said they also were told they could make a claim with the Sundry Claims Board for reimbursement of legal expenses, which would "probably be reimbursed if they were acquitted."

The attorney general's policy concerning defense of state employes on criminal charges was outlined in a letter from Brown to Adj. Gen. Dana L. Stewart in December 1973, Gravelle said.

The guard official, Col Joseph McCann, public affairs officer, referred to a memorandum dated April 23, 1971, from Stewart to all Ohio guard units which said state defense would be provided guardsmen involved in suits "arising from actions resulting from state active duty. Robert Tenenbaum, press aide for Gov. John Gilligan said he believed the memo referred to civil not criminal action.

"The Gilligan administration can't require the attorney general to do anything," Tenenbaum said. "The attorney general is as independent as the governor and in those areas he controls he is the absolute authority."

Meanwhile, George C. Smith, a candidate for the Republican nomination for attorney general, said in Lima Tuesday he would provide a defense for the guardsmen if he held the office.

And Rep. Kenneth Cox, D—41 Barberton, said he planned to introduce legislation in the House requiring the state to provide legal counsel for the soldiers.

Health curbs on chemical demanded

WASHINGTON (AP) — United Rubber Workers President Peter Bommarito said Tuesday emergency temporary health standards placed on vinyl chloride are inadequate to guarantee workers safety.

He called on tighter government restrictions on worker exposure to the chemical, believed responsible for a rare form of liver cancer.

The Labor Department's Occupational Safety and Health Administration this week ordered that the maximum allowable concentration of vinyl chloride be reduced from 500 parts per million in the atmosphere to 50 parts per million until a permanent standard is formulated.

The action came after it was disclosed that four workers at a B.F. Goodrich Co. vinyl chloride conversion plant in Louisville, Ky., had died.

Bommarito said the deaths "served the brutal purpose" of showing how little is known about how dangerous chemical substances are in the work place.

Speaking at a one-day health and safety meeting sponsored by the union, he said "it has uncovered what industry, government and labor do not known — the toxicological and cancer potential of thousands of chemicals used in industry."

Grandpa Jones likes 'old' music best

By SYLVIA RECTOR
Associated Press Writer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A flurry of old songs reborn and a sudden resurgence of youthful respect for the old timers have so far missed one of country music's most authentic performers.

But at least Grandpa Jones believes there's now a market for his brand of music.

"If you want to hear real country music these days, you've got to go to a college or to one of these clubs the kids go to. They want the real old stuff, especially in the colleges. They're tired of this modern country," he declared.

Now 60, he's still doing the same kind of music and telling the same kinds of jokes he started with in 1935. Of course, as he says, "there aren't any new jokes, just variations on old ones."

Well known as a humorist from his weekly appearances on television's syndicated "Hee Haw," Grandpa still loves his music best.

"I'm not doing what's popular — or at least, what has been popular. You know, that modern country and the bluegrass. I don't pick like Earl Scruggs does. That's bluegrass."

His picking style is often called "claw-hammer" or "frailing."

"And I don't do any of this modern country ... about men running around on their wives and all. I like songs about the country or mother or train wrecks or something. Us oldtimers call that other stuff 'skin songs'."

He records but, evidentally, has had less success than he would have hoped.

"Oh, I do lots of records, but you'd never know it. The disc jockeys know I don't do modern country or bluegrass so they just pitch it out. "That's why I want to do some of these college shows. I believe there's a lot of young people who would like what I do," he said.

He's starting the college circuit soon, with a first appearance scheduled at Western Kentucky University.

The problem, Grandpa feels, is that too many writers are turning out "skin songs" and not the gentle, down-to-earth music he thinks is beginning to see a revival.

"One of the prettiest songs to come out in a long, long time is "The Green, Green Grass of Home," he said. "And that's about home and just plain people. I'd like to see a lot more songs like that."

Grandpa has another album coming out in the near future, "Heading South with Nashville on my Mind."

Then, he's going to another record label.

"They're already looking for some material. Maybe it'll turn out and maybe it won't. We'll just have to see," he said.

Cincy schools remain struck

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — While half of Cincinnati's 3,000 public school teachers stayed home Tuesday, school officials said classrooms would remain open despite the strike.

The strike entered its third day today.

A crucial meeting of the Cincinnati Federation of Teachers (CFT) was held Tuesday night, but the group barred newsmen.

Meanwhile, the board of education said that negotiations would not resume until teachers returned to their classrooms.

The CFT, a rival of the official bargaining agent Cincinnati Teachers Association (CTA), could apply more pressure by backing the CTA-sponsored strike.

Ohio Perspective

State has little damage insurance

By PERRY SMITH
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The state of Ohio has more property and less insurance than any other real estate owner in the state.

In fact, the state has no property damage insurance at all except on university dormitories—mandatory coverage because the dormitories are built with the proceeds of bonds.

Ironically, dormitories at Central State University, latest property disaster for state government, suffered least from the tornado that decimated Xenia last week.

The rebuilding bill at Central State, where practically every building except some dormitories was either demolished or heavily damaged, has been estimated at $50 million to $75 million.

The state does carry loss of business policies on state buildings, so that it would be reimbursed for emergency space rentals.

John B. Olsen, director of the Office of Budget and Management, said he didn't really know why the state carries no property damage insurance, but said he expected that premiums on state property would be too high.

Howard Collier, former Ohio finance director now a vice president of the Medical College of Ohio, verified Olsen's theory. "In the past 10 or 15 years I know about we haven't suffered more than a $10 million loss because of disasters," Collier said.

"Insurance premiums on everything the state owns would have been more costly."

Insurance is required on university dormitories built through bond issues, Olsen said. "The bonding firms insist upon it," he said.

Otherwise, the state is a selfinsurer. It sets aside money in an emergency fund.

"That fund is pretty lean right now," Olsen said. It does not contain enough to pay Central State damages, he said.

There are two other approaches to finance reconstruction: A bond issue or an outright appropriation by the legislature, probably in the capital improvements bill.

"Right now," said Olsen, "our first task is to get an assessment of damages down there, determine costs and see if we can get it in the next capital improvement bill."

Olsen doesn't like the bond issue approach. There are complicating factors, he said.

"But a bonded debt is always possible," he said.

Conservation jobs open to area youths

WASHINGTON — Youths interested in applying for possible summer employment in the four Youth Conservation Corps camps to be operated in Ohio this year should first contact their high school counselors or conservation science teachers, Congressman William H. Harsha said today.

Those meeting the age (15 through 18) requirements and other qualifications but not attending school should also register at their nearest high school.

Congressman Harsha said that, according to the Ohio Department of Natural Resources which will operate the program, it will accept one application for consideration from each high school in the State. Candidates from each congressional district in Ohio will then be evaluated by a selection board which will review each application and make the final selections for the 348 openings in the conservation camps.

The four camps are located at the Hebron National Fish Hatchery in Licking County, the Wayne National Forest in Monroe County, the Zaleski Forest in Vinton County and the Shawnee State Forest in Scioto County.

The deadline for applications is April 15.

Boyle vigorously denies plotting to kill Yablonski

MEDIA, Pa. (AP)—W. A. "Tony" Boyle, the former United Mine Workers president, vigorously denies he had anything to do with the 1969 assassination of his union rival Joseph "Jock" Yablonski.

"Absolutely not," the 72-year-old defendant said loud and clear Tuesday afternoon, staring hard at the jury of nine men and three women while answering his lawyer's questions on whether he had helped arrange the murders of Yablonski, his wife and daughter.

Later, under sharp cross-examination by Special Prosecutor Richard A. Sprague, Boyle insisted he always tells the truth.

"I have told the truth under oath all my life," Boyle said. "I have never lied under oath."

Sprague, sarcastically, responded: "The jury will decide that Mr. Boyle."

Boyle was the fourth defense witness. Three others may testify today before the defense rests.

Then the prosecution, which already has had 56 witnesses, is expected to offer a brief rebuttal before the case reaches the jury, probably by Friday.

The Yablonskis were slain Dec. 31, 1969, as they slept in their rural Clarksville home in southwestern Pennsylvania. The killings occurred three weeks after Yablonski lost a bitter battle to unseat Boyle for the presidency of the 200,000-member union.

Testifying in his own defense, the ailing Boyle—he failed in a sleeping pill suicide attempt last September and has a bad heart—also said he was positive he had never suggested to anyone at any time that Yablonski must be killed.

"I certainly did not," Boyle said, flatly refuting the prosecution's star witness Monday that the "kill Yablonski" order originated with Boyle on June 23, 1969.

William J. Turnblazer, 52, former president of UMW District 19 embracing Kentucky and Tennessee, had testified Boyle suggested the assassination during a brief afternoon meeting in the hallway of the union's national headquarters building in Washington, D.C.

Turnblazer, who has pleaded guilty to participating in the murder plot, said Albert Pass, 52, former secretary-treasurer of District 19, also was present at the time.

Pass was convicted of murder last June.

"Did you have any such conversation with Albert Pass (on June 23, 1969)?" asked Boyle's lawyer, Charles F. Moses.

"I did not," Boyle said.

"Did you have any meeting with William Turnblazer?" Moses continued.

"I did not," Boyle replied again.

Truman adviser dies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Edwin G. Nourse, 90, the first chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, died Sunday. Nourse, who headed the council during the Truman administration, was vice president of Brookings Institution.

Mitchell-Stans speedup sought

NEW YORK (AP) — Federal Judge Lee P. Gagliardi is seeking to step up the pace at the criminal conspiracy trial of former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and ex-Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans.

With Good Friday an off-day for the trial, Gagliardi said Tuesday he is "giving some thought to a Saturday session."

But he appeared willing to go along with a defense suggestion that to compensate for the long weekend, court sessions be extended daily by an hour or so.

The government objected to this. It said it needs all the time it can get to prepare for each day of defense testimony.

Mitchell and Stans are accused of obstructing a Securities and Exchange Commission investigation into the operations of financier Robert L. Vesco in return for his secret $200,000 contribution to President Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign.

The Vesco donation was the largest cash contribution received by the Committee to Reelect the President, which Mitchell and Stans took over after leaving the cabinet.

The defense presentation was enlivened Tuesday by the appearance as a witness of an ebullient multimillionaire insurance tycoon from Winnetka, Ill. — W. Clement Stone. His more-than-$2-million, non-cash donation was the largest single contribution of the 1972 campaign.

Gagliardi refused to let Stone say how much he gave Nixon and why, and the judge said he would not permit the defense to call as witnesses other large Nixon contributors.

The defense wanted to call other heavy contributors in an effort to show that many of them had insisted on anonymity and were seeking no favors.

But Gagliardi said, "What went through their minds is not relevant as to what went through Mr. Stans' mind as to criminal intent."

Stone testified he hosted a table of 10 at a $1,000-a-plate fund-raising dinner for Senate and House candidates in the Washington Hilton Hotel March 8, 1972. Among his guests were Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell.

A government witness, Daniel Hofgren, a volunteer GOP campaign aide, had testified that he talked to Mitchell at a reception preceding the dinner and was warned by Mitchell to "stay away" from Vesco, and the subject of his planned $200,000 contribution.

One count in the indictment charges Mitchell with perjury, because of his testimony that he never talked with Hofgren about Vesco at the party, or told him to "stay away" from the financier.

Stone testified that Mitchell never made it to the reception, and arrived late for the dinner itself.

In another ruling Tuesday, Gagliardi refused to let the defense call as witness Berl Bernhardt, Sen. Edmund S. Muskie's campaign manager during the Maine senator's attempt to win the Democratic presidential nomination in 1972.

Stans' attorneys had said that Bernhardt's testimony would show that it was the "custom and practice" of all candidates to take anonymous contributions.

Detente unreal, Soviet dissident tells newsman

NEW YORK (AP) — Exiled Soviet dissident Pavel M. Litvinov says detente between Russia and the United States can't be real if only the top leaders "meet and smile and talk to each other."

Litvinov, the 34-year-old grandson of Stalin's late foreign minister, arrived here with his family earlier this week. The chemical engineer says he hopes to stay and teach college physics in the United States.

"I can't consider detente real if only at the very top the leaders meet and smile and talk to each other, but the Soviet working man is told to look on every foreigner as a spy," he said in an interview Tuesday.

He said there "can't be such a thing as a cold peace. Real peace must be warm and friendly."

Home loan rule blasted

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— James Nolan, who is seeking the Democratic nomination for governor, says the Cleveland Trust Co. should rescind its "hard-nosed" policy on homeowners' loans.

Cleveland Trust announced this week that it will boost the minimum down payment on home mortgages to one-third.

Nolan said Tuesday night in campaign appearances before the Lyndhurst and Bedford Democratic clubs that Cleveland Trust should "rescind this policy and re-examine their reasoning."

He said it was "unconscionable for Ohio's largest and wealthiest bank to take this action making it more difficult for families to buy and become home owners."

Nolan added that he believes the bank is trying to put pressure on the State Legislature to lift the eight per cent ceiling on loans.

2 escape injury in plane crash

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP)— Two Ohio men escaped injury when their twin engine Cessna 310 crashed on takeoff from Worcester Airport early today in a snowstorm.

Police said the plane apparently stalled out and crashed into woods about 100 yards from the end of the runway.

Officials identified the pilot as Joseph A. Jansen of Bluffton, Ohio, and his passenger as Scott R. Bushong of Elida, Ohio.

Larceny, vandalism checked

A soft drink machine was burglarized and a screen door was damaged by a thrown piece of asphalt, police reported today.

The Sheriff's Department reported a stolen bicycle.

Two dollars in change was taken from the vending machine at the Bonded Oil Service Station, 131 N. North St., sometime between 10 p.m. Monday and 1:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Police investigating the incident believe the thief had the master key to the machine, because the door lock was not damaged, although a padlock was broken off.

A chunk of asphalt was thrown through the front door of the Charles Tucker residence, 932 Millwood Ave., at 6:50 p.m. yesterday. Police estimated the value of the damaged screen at $10.

A bicycle was taken from the front porch of the Betty Stoops residence, Jeffersonville, sometime between 6:30 p.m. and 12 p.m. Sunday sheriff's deputies reported. The bicycle was described as being a Joplin 26-inch with an attached book rack.

Lake waters receding

PORT CLINTON, Ohio (AP) — Officials said major roads through Ottawa County were open again today, with the exception of Ohio 2, as flood waters continued to recede.

School administrators planned to reopen classes today after most of the outlying schools resumed operations Tuesday.

Entire families were stranded Monday in the eighth major flood to hit the area in 18 months, sheriff's deputies reported, when Lake Erie's waters climbed more than 100 inches.

Damages in the county were expected to rise again into the tens of thousands of dollars, especially along lake shore properties.

But Port Clinton Mayor John Fritz said inside the city limits, only one basement was threatened and only one road will need rebuilding.

"Of course, we lost our lake shore and all the debris will have to be cleaned up," he said.

Ohio State University's Army ROTC Unit has commissioned 9,038 young men as second lieutenants since it was established on campus in 1916.

A special meeting to discuss the Rattlesnake Creek Watershed will be held at Sabina High School at 8 p.m. April 18. Those interested in investigating the project were urged to attend.

The Pomona Grange meeting has been postponed until April 19 when it will be held in the Forest Shade Grange Hall.

The Forest Shade has voted to make a donation to help Fayette County residents who suffered loss due to last week's tornadoes.

The literary program of Easter readings and articles was led by Miss Louise Ritter. Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Eckle, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Carson and Charles Carson were in charge of refreshments.

Laos Reds open drive on highway

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

About 150 North Vietnamese and Pathet Lao troops have launched a series of attacks along a strategic highway in southern Laos, sources in the capital said today.

It was the first reported cease-fire violation since the Pathet Lao joined a coalition government with the conservative-neutralist regime in Vientiane last Friday.

The sources said the Communist forces made their first attack Sunday along a stretch of Highway 13 about 250 miles southeast of Vientiane and several miles inland from the Mekong River border with Thailand.

Defense Minister Sisouk Na Champassak of the Vientiane faction protested the attack to a Pathet Lao minister today at the first meeting of the new coalition cabinet, the sources reported.

Meanwhile, in Cambodia, government troops battled through insurgent forces along Kampot's shipping channel and cleared one bank of the besieged town's main supply route after four days of heavy fighting, military sources reported today.

The sources said about 500 men were landed on the east bank of the four-mile channel from the Gulf of Thailand and fought their way into the town. Navy gunboats had blasted Khmer Rouge positions along the 300-yard-wide channel earlier.

Kampot, 85 miles southwest of Phnom Penh, has been under Khmer Rouge pressure for more than a month. But one Western military observer said the insurgents appeared to be pulling back a bit, "possibly for a rest."

In Saigon, South Vietnam's delegation to the Joint Military Commission said it proposed a cease-fire at the besieged government bases of Duc Hue, near the Cambodian border 35 miles northwest of Saigon, and Tong Le Chan, 50 miles north of the capital. The delegation said it proposed the truce to allow the evacuation of wounded and burial of the dead.

The Viet Cong rejected the request, calling it a trick by the Saigon administration to gain public support while pursuing "land-grabbing operations."

A spokesman for the Saigon command said the Communists were attacking Duc Hue and other positions in the area in an attempt to reopen supply routes from Cambodia.

Ohio Army deserter stays in Australia; fears prison

MALVERNE, Ohio (AP)— Mrs. Russell James says her son, Russell, "would like to come home" from Australia, but she fears U.S. officials would put him in prison to make an example of him as a Vietnam War deserter.

Russell F. James, 24, walked away from the U.S. Army while on leave in Australia 1969. He had been held by Sidney authorities for the past month, but Mrs. James said her son told her by telephone Tuesday that Australian officials have decided not to honor a U.S. request for his deportation and will grant him citizenship.

She said her son and his wife, Marie, whom he met in Australia, manage a small hotel in Sidney.

"He has the wife and his son to think about," said Mrs. James. "I told him I was behind him 100 per cent....

"It's not that he's turning his back on his country," she added. "He feels that it's for a good reason."

Mrs. James said her son enlisted in 1967 at the age of 17 and served 1½ years in Vietnam. He was wounded in the leg by shrapnel.

He re-enlisted and planned to make the Army his career, but "something must have happened in that time to make him change his mind," said Mrs. James.

She said he signed up for an additional six months in Vietnam so he could come home for Christmas in 1968. That was the last time his parents saw him.

James went to Sidney on leave in 1969 and stayed there.

Mrs. James said her son told her that U.S. officials have threatened to "make an example" of him if he returned.

"I'd like to have him home, but not that way," she said.

"And I wouldn't take their word if they told me they wouldn't do anything if he was to come home. That's a terrible way to feel about your country, isn't it?"

Man identified in fatal blast

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—Firemen identified a 21-year-old Dayton man, Delberg Aikins, as the victim in an explosion Tuesday that rocked the Monsanto Chemical Co. plant here.

Four others injured in the blast that triggered fires, causing damage estimated at $250,-000, were Richard Juterbeck of Mainville and Michael Widner, Thomas Hughes and Thomas Durcher, all of Dayton.

Officials said Aikins was in a room 40-50 feet from a 2,000-gallon container of paint resin when it exploded. The other men were treated and released, company spokesmen said.

She says, "It doesn't seem possible that my four years at Miami Trade are almost over. But I feel I will benefit from them in the future."

"I feel that my years at Miami Trace have been very fulfilling. I will miss all the great friends I have made and the fun times I have had," comments Dawn Schlichter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max Schlichter, Myers Rd.

Musically-inclined is the best adjective to describe Dawn. She had a leading role as "Lucille" in "No, No Nanette" and she is a member of Folksingers, the Madison Mills Church Choir, the All-Ohio and All-European Youth Choirs, (with whom she will be going abroad this summer), the Ohio Wesleyan Honors Choir. She also writes for the Miami Tracer page, and is a member of Y-Teens, Dramatic Arts, Junior Leadership, 4-H, and the Junior Fair board. She has been in Miami Trace musicals all four years and was in the fall play her junior and senior years.

If she ever has any spare time, she enjoys listening to more music and watching all kinds of sports.

Dawn is taking Speech, Drama Literature, Family Living, English Composition, Journalism, Psychology, Bookkeeping, American Government, Symphonic Choir, and is auditing Music Theory. She lists the latter two as her favorites.

After graduation, she will attend Miami University in Oxford majoring in Secondary Music Education.

Julie Blake, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Blake, Rt. 3, is our last featured senior. Julie is enrolled in Psychology, Office Practice, Symphonic Choir, Child Development, Senior Homemaking, Journalism, American Government, and Family Living.

SHE IS a member of AFS, Y-Teens, 4-H, Junior Leadership, Junior Fair Board, and a three-year member of Folksingers. Julie has also been a cheerleader all four years at Miami Trace.

Her hobbies include sewing and swimming. She attends the Grace United Methodist Church.

She says, "I have enjoyed my four years at Miami Trace but am anxious to graduate." She is undecided about her future plans but would like to go to work.

A hearty congratulations is extended to each of these students.

Nursery school finished at MT

By SUSAN THACKER

The Home Economics III and Child Development classes at Miami Trace High School have concluded their annual nursery school.

The three-to-five-year-old pupils were brought to school for an hour and a half five times during the two weeks. Their activities included songs, creative periods in which they painted and drew, and story telling. On the last day the children enjoyed an Easter egg hunt.

Planning the activities, working with the children, and observing their reactions gave the girls in the two classes a chance to apply what they had been learning about child behavior.

The children and the students involved enjoyed their days of nursery school and were disappointed when it was over.

Miss Betsy Hamrick and Mrs. Mary Myers were the advisors.

Metzenbaum, Taft vote same

WASHINGTON (AP)—Ohio Sens. Robert Taft Jr., a Republican, and Howard Metzenbaum, a Democrat, voted with the majority Tuesday when the Senate adopted an amendment cutting proposed spending limits in the campaign reform bill by 20 per cent.

When the Senate voted to invoke cloture to shut off debate on the campaign financing bill, Metzenbaum sided with the majority, while Taft voted against cloture.

Rotary Club hears Easter season talk

A comparison of Rotary's Four-Way Test with the life of Jesus Christ was heard by members of the Washington C. H. Rotary Club during their noon luncheon meeting Thursday in the Country Club.

Rev. Allen Puffenberger, associate pastor of Grace United Methodist Church in Washington C. H., spoke on the theme, "Will the Four-Way Test Stand the Test?"

The Four-Way Test is basically a Rotary Club creed and asks four questions to be observed by Rotarians in their thinking. The questions are: Is it the truth? Is it fair to all concerned? Will it build good will and friendships? and Will it be beneficial to all concerned?

Rev. Puffenberger explained the thoughts behind the four questions and told Rotarians how each affected Christ, especially during Holy Week.

He then coupled the Rotary creed with an Easter season message in an attempt to assist the club members in becoming more aware of the four basic questions.

THE BUSINESS meeting was conducted by the club president, Phil Grover, and Jim Hanawalt was the program chairman.

Robert Haigler, district Rotary governor, said the Rotary district is now establishing a relief fund for tornado-torn Xenia. Various clubs in the Rotary district will be launching fund-raising projects for the relief fund.

Serving on the Rotary relief fund committee for the Washington C. H. club are Joe Peters, chairman; Donald Murdock, Max Lawrence, Bill Pool and Walter Seifried.

Grover announced that Dr. C. Elton Rhoad has been appointed historian for the Washington C. H. club.

Student guests were Mike Coe, of MTHS, and Brent Thompson, of WSHS. Guests were Norris Highfield with Grover and Andy Lachat with his father, John Lachat. Visiting Rotarians were Merrill Kaufman, of Delaware, Robert Head, Greenfield, and Ed Jones, Hong Kong.

Man claims income tax act illegal

CHICAGO (AP)—Businessman and historian W. R. Anderson claims he's found the biggest tax loophole of all time.

Anderson says he's discovered the federal Income Tax Act of 1913 is illegal and the government should return all the income taxes it has ever collected.

When William Howard Taft signed the income tax law 60 years ago, he was not legally President, Anderson explained.

"Through a monumental oversight, Ohio (Taft's home state) was not officially admitted into the Union until 1953," Anderson contends. "He could not have been a legal President because he did not qualify under Article 2, Section 1 of the Constitution, which specified 14 years' residence in a state."

Anderson said congressional doubts over Ohio's legal status as a state prompted a 1953 action in which Congress "went through the motions of making Ohio a state, just in case."

Despite the congressional action, Anderson said, laws enacted under Taft's administration—including the income tax—were and still are illegal.

Business techniques come to campuses

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Caught in a financial crush, universities today are being forced to borrow budget and administrative processes from corporate management, a procedure often thought to be fraught with danger.

The fear, actively expressed by deans and students alike, is that the use of business techniques eventually if not immediately means the ascendancy of money over eduction.

Inefficiency, it is said, must be tolerated for the sake of truth. Academic standards, the argument continues, must not be infringed upon by financial standards.

But when financial inefficiency constitutes the threat rather than the alleged safeguard, as is the case with scores of universities today, administrations are forced to act. And so, business techniques come to campus.

At the University of Pennsylvania, which handles more than $200 million in funds a year, Martin Meyerson, president, has borrowed a technique from the world of conglomerates and insituted what he calls responsibility centers.

In a business conglomerate these units would be called profit centers, but profit isn't the goal of a university. Neither is loss, however, so the 22 centers are assigned the main responsibility for supporting themselves.

Each school within the university must make its own decisions on how its earned income, mainly tuition, is to be used. Instead of simply applying to the university for financing, it must learn to live within its income.

Decision making is thus diversified in each school. If a school wants to increase the ratio of faculty to students it must justify the move financially. If it wants to offer more student aid it must check its bank account first.

Each center is also assessed for costs of the university as a central enterprise, depending upon the use it makes of libraries and other common facilities. And each school shares in the university's general income.

If a responsibility center wants to embark on a new project that might result in sharp startup costs it can borrow from what is called the intercenter bank at the prime rate. It can save there too.

Prof. John Hobstetter, a metallurgist and chairman of the university budget committee, speaks directly about the consequences of a center not maintaining good financial relations with the bank.

"Accumulating deficits or failure to repay such loans would raise critical questions about a center's viability," he explained to the faculty. "Unless the campus could agree to an increased subvention at the expense of other centers, intervention would be necessary."

Meyerson and Hobstetter seek to avoid that type of confrontation, the purpose of their program being to decentralize decision making while simultaneously encouraging a sense of cohesion with the central university.

Meyerson maintains the system already is producing results, although it is always being re-evaluated. "Deans are concerned about a number of things they never paid attention to. Deans and faculty are asking more about the general problems of the university."

Still, he agrees, "a good deal of resistance" exists. "The deans by and large recognize the importance of it but feel many corrections are needed. To most of the faculty it is puzzling, but budgets always have been."

Hobstetter, a quiet scholar, refers to the "happy old days" when he could spend more time teaching, but he finds his role "fascinating." He finds it "a whole new dimension; it's fun, although there are days I wouldn't admit it."

Meyerson, who must satisfy a disparate constituency that includes the trustees, faculty, city, state and federal governments, as well as students "who are both customers and products," is optimistic.

He feels university budgeting too often has been haphazard, failing to identify the academically desirable with the financially possible. His budget, he claims, is meant to implement planning, not to set priorities.

Owens-Corning divided down

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. stockholders will pocket 66 cents a share of $9.8 million first-quarter earnings, a drop from 78 cents for the same period in 1973.

Officials said consolidated net sales for the quarter closing March 31 were $194.9 million, compared with $167.6 million in 1973.

The growing demand for products did not pay increased dividends due to rapidly rising costs and Phase IV rules which prohibited passing those costs on in the form of prices, said William W. Boeschenstein, president.

Venezuela pushes oil nationalization

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Venezuela is preparing to nationalize its oil industry, one of the chief foreign suppliers of the United States, in the next decade.

Most foreign oil concessions expire in 1983, and already two bills calling for immediate nationalization of the 3.3-millionbarrel-a-day industry are before a congressional committee.

The bills were introduced by the Social Christian party, the leading opposition faction, and the small, left-wing People's Electoral Movement. President Carlos Andres Perez's new Democratic Action government has set up a special committee to study eventual nationalization and report in 60 days.

The foreign oil companies — most of them American — have not objected to nationalization and say they are willing to discuss new arrangments with the Venezuelan government.

The government last week ordered a 5 per cent cutback in oil production effective April 15. Valentin Hernandez, the minister of mines and hydrocarbons, said the purpose was to conserve natural gas lost in pumping crude oil.

Several Venezuelan experts favor as much as a 50 per cent production cut to save oil for future sale at better prices. But President Perez has said this would not be advisable on moral and political grounds.

Exxon's Venezulan subsidiary, the Creole Petroleum Corp., was hit hardest by the 5 per cent cut because it is the largest oil producer. The company said it will ship about 100,000 barrels a day less as a result.

A score of foreign oil companies, which also include Shell, Mobil, Sun, Gulf and Texaco, produce about 95 per cent of Venezuela's oil output. The companies operate under a system of 40-year concessions. A 1970 oil reversion law was designed to ensure a smooth and orderly state takeover without compensation when the concessions run out. But all political parties agree the government does not have to wait until 1983 to take over the industry.

To the demands for immediate nationalization, the center-left government — which has a majority in Congress — has said: "We cannot play with the backbone of our economy. We must proceed carefully and intelligently."

Venezuela supplies the United States with about 1.7 million barrels of oil a day and ships another 450,000 barrels a day to Canada.

Auto firm breakup hit

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors said today a proposed federal law which would break up the large auto companies to spur competition could do irreparable harm to the nation's economy.

The auto company said enactment of the proposed Industrial Reorganization Act would adversely affect consumers and workers, reduce industrial efficiency and raise prices.

In testimony prepared for a Senate subcommittee hearing today in Washington, three GM officials defended the level of competition within the auto industry and said the proposed legislation is a punitive measure levied against the car makers.

A Senate antitrust and monopoly subcommittee headed by Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., is hearing Hart's proposal to restructure seven major industries to increase competition.

Last week, a Chrysler Corp. official denied the auto industry is engaged in monopoly practices at the expense of the American car buyer.

Six injured in rural accident

Six persons were slightly injured in a two-car accident at the intersection of U.S. 35 and West Lancaster Road at 4:18 p.m. Tuesday.

Patrolman Loren Butcher, of the Ohio Highway Patrol post in Wilmington, said only one of the six persons involved in the two-car mishap received hospital treatment.

Butcher said John A. Dunn, 73, Rt. 1, Jeffersonville, was treated and released at Fayette Memorial Hospital for minor lacerations he received in the collision with a car driven by Everett E. Ward, 31, of Dayton.

According to the report, Dunn attempted to cross U.S. 35 from Edgefield Road onto West Lancaster Road when the car he was driving was struck in the side by the westbound Ward car. Dunn was cited by the Ohio Highway Patrol for failure to yield the right of way.

Ward and four passengers, Sharon McDaniel, 16, Ena McDaniel, 14, Pamela McDaniel, 12, and Tara Ward, 3, all of Dayton, received minor contusions in the accident, but did not receive hospital treatment.

Butcher said Dunn's auto was heavily damaged, and the late model station wagon operated by Ward received moderate damage.

Probe arms shipment

TORONTO, Ont. (AP) — The Royal Canadian Mounted Police are investigating a large shipment of arms and explosives seized aboard a ship in Britain. British police said the shipment was believed to have been shipped from Canada to the guerrilla Irish Republican Army. Two Britons appeared briefly in a Southampton court Tuesday in connection with the case and were ordered held without bail.

Connally investigated in bribery

WASHINGTON (AP) — Columnist Jack Anderson said today that former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally is under investigation by Watergate prosecutors for alleged bribery.

Connally, who in recent months has addressed Republican groups and met with party leaders in more than 30 states in what may be an effort to line up support for a 1976 GOP presidential bid, denied the allegation.

In his column, Anderson said FBI investigators assigned to the special prosecutor's office have evidence that Connally pocketed $10,000 from Associated Milk Producers Inc., the nation's largest dairy cooperative.

Anderson indicated the money changed hands in 1972, while Connally was still treasury secretary, but did not cite a specific date for the alleged transaction.

Anderson quoted FBI sources as saying the $10,000 was passed by a Milk Producers official to lobbyist Jake Jacobsen, who delivered it to Connally.

Jacobsen is under indictment for perjury after testifying that he stashed the $10,000 in a safe deposit box and never removed it until the FBI opened the box last November.

The indictment by a Watergate grand jury said Jacobsen claimed the money "was to be paid to a public official for his assistance" in getting President Nixon to raise federal milk price supports in March, 1971.

Taxpayers not being advised of rights, official claims

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service often fails to advise taxpayers of their rights at the beginning of a tax dispute, and many times misinforms when it does, a tax court commissioner says.

The IRS realizes this first contact is the most important, yet the agency often leaves a citizen puzzled, said U.S. Tax Court Commissioner Joseph N. Ingolia. He testified at a hearing on taxes held by a enate Appropriations subcommittee.

Ingolia said that when the IRS audits a return and an aspect is questioned, the taxpayer is sent a form letter or is called by an agent.

"He is not advised of his rights to go to the courts at this time but instead is invited to discuss or settle his problem usually by bringing in additional information.

"It seems clear that when the first contact is made with the taxpayer, there is no desire to inform him that he may go to court rather than discuss settlement. This is so because the IRS believes settlement is the current answer, but is this fair to the taxpayer? I think not," Ingolia said.

He said that when the IRS does advise the taxpayer of the tax court option, it often tells them such a course would be time consuming and expensive. But, he said, for small cases, the court usually takes an hour for a $10 fee.

He also said IRS does not clear up the misconception of many taxpayers that the tax court is an arm of the IRS.

Also appearing before the subcommittee was a former revenue agent now head of the tax agency employe's union who said IRS agents work under a quota system for closing cases.

Vincent L. Connery, president of the National Treasury Employe's Union, said the collection division of IRS is more concerned with the number of cases closed "with little or no regard to the effects of the orders on the individual taxpayer.

"Revenue officers are oftentimes rewarded for seizing a taxpayer's assets and severely disciplined if they permit him to remain in business and repay his debt to the federal government: part payment plans do not close cases," Connery said.

Both sides expecting gains from Nixon's Michigan trip

SAGINAW, Mich. (AP) — Both Republicans and Democrats expect their congressional election campaigns to get a boost when President Nixon barnstorms this heavily Republican district in rural northeast Michigan today.

Republican candidate James Sparling insists Nixon is coming to explain his policies rather than campaign for him. He needs a heavy turnout in the small towns the President is visiting to win Tuesday's special election.

The district has been held by the GOP for 40 years.

Democrat J. Robert Traxler, the early favorite in the race now believed to be quite close, has made Nixon and his administration the major issue. He feels the President's visit will illustrate his contention that Sparling is "Nixon's stand-in."

Nixon himself may have the biggest stake.

He hopes to give Sparling a boost toward a victory that could ease impeachment pressure among House Republicans, who are shaken by three Democratic victories this year in special elections for House seats previously held by Republicans.

Nixon's five-hour visit marks his first participation in an election campaign since his own re-election effort in 1972.

The President flys from Washington to a rally at the Tri-City Airport between the district's population centers of Saginaw and Bay City. He then travels by helicopter to this farming area for a motorcade.

From Bad Axe to Sandusky, a distance of 57 miles, friendly crowds were expected along Nixon's route. It marks the first visit by any president to this area and has become an occasion for civic pride.

Sparling, who had said he "cannot and will not defend the actions of the President," said in an interview Tuesday night he fears the trip's format won't permit Nixon to discuss issues such as inflation, the energy crisis and the economy.

"That's what I want," said the 45-year-old former newsman who was top aide to former Rep. James Harvey for 13 years.

Earlier Tuesday, as he waited to greet women workers outside the Wolverine Knitting Mill in Bay City, Traxler said the President "clearly defines what the election is about.

"It's about unemployment, the cost of living, Watergate and the honest payment of income taxes," the 42-year-old state representative said. "His being here just joins the issue for me."

Sparling, who says the record of the Nixon administration is a "false issue," spotlights his years as Harvey's aide and criticizes Traxler's absentee record in the Michigan House.

The 213,600 registered voters, meanwhile, are showing little outward interest in the campaign.

The most common element in the universe is hydrogen, which makes up 90 per cent of all matter.

Red Cross makes appeal for disaster relief funds

Gov. John Gilligan has urged Ohioans to "generously provide funds through their local Red Cross" for the relief of Southwestern Ohio tornado victims.

He has appointed the American National Red Cross as the official volunteer disaster agency in the area.

The Fayette County Red Cross chapter, 323 Gregg St., is appealing for direct cash contributions. It has been able to respond to inquiries concerning 21 families, 17 of which have been reported safe. Four inquiries are still pending notification from Xenia.

Since the devastating tornado struck Southwestern Ohio, the American Red Cross has met the emergency needs of some 27,000 people affected by the storms and continues to feed 30,000 people daily, including victims, relief workers, National Guardsmen and others.

Four hundred people have received first aid for minor injuries and 100 for major injuries.

In Columbus, a total of 300 volunteers have been manning telephones and operating radio communications from early morning until late evening to handle the more than 3,600 disaster welfare inquiries.

A Red Cross mass feeding committee has been responsible for serving these volunteers, and food has been contributed by Deibels, Wendys, Arbys, Borden Burger and McDonald's.

The Red Cross requests those who have called to inquire about relatives in tornado stricken areas, and have since heard from them directly or through some means other than the Red Cross, should call the Red Cross and cancel their inquiry.

Walkout hits Borg Warner

MANSFIELD, Ohio (AP)—Officials on both sides Tuesday refused to confirm that a wildcat strike was triggered by suspension of two union workers from the Borg Warner vitrous china plant in suburban Ontario.

Union and management met after night shift workers staged a walkout at 4 a.m. The plant's 280 members of International Union of Electrical Workers Local 719 refused to cross picket lines.

New Holland to beautify village park

NEW HOLLAND — The New Holland Area Chamber of Commerce park and recreation committee along with the New Holland American Legion auxiliary and the Pic-Fay Garden Club have purchased pink and red flowering crab for the village park.

William Davidson, secretary-treasurer, said 22 trees will be planted around the perimeter of the lake. He said this will add to spring color and also afford a sanctuary and food for birds and other wildlife during the year.

A master plan is being followed to include tennis courts and other facilities in the park area.

Canada cracks down on U.S. beef

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Canada has cracked down on the $100 million U.S. beef export market by requiring certification that imports contain none of the growth hormone DES.

The order, which also applies to live animals, was announced Monday by the Canadian government. It requires that imports, including beef, veal, lamb and mutton, be certified by the government of the country of origin that the products never contained DES.

But Agriculture Department officials say federal certification that meat had always been free of DES are not practicable and that farmers themselves are the only ones who can say with certainty the chemical was not used.

The Food and Drug Administration banned DES — diethylstilbestrol — from use as a livestock growth booster more than a year ago. But a U.S. District Court recently held the order was illegal. Thus, DES now is permitted as a livestock feed additive or as an implant in the animal's body.

Federal meat inspectors still monitor products for illegal traces of the chemical, which can show up in slaughtered carcasses if animals are not withdrawn from DES soon enough before they are marketed.

Department officials said Tuesday they did not know to what extend livestock producers have returned to DES in their operations. Thus, one said, it is "virtually impossible" to estimate how much meat shipped to Canada might come from animals which had been exposed to the chemical.

Canada is the largest foreign market for U.S. beef and slaughter cattle. In calendar 1973, sales of cattle for slaughter in Canada totaled 185,300 head worth about $71.2 million, up from 61,359 head valued at $18.7 million in 1972.

Also last year, USDA officials said, Canada bought about 35 million pounds of U.S. beef valued at $36 million. That compared with 34.5 million pounds worth $29.4 million in 1972.

Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Clayton Yeutter said Tuesday in a statement that he was "extremely disappointed" by the Canadian action and that it constituted an embargo on U.S. cattle and beef products.

"Canada has insisted that it can only accept certification by a full-time U.S. government employe who has periodically visited the ranches and feedlots from which the live animals or meat originated to insure that DES has never been fed the animals to stimulate their growth," Yeutter said.

The department head proposed Canada accept certification by individual U.S. livestock producers and to accept federal inspection and monitoring programs as guarantee meat is free of the chemical.

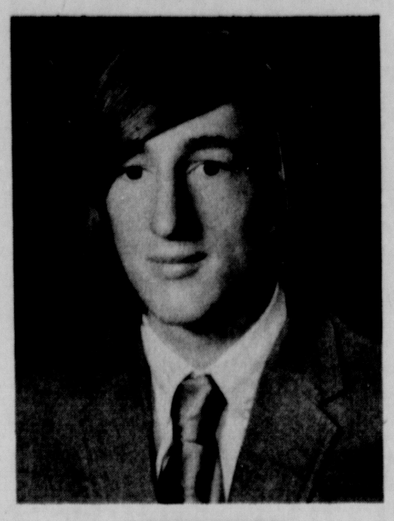

"Canada has rejected this proposal creating an impasse in our efforts to resolve this issue through negotiations," Yeutter said.

An Editorial

Dress code policy eyed

Well here's your old Blue Lines editor at work again! This time, the dress code policy needs to be discussed. I'm not going to go into any great detail but just touch on some main points.

The dress code policy at Washington Senior High School has been a major topic of discussion for quite a while and nothing positive seems to have been done about it.

Now, for the first time, a real interest is being taking in changing board policy and someting is being done. The present dress code, while not allowing beards and mustaches, which is the main topic, is set up with the minority and not the majority in mind. What I mean by the minority is maybe 10 or 20 students and not one-fourth or more. It is the majority that counts in our form of government and the majority wants beards and mustaches allowed in the dress code.

It is said that beards and-or mustaches are distracting to the educational process. Just ask any student and I don't think you'll find one who doesn't want them allowed. An investigation of the dress code policy is now underway and has been for a while. The purpose of this is to prepare for the annual spring review of dress code policies and I fully expect the code to be revised. It will be a long anticipated and welcome change! Oh, by the way. Any comment from the public is welcomed!

Hi-Co groups campaigning for better access to lake

GREENFIELD — At least two Highland County groups have launched a drive to promote improvements of access to the soon-to-be-filled Paint Creek Lake.

Concern of both the Highland County Regional Planning Commission and the Greenfield Paint Creek Lake Association is Rapid Forge Road, one of the primary routes from Greenfield to the lake area.

Noting that the road is "unsafe and impassable," both groups say there is need for assistance in improving the road. Highland County commissioners will be asked to present a proposal to Ross County's commissioners for improvements.

Increased use of the road by sightseers and use by the Greenfield fire department and buses of the Greenfield Exempted Village School District were cited among primary reasons for the needed improvement.

Dedication ceremonies are scheduled for Saturday, June 15 at the dam site with Rep. William H. Harsha (R-Ohio) as the featured speaker.

Militants object of IRS attention

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service until recently was prepared to audit the taxes of anyone attending a rock festival or burning his draft card, according to an IRS internal memo.

The memo was made public Tuesday by Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr., R-Conn. It is a January 1973 status report on a what was called a special compliance group set up inside IRS to collect intelligence information on all persons or groups advocating so-called extremist views.

The unit was set up in the first year of the Nixon administration and by 1973, according to the memo, had amassed 8,000 files on individuals and 3,000 on organizations. It had collected 12,000 classified documents and had compiled a list of 16,000 groups or individuals "who fall into the category of posing a threat and probability of tax violations," the IRS memo said.

"The magnitude and potential of this facility is unlimited," the memo said. "A recent audit supports the conclusion that this function offers high potential as a deterrent to widespread tax violation by activist groups."

The memo was signed by John J. Flynn, regional commissioner of the North Atlantic region of the IRS. It was addressed to IRS directors.

The document said that the IRS was collecting information, with the help of law enforcement agencies, on so-called violent groups.

It also said that members of non-violent groups also were being included.

"Included are those who publicly destroy and burn draft cards, destroy Selective Service records, participate in and organize May Day demonstrations, organize and attend rock festivals which attract youth and narcotics..." the memo said.

It also said IRS agents were interested in the tax returns of those aiding in the sale of firearms to the Irish Republican Army, who travel to Cuba, Algeria or North Vietnam or who are engaged in "inciting commotion and resistance to authority by encouraging defectors in the Armed Forces to enter into alliances to subvert this nation..." the memo said.

Weicker said Monday that the special unit was dismantled in August 1973 at the same time that allegations were being made before the Senate Watergate committee that the White House had used the IRS to benefit President Nixon's friends and to punish his political "enemies."

Boating safety slogans eligible for Ohio prizes

COLUMBUS — Ohioans can compete for valuable prizes and help the boating public at the same time in a statewide boating safety slogan contest being sponsored by the division of watercraft of the Ohio Department of Natural Resources.

Division Chief Thomas Smith said the contest is part of a program to make Ohioans aware of the need for boating safety and to reduce the growing number of boating accidents and deaths.

Winning slogans will be used on safety posters and in other division safety promotional activities.

Smith said the contest is open to Ohioans of any age, except employes of the Department of Natural Resources. Entries are being accepted now.

There will be 60 prize winners, 10 each from the state's six boating districts. Winners will be ranked first through 10th place in each district.

THE SLOGANS will be centered around the division's nautical cartoon character, Commodore Buckeye. The slogan format will be: "Commodore buckeye says. . . (slogan)." Slogans must be 10 words or less, not including the lead-in.

Slogans must be postmarked no later than May 31. They should be sent to the Division of Watercraft, Ohio Department of Natural Resources, Fountain Square, Columbus 43224. Entries should have the name, address (including county) and telephone number of the person entering the contest.

A panel of judges in each district will select the winning slogans on the basis of originality, appropriateness and aptness of thought. The judges will be teachers and representatives of the commercial boating industry, boat clubs, marine patrols, newspapers and broadcast media.

Slogan writers will compete for a variety of prizes, including water skis, boat fire extinguishers and other equipment. The prizes will be donated by marine dealers.

Winners will be announced in June and will be honored at an awards banquet.

More information can be obtained from the division's Columbus office or from any of the six district offices.

The district offices are at 1500 Dublin Rd., Columbus; Grand Lake St. Mary's State Park, Celina; Salt Fork State Park, Cambridge; West Branch State Park, Ravenna; Geneva State Park, Geneva-on-the-Lake and East Harbor State Park, Lakeside.

Arab oil flows into U.S. again

WASHINGTON (AP) — A big tanker-load of Arab oil has reached the United States in the first major shipment received since the lifting last month of the Arab oil embargo.

The Federal Energy Office announced Tuesday that the Italian tanker Elba Lolligeiti has arrived at Norfolk, Va., carrying 344,000 barrels of crude oil from Algeria.

Exxon Corp. said its own initial shipment of Mideast oil since resumption of Arab supplies — 50,000 barrels of crude aboard the Esso Barcelona — was due to arrive today in New York Harbor.

Anticipating the renewed availability of Arab oil, the FEO has told U.S. petroleum companies to draw upon current inventories to boost gasoline allocations for the month of April.

Meanwhile, the American Automobile Association said its latest survey shows that motorists will find it easier to obtain gasoline this week, but they will probably be paying more per gallon.

The AAA's weekly spot check of some 6,000 service stations across the nation found that since the week before, the average price of regular gasoline has climbed a penny to 54 cents a gallon. Premium average 57 cents per gallon, the survey reported.

Highest average prices for regular gas were 56 cents in Hawaii, Illinois, New York and South Carolina while peak prices for premium reached 60 cents a gallon in Illinois, New York and Hawaii, according to the AAA.

In other energy-related developments:

—Federal energy chief William E. Simon said the Environmental Protection Agency is too restrictive in its standards for utilities which convert to coal for generating electricity. He said EPA policy will not encourage increased use and production of coal.

—Deputy energy chief John C. Sawhill said more federal funds may be required to offset the impact of rising fuel costs on the aged.

—The House Ways and Means Committee voted to retain the 22 per cent depletion allowance for natural gas shipped across state lines.

Japanese commuters stranded

TOKYO (AP) — Workers on the Japan National Railway began a four-day strike today, forcing 8 million commuters to find other transport or stay home.

Another 5 million commuters were delayed by a slowdown of transport workers who had not yet struck.

Some 6½ million government and private employes were scheduled to strike Thursday for 24 to 72 hours, stopping almost all rail, bus and taxi services.

Japan's 260,000 telephone and telegraph workers and 200,000 postal employes struck Tuesday. The dock workers were holding meetings to decide whether to join the walkout Thursday.

The government lined up convoys of trucks to haul foodstuffs to major population centers, and the National Police Agency said it mobilized 340,000 men to maintain order and direct the increased automobile traffic expected.

The strikes are part of Japanese labor's annual spring offensive for higher pay.

Sub base under fire

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. nuclear submarine base on Scotland's Holy Loch came under attack in the House of Commons Tuesday. A Scottish Nationalist and a Labor member reminded Defense Secretary Roy Mason that the Labor party had made a campaign pledge to close down the base. But a Conservative member from Scotland, George Younger, said that to represent that the Scots were opposed to the base was "a travesty of the truth."

Convention spending shows big increase

ATLANTIC CITY (AP) — An estimated $90 million is expected to be spent by convention visitors here in 1974, according to the local Convention Bureau.

This is an increase of about $15 million over 1973.

The higher figure is based on an anticipated increase of some 50,000 convention visitors over 1973, pushing the total attendance figure close to or, perhaps, past the record level of 1970.

In 1974 the city will have approximately 400 conventions of all sizes.

Boost sugar power

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — "I am helping the United States to conserve energy," said Ambassador Radha Krishna Ramphul of Mauritius as he arrived Tuesday for the special General Assembly on raw materials in a horse carriage rented from the Central Park fleet. A sign on the coach said "Sugar Power" and Ramphul explained: "Here you find nuclear powers, superpowers, oil powers, major powers and minor powers. We are a sugar power — 93 per cent of our exports are sugar."

Padres poor in 9-5 defeat

By The Associated Press

The San Diego Padres are leaving a sour taste in the mouth of their new owner that even some of his own garnished hamburgers can't erase.

Ray Kroc, the McDonald's burger tycoon, is finding out that he may be the king of baseball's hamburgers rather than the hamburger king and he sounded off publicly while his Padres were being chewed up by the Houston Astros in their home opener Tuesday night.

Kroc grabbed the public address system with the Padres trailing 9-2 in the eighth inning.

"Ladies and gentlemen, I suffer with you," he told a crowd of 39,083, second largest in San Diego's history. "I've never seen such stupid baseball playing in my life."

He was interrupted when a naked man jumped out of the stands and dashed across the field.

The winless Padres woke up long enough to score three runs in the eighth, but lost 9-5, their fourth straight defeat.

Elsewhere in the National League, the Atlanta Braves, minus Hank Aaron, were shelled by the Los Angeles Dodgers 9-2; the Cincinnati Reds defeated the previously unbeaten San Francisco Giants 6-3 and the Chicago Cubs finally opened their season by blanking the Philadelphia Phillies 2-0.

Bad weather postponed the Montreal-Pittsburgh and St. Louis-New York games.

Cesar Cedeno drove in four runs and Larry Dierker, battling back from arm and shoulder problems, held San Diego to six hits and two runs in seven innings.

Dodgers 9, Braves 2

Aaron didn't play any baseball Tuesday night...and his 13 Atlanta teammates who got in the line-up didn't play much, either. With the game's all-time home run king and his record-breaking bat sitting it out following Monday night's historic 715th home run, the Braves were no match for Los Angeles.

The 40-year-old Aaron was held out because of cold weather. Rookie Rowland Office took his place in the Atlanta outfield and managed a single in four trips against Don Sutton and Mike Marshall, who held the Braves to seven hits, including Dave Johnson's first home run of the season.

Cubs 2, Phillies 0

After having their first two scheduled games postponed in Montreal, the Cubs came home and defeated the Phillies behind Bill Bonham's four-hit, nine-strikeout pitching, his first major league shutout.

Bonham held the Phils hitless until pitcher Ron Schueler's one-out scratch single in the sixth.

Bonham became a key man in Chicago's pitching rotation when the Cubs traded Ferguson Jenkins last winter.

Cincinnati Reds defeat Giants, 6-3

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds are best known for their awesome batting attack, yet Manager Sparky Anderson points to their pitching as the key to the club's 1974 pennant plans.

Despite a solid 15-hit attack in Tuesday night's 6-3 victory over the previously unbeaten San Francisco Giants, Anderson praised his bullpen following Pedro Borbon's three-inning shutout stint.

Anderson, whose Reds concluded the three-game series with the Giants this afternoon, had good reason to rave about his relievers—they haven't allowed a run in 20 1-3 innings this season.

"Batting can't carry you," Anderson said. "If it could, teams like Pittsburgh and Boston would have won lots of pennants in recent years.

"A solid bullpen is the key," he continued. "In this league, games are won from the seventh inning on. Everyone has tough hitters, so you've got to be able to go into the hole and stop people.

"That's how the Mets got to the World Series last year and that's how the Dodgers will be right up there this September," he added. "With those starters and Mike Marshall and Jim Brewer in the bullpen, they don't need much hitting."

Anderson, of course, feels the Reds will be in the race, too, especially if the four-man relief crew of righthanders Borbon and Clay Carroll and southpaws Tom Hall and Fred Norman come through.

"I'm going to be using my bullpen a lot more this season," Anderson said. "I'm fortunate to have flexibility with two lefties and two righties, so I'm going to make use of it."

The Reds broke a 3-3 tie off loser Tom Bradley, 1-1, with a run in the sixth. Cesar Geromino opened with a triple. Bradley bore down and fired called third strikes past pitcher Jack Billingham, 1-0, and Pete Rose.

Joe Morgan then grounded a single to left, scoring Geromino with the go-ahead run. Borbon blanked the Giants over the last three innings for his first save of the season and Cincinnati added two runs in the ninth.

Rose, hooted by Giants fans each time he came to bat, finished with three hits for the game, giving him a 5-game total of 11.

"Maybe it's because they think Bobby Bonds should have been the MVP last season," Rose said. "The booing didn't make me bear down more, I always bear down. But it did make me feel better when I got a hit."

Tony Perez contributed a two-run homer in the first inning, giving him three homers and nine RBIs this season. Garry Maddox belted a double and a single for the Giants, extending his hitting streak to 16 games.

Rose on Reds poster

CINCINNATI — Pete Rose, the peppery Reds' captain who has batted over .300 for the past nine seasons, will be the subject of this year's Cincinnati Reds poster.

The full color, two-foot by three-foot wall poster will be given away free to everyone, 21 and under, entering a paying gate on Sunday, June 2 when the Reds meet the Pittsburgh Pirates at Riverfront Stadium.

This year's poster captures Rose as he rounds second base after hitting his dramatic 12th inning home run that beat the New York Mets in the fourth game of the Championship Series last year.

Highlight of the picture is Rose's clenched fist, held triumphantly in the air.

The poster is the fifth in a series of individuals and sixth overall that the Reds have produced. It will fit right into the collection of the previous posters.

The Poster Day game against the Pirates climaxes a six-game homestand. The Mets make their first appearance at Riverfront for three games on May 27, 28 and 29. The Pirates are in for games May 31, June 1 and 2.

LEBANON, Ohio (AP) — Sterling Mix claimed the featured mile pace at Lebanon Tuesday night, though overshadowed by a $569.80 daily double payoff.

Yankees blank Tigers 3-0

By The Associated Press

The people in Tiger Stadium seem to have the impression that streaking is something you do with your clothes off. The New York Yankees have a different idea.

While one nude man was swinging from the scoreboard in center field and another scampered across the outfield without his pants, the Yankees were extending a streak of their own with a 3-0 victory over the Tigers Tuesday afternoon.

The victory was the fourth in as many contests for New York, marking the first time since 1945 the team has gone unbeaten in the baseball season's opening four games.

Elsewhere in the American League, the Minnesota Twins tripped the Chicago White Sox 3-1, the Oakland A's clipped the Kansas City Royals 6-4, and the Texas Rangers bombed the California Angels 10-2.

The Milwaukee-Cleveland and Baltimore-Boston games were postponed by bad weather.

Yankee pitchers Steve Kline, Fred Beene and Sparky Lyle held the Tigers to eight hits, handed pitching ace Mickey Lolich his second loss in two starts this season, and ruined the home opener in chilly Detroit before a crowd of 44,047.

Lou Piniella's first-inning single drove in two runs, and New York added a run in the seventh on Roy White's double and Elliott Maddox' single.

Twins 3, White Sox 1

Rod Carew backed a strong pitching performance by Bert Blyleven with two singles, two stolen bases and two runs scored in Minnesota's victory over Chicago.

In eight innings, Blyleven scattered seven hits and struck out 10, but tired in the ninth and gave way to reliever Bill Campbell.

Carew built Twins runs in the first and second innings by singling and stealing second. He scored first on a sacrifice fly by Harmon Killebrew and later on a double by Bobby Darwin.

A's 6, Royals 4

Joe Rudi's third double of the game came with two outs in the ninth inning, driving in two runs and giving Oakland its triumph over Kansas City.

With the bases loaded, Rudi hit the first pitch from reliever Lindy McDaniel to right field.

Sal Bando's first home run of the season had given the A's a 4-3 lead in the top of the sixth, but Kansas City came back to tie in its half of the inning.

Rangers 10, Angels 2

California's Nolan Ryan, who issued 10 walks over eight innings in his first start, continued to have control trouble and ended up on the short end of a 10-2 score Tuesday.

Ryan walked the first three batters in the second inning. Then Joe Lovitto scored two with a double and Rich Billings walked before Dave Nelson and Toby Harrah delivered runscoring singles to knock out Ryan.

Lee Stanton homered for the Angels.

Larry Laub leads bowling winners

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—The 1974 Professional Bowlers Association winter tour has come to an end and Larry Laub of Santa Rosa, Calif., is at the top of the money list.

Laub won $49,260 in 13 stops during the 14 tournament season. Laub finished fifth in the $125,000 Tournament of Champions last week and collected $4,000 to push him into the lead.

Jim Stefanich of Joliet, Ill., who led the money list until last week finished second with $47,505.

New league draws NFL players

By The Associated Press

National Football League players, already yielding to the call of the World Football League in the sometimes frozen North, are now signing on for the WFL's franchise in the balmy Pacific—Hawaii.

"How can anyone turn all this down?" asked Mike Giddings coach of the Hawaiians, glancing around Tuesday at the dramatic setting provided by Diamond Head and Honolulu as he announced the signing of Dallas Cowboy running back Calvin Hill to a WFL contract.

The Hawaiians made a whole day out of making announcements, also breaking the news that New York Giants quarterback Randy Johnson and Jim Sniadecki, San Francisco 49er linebacker since 1969, would join Hawaii after playing out their options in 1974.

The signings were part of the NFL exodus which has included Miami Dolphin stars Larry Csonka, Jim Kiick and Paul Warfield to Toronto, Ted Kwalick to the Hawaiians and Ken Stabler to the Birmingham franchise.

"We view this as a chance of a lifetime," said Hill, who will play out his option with the Cowboys in 1974. "It was a question of what was better for me and my family."

There were indications that Dallas Coach Tom Landry might be in for more bad news. A Houston radio station, KPRC, reported that Craig Morton, discontent in the past over his status as the No. 2 Dallas quarterback, has signed with the WFL Houston Texans.

The Texans had earlier Tuesday acquired the WFL rights to negotiate with Morton from Birmingham.

Johnson, the No. 2 signal caller for the Giants, became the fourth Giant to announce his intentions to migrate to Hawaii following John Douglas, Richmond Flowers and Vin Clements.

The Giants' tight end Bob Tucker also was being lured to move to the new league. Team sources on the Philadelphia Bell said Tuesday that Tucker had been offered a three-year $500,000 contract.

Even the coaching ranks were not out of reach for the fledgling football league.

Kansas City Chiefs Coach Hank Stram said he had been approached about becoming the coach of the Houston Texans.

There were reports that the Texans had offered Stram a $2 million deal, with part ownership included in a 10-year package.

The New York Stars announced the signing of Don Gault, a former quarterback for the Cleveland Browns and two other ex-NFL players, Tom Sherman, formerly with New England, and Dick Hart, a former guard for the Philadelphia Eagles. The Stars also said they had signed Don Abbey, a running back for Penn State in the late 1960s.

Meanwhile, there was some good news in Miami. Tight end Jim Mandich and safety Jake Scott signed three-year contracts for an estimated combined price of $650,000.

WCH track team loses to Hillsboro 79-48

The Washington C.H. track team dropped its second track meet in a row Tuesday evening. The culprit this trip was Hillsboro. Dick Roth's tracksters lost in total points 79-48. Hillsboro was strong in the running events with Washington C.H. taking four of the five field events.

Chuck Wilson was leading point getter for the Lions with two first and one second. Tom Allen took a first in the high hurdles and Greg Marti grapped a first place finish in the pole vault. In all the Lions took five firsts, six seconds and six thirds.

Boston Celtics beat Braves in NBA playoff, 100-97

By The Associated Press

Would you believe Bob McAdoo, the National Basketball Association scoring champion, a scared player?

It happened Tuesday night— and because of it, his Buffalo Braves were beaten by the Boston Celtics.

"I was as nervous as I've ever been," McAdoo admitted unabashedly after scoring a mere 16 points on a woeful five-for-20 shooting performance from the floor and six of nine from the free throw line during the Braves' 100-97 loss that gave the Celtics a 3-2 lead in the best-of-seven Eastern Conference semifinal series.

"I guess it's what you'd call pressure," said the 6-foot-10 McAdoo, who had averaged 30.6 points per game during the regular season and 33 points in the first four games against the Celtics. "I tried to concentrate on my defense and not worry about offense."

In the only other pro basketball playoff game Tuesday night, the Chicago Bulls built a 25-point second-quarter lead, then withstood a late Detroit rally and beat the Pistons 98-94 for a 3-2 lead in their best-of-seven NBA Western Conference semifinal series.

Two playoff games are scheduled tonight. The New York Knicks, with a 3-2 lead over Capital in their NBA East semifinal, face the Bullets at Landover, Md.; and the Indiana Pacers, leading San Antonio 3-2 in their American Basketball Association West Division semifinal, meet the Spurs in Texas.

The Utah Stars, in the West, and the New York Nets and Kentucky Colonels, in the East, already have advanced to the divisional finals in the ABA.

The Milwaukee Bucks are the only NBA team to have reached the conference finals so far, eliminating the Los Angeles Lakers in the West.

McAdoo, also the NBA's third leading rebounder during the season with a 15.1 average, managed only 10 rebounds in his sub-par effort against the Celtics.

Nicklaus looms over Masters

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — There's Johnny Miller and the youth threat.

There's Gary Player and the foreigners.

There's Tom Weiskopf and defending champion Tommy Aaron.

There's Arnold Palmer and Sam Snead.

But over and above them all looms the awesome figure of Jack Nicklaus, the domineering character in the international cast assembled for the 38th Masters Golf Tournament.

The 72-hole tee, generally acknowledged as one of the world's premier sports events, gets underway Thursday on flower-bedecked Augusta National Golf Course.

An elite field of 79 of the world's best shotmakers—including 13 foreign players, 11 American amateurs and 55 U.S. professionals—are primed to test the 7,020-yard par-72 layout.

The powerful Nicklaus, considered by many to be the finest player the game has ever seen, has won this tournament four times, a record he shares with Arnold Palmer. And in his last three starts here he's been second, first and third, in that order.

"My goals are always the same," said the Golden Bear, who had collected a record 14 major championship titles. "They're the big four tournaments (the Masters, U.S. and British Opens and the PGA.)"

Miller, 26, who won the U.S. Open last year, has dominated the regular tour this year. He scored a record sweep of the first three titles of the year and is the year's leading money winner with almost $150,000—a record for this stage of the season.

Among the other young stars are:

—Jerry Heard, golf's whistling man, who won the Citrus Open, then finished second and third in his next two starts;

—Hubert Green, a two-time winner this year;

—John Mahaffey, who hasn't won this season but has finished second twice, third and fourth once;

—Lanny Wadkins, who set money-winning records in each of his first two seasons on the tour and is one of the game's most fiercely competitive players, and

—Ben Crenshaw, the young Texan who has finished second twice this year and hit the tour with more impact than any rookie since Nicklaus.

Player of South African is one of only four men to win all the world's major titles. He heads a strong foreign field including Australian Bruce Crampton, Tony Jacklin and Peter Oosterhuis of England and Bob Charles of New Zealand.

Philadelphia tops Flames in NHL tilt

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Flyers delivered a message to the Atlanta Flames Tuesday night—to win in the Stanley Cup Playoffs you have to attack as well as defend.

"They didn't challenge us," said Philadelphia Coach Fred Shero after his team posted a 4-1 victory to take a 1-0 lead in the best-of-seven first round National Hockey League playoff series.

Atlanta played the Flyers to a 2-2-2 standstill during the regular season, but they were never a threat in the nationally-televised game. The Flames at times appeared to be sleepwalking, unable to get the puck out of their own zone.

As the Flyers' Barry Ashbee put it, "the one goal they (Atlanta) scored was a fluke." It came with the score 3-0, on a 50-footer by Bob Murray.

In World Hockey League playoff action, the Toronto Toros edged the Cleveland Crusaders 4-3 and the Chicago Cougars beat the New England Whalers 8-6.

Shero's Flyers had won the West Division title with aggressive offensive play, backed up by superior goaltending from Bernie Parent. The Flames wound up fourth in the West, playing a defensive style that featured sitting on the puck until they got a scoring break.

Tribe set for opener with Brewers

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland Indian Manager Ken Aspromonte said he felt fine as the Tribe prepared for their scheduled home opener against the Milwaukee Brewers today.

The Indians had an unexpected day of rest after losing their first three games to the New York Yankees. Snow forced the Indians to cancel the previous opener set for Tuesday.

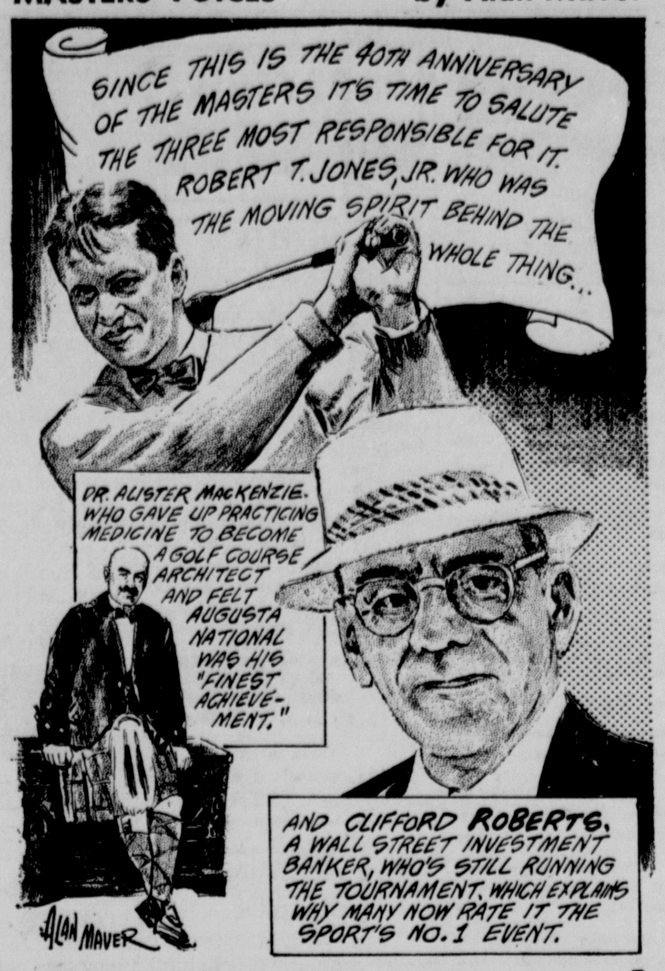

If the weather holds up today — the forecast is for clear skies and temperatures in the mid-40s — the Indians will be seeking their first victory behind Jim Perry. Perry was acquired from the Detroit Tigers three weeks ago. He finished last season in Detroit 14-13.

Milwaukee split their first two games of the 1974 season and will be sending Clyde Wright, who was 11-19 last year, to the mound.

"Everything is fine," Aspromonte said. "I can't do much about not getting the pitching and the hitting at the right time. Our defense collapsed when we needed them. That should be enough to explain our problems in New York."

Aspromonte, who is beginning his third year as field marshal of the Tribe, added, "we are a much better ball club then we've shown so far. It was just one of those things in New York. We'll straighten out pretty soon."

MASTERS VOICES by Alan Maver

Three teams erased from cage activities

Three teams were eliminated from the second annual Sabina Lions Club invitational basketball tournament Tuesday night. Two more teams will be erased from action Wednesday night as two of the three games are in the losers bracket and one in the winners bracket.

Tuesday's card saw Charles Electric, behind a 20 point performance from Dan Pursley and a 16 point output from Mason, Prater and Pursley, downed Conchemco 81-67. Jake Jordan scored 30 points for the losers.

In the second game Superior Carpet kept its hopes alive defeating Carmac Sunoco 110-86. Phil Snow led the winners with 30 points and Dale Jones and Junior Rollins scored 24 and 23 points respectively. Sam Radel and Jack Fisher scored 24 and 26 points for the losers.

In the final game of the night Welsh's Drainage defeated Sabina Bank. Mike Henry led the winners with 29 points and Steve Stewart supported him with 19. Bob Lanman and Dean Snow led the losers with 19 and 16 points.

Wednesday's games start at 6 p.m. with Charles Electric going against Superior Carpet. At 7:30 Welsh's Drainage tangles with Creditt's Construction and at 9 p.m. Harris Auction meets Porter Hybrid in the winners bracket.

Mark Orr named top MAC athlete

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Western Michigan University center fielder Mark Orr, who slammed four homers and drove in six runs in four games, has been named MidAmerican Conference Spring Athlete of the Week.

The 5-foot-10, 170-pound senior from Detroit went 6-for-14 and accounted for 18 total bases as the Broncos swept four games from the University of Louisville.

TRACTOR CLUB

The last meeting of any meeting is always the toughest to report. And so it is with the 4-H Fayette County Tractor Club. Our books were turned in to be graded and safety speeches were given by all members over 14 years of age. The younger members handed in written reports.

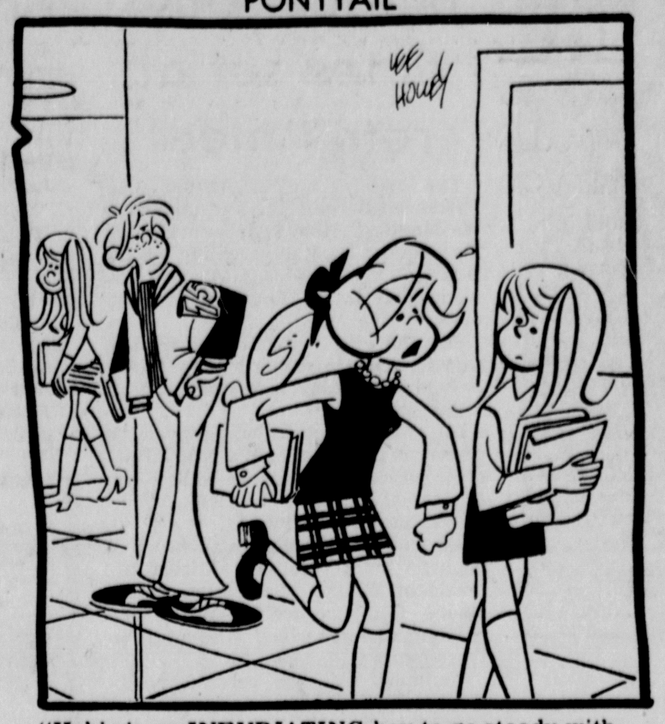

Plans were made for the June 2nd Tractor Rodeo. In this rodeo, club members will test their skill and safety in the operation of farm machinery.

The tractor club would like to thank all advisers for their interest and support of a job well done, they are: Messers Frank Dill, Jim Garland, Joe Geesling, John Hiser and Lowell Woods. Also, lots o' thanks to all of the dealers (Case Power & Equipment, Fenton, Greenline, & Krieger) for helping the club by providing a meeting place and refreshments.

Plans to be with your Fayette County Tractor Club at the Fairgrounds on June 2 for our Tractor Rodeo or (Rain Date for June 9).

Medical Terms: Shorthand

I never heard of "pernio" until my doctor said my son had it.

How do doctors come up with such strange-sounding names?

Mr. T.N., Fla.

Dear Mr. N.:

Medical terminology often sounds strange and confusing. In reality, a complex-sounding name may be shorthand to describe a total medical condition.

For example, a tongue-twister like "subacute bacterial endocarditis" brings to the doctor's mind a portrait of a disease that would take twenty pages of description.

"Subacute" describes a condition somewhere between "acute" and "chronic." "Bacterial" refers to the invading germ. "Endocarditis" is an inflammation and infection of the inner lining of the walls of the heart.

Medical terms are not deliberately meant to confuse the laity, nor to give an air of pomposity. Each scientific discipline has its own technical jargon which is reserved for easy communication between those who work in a specific scientific area.

Now this seems to be a far cry from your original question of "pernio." Actually, I took advantage of your letter to give readers a better insight into the reasons for complex-sounding terminology.

"Pernio" is more commonly known as "chillblain." Severe itching and burning of the skin, followed by tiny blisters, may be caused by water seeping into the shoes over the tops of even waterproof boots.

The apparent protection of waterproof boots is not enough to keep the feet from being drenched after long exposure to rain or snow.

The unpleasant and often painful effects of pernio can be avoided if children and adults are instructed to remove their boots quickly when the feet are saturated.

It is important, too, that the lining be absolutely dry when they are used again.

Is it safe to use hormone cream to remove excess hair on the face?

Miss R.A., Penn.

Dear Miss A.:

The promiscuous use of hormones in creams, lotions and ointments must be avoided.

It is amazing how much of the hormone can be absorbed into the system through the skin.

It is for this reason that hormones must be used only when prescribed by a physician.

The condition "hirsutism" (excess hair) may have a number of different causes, each of which should be investigated and ruled out.

Fire Association votes to adopt 'associates' plan

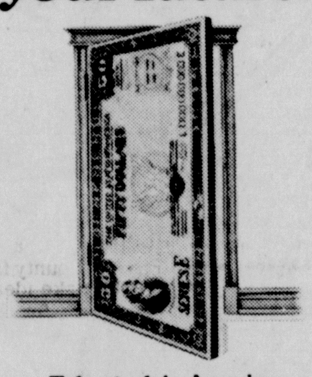

The Washington C. H. Firemen's Association, meeting this week, voted to accept associate memberships from men 18 years of age and over beginning in May. New volunteer firemen probably will be chosen from this group.

The object of an associate membership is to become exposed to the Fire Department before being hired or becoming a volunteer.

Applications for associate memberships may be picked up at the Fire Department after May 1. Associate members will receive first aid training, community fire defense training and training involving special disaster situations.

It was announced at the meeting that the association made a profit of $260.98 on its lambburger concession at the Dorset Sheep Sale here March 22 and 23.

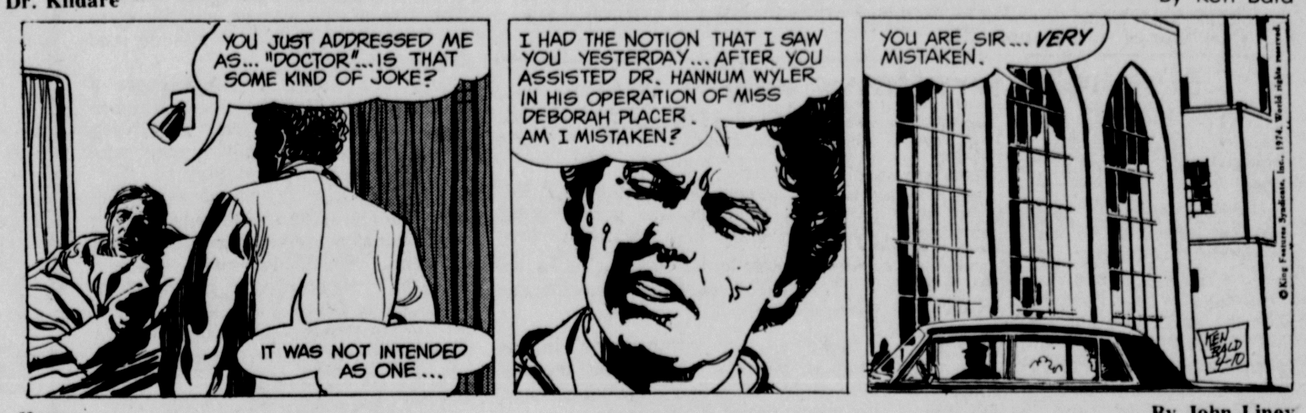

Door to your future.

'Sesame Street' helps Appalachian children

NEW YORK (AP) — A group of small Appalachian towns are finding television's "Sesame Street" and a self-help pre-school project effective in bringing early education to 150 youngsters who otherwise wouldn't get it.

Organized by the Dilenowisco Educational Cooporative with the help of the field staff of the Children's Television Workshop, producers of the TV program, the project employs a mobile classroom that travels up and down the mountain roads with trained paraprofessionals and the tutoring skills of parents to help teach the children in and near their homes.

According to Brainard Hines, a researcher for the Appalachian Educational Laboratory, "the results of a battery of tests indicate the youngsters who were involved in the preschool project are more prepared for entry into first grade than their counterparts in other areas across the country."

The Sesame Street preschool project conducted in a three-county area in Southwest Virginia is now in its second year.

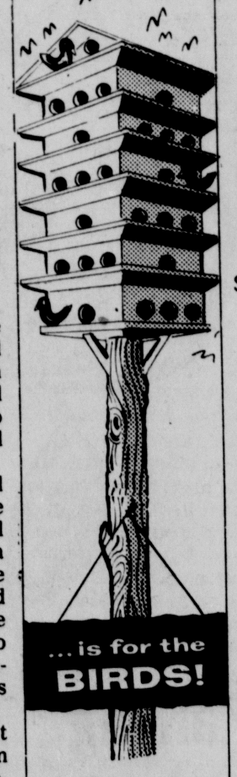

'Long-board days' in Sierra recalled

WASHINGTON (AP)— In a National Geographic article, Robert Laxalt writes of long-board days in the Lost Sierra. A major ingredient of speed skiing was "dope," as ski wax was called. One of the last of the long-board racers told Mr. Laxalt:

"Making sik 'dope' was a fine science a hundred years ago in the Sierra. Those old-time ski riders had as many as 20 different secret recipes to match any kind of snow, and they would have shot anyone who tried to pirate them."

Possibly the beginning of the present day perfume industry was in the 14th century, when the art of combining alcohol with perfume began, although attar of roses has been traced back to the early Persians.

Sinkhole swallows vegetables

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — The vegetable patch that Preston Keen, 77, meticulously planted six weeks ago is gone.

It disappeared in a sinkhole that has also swallowed seven orange trees and is slowly spreading.

"It's scary," says his wife, Lily. "Sunday it wasn't here. Monday it was like the earth had opened up."

The hole measures some 125 feet across and is about 50 feet deep.

The Keens own 110 acres of pasture and farmland in Balm, a tiny community 30 miles southeast of Tampa. The sink opened about one-quarter of a mile from their home.

Chalky green water flows at the bottom of the hole. An underground stream already has created a tiny waterfall inside the hole. Cracks as long as 12 feet reach out from the expanding sink.

Sinkholes are common in inland Central Florida. They are usually caused by the roofs of underground limestone caves giving way.

Bargain Days dates set at retail meet

The date for the annual Old-Fashioned Bargain Days promotion in Washington C. H. was scheduled during the regular monthly meeting of the Downtown Business Association Wednesday in the Chamber of Commerce office.

Ray Downing, association chairman, said the annual summer promotion will be held Wednesday, July 31 and Aug. 1-3 this year.

He said the event will follow the pattern of previous years with a variety of activities including sidewalk sales. The actual events will be announced at a later date, Downing said.

Association members also heard a report from Robert McArthur, president of the Washington C. H. Shrine Club, regarding the Shrine ceremonial event which will be held in Washington C. H. Aug. 24.

McArthur said the ceremonial involves the induction of new Shrine members for all clubs under the Aladdin Temple Shrine in Columbus, and a large parade with Shrine units from throughout Ohio participating. The size of the parade will be comparable to the Christmas parade held here each winter.

McArthur asked for the support of the Downtown Business Association in promoting the event. The association members indicated that support and backing would be available.

Members also discussed Substitute House Bill No. 1092 which deals with the reduction of personal property tax to a uniform level of 35 per cent statewide in an effort to stimulate business investment in Ohio.

All 12 members present agreed to contact elected state officials regarding the measure.

Disaster relief bill promoted

WASHINGTON (AP) — A disaster relief bill that could simplify delivery of aid to tornado-damaged Southern and Midwest communities was expected to reach the Senate floor this afternoon.

It won approval Tuesday in the Senate Public Works Committee and passage by the full Senate could send it to the House by Thursday, before the close of business for the Easter recess.

Sen. Quentin N. Burdick, DN.D., rushed his bill through the Senate committee, citing the emergency needs of the 11 states struck by more than 300 tornadoes last week.

The measure attaches several new provisions to the 1970 Disaster Relief Act. Most are aimed at minimizing the red tape involved in obtaining federal aid.

President Nixon promised Xenia, Ohio, residents Tuesday to remove most of the stumbling blocks to aid.

One provision would allow federal reimbursement up to 75 per cent on state costs of providing aid to families whose needs are not met by existing programs. The ceiling would be $5,000 per family.

Another section would allow the President to make loans to local government equal to 25 per cent of the operating budget to make up any loss of tax base from storm damage.

Man changes plea in stolen property case

A Jeffersonville man changed his original plea shortly before a jury was seated to hear evidence in a case involving receiving stolen property Wednesday morning in Fayette County Common Pleas Court.

Judge Evelyn W. Coffman said Dale E. Wilson, 32, of Jeffersonville, entered a "guilty" plea to a charge of receiving a stolen color television set before the trial was scheduled to begin Wednesday morning.

Judge Coffman said prospective jurors had been summoned to Common Pleas Court, but before a panel could be seated Wilson changed his original plea after discussing the matter with Albert Stewart, a Springfield attorney.

The case was scheduled to be prosecuted by James A. Kiger, Fayette County prosecuting attorney, and Assistant Prosecutor John H. Roszmann.

Judge Coffman said a pre-sentence investigation is being conducted by the court.

Wilson was arrested Feb. 13 by Fayette County sheriff's deputies after he received a stolen television set owned by Jerry Brown, of Washington C. H. The defendant was indicted by the February term of the Fayette County grand jury.

Road resurfacing eyed by trustees

The Union Township trustees met Tuesday night to discuss resurfacing some of the area roads. Trustee Delbert Haines was ill and did not attend.

The trustees were again approached by residents of some of the area subdivisions about improper water drainage and surface leachate. They reiterated that the responsibility for drainage of these areas is the responsbility of the contractor, and that he is the one that should handle the situation.

Harry Campbell, trustee, stated some of the proposed restrictions in the new planning commission codes have been included to curtail these problems.

FREIGHT TRAIN DERAILED — Eighteen cars of a Baltimore and Ohio Railroad freight train derailed shortly after 6 p.m. Tuesday on both sides of Dickey Road, near Bloomingburg. Train wreck near B'burg

Blame axle failure for rail pile-up

BLOOMINGBURG — Railroad officials have blamed a defective axle-coupling bar on the derailment Tuesday of 18 cars from a Baltimore and Ohio Railroad freight train on Dickey Road, just south of Bloomingburg, according to Fayette County Sheriff Don Thompson.

Clearing operations by a B&O Railroad wreck train were launched early Wednesday and a railroad spokesman said it will be possibly two or three days before the wreckage is completely cleared and railroad service can be restored.

The derailed freight cars, which were loaded with coke and coal, blocked Dickey Road and caused problems early Wednesday for school bus drivers in the Miami Trace School District. The road was impassable and students living on Dickey Road were forced to walk to the Whiteoak Road to be transported to school.

Sgt. William R. Crooks, of the Fayette County Sheriff's Department, said there were no injuries in the 18-car derailment. He said the freight train was bound for Cincinnati when the mishap occurred at 6:11 p.m. Tuesday. The derailment occurred at a speed of 40 miles per hour.

CROOKS SAID when a defective axle-coupling bar on the eighth car of the 32-car freighter became unattached, the eighth car and 17 others located behind it left the tracks and toppled over Dickey Road.

Crooks explained that when he and other officers from the Fayette County Sheriff's Department arrived on the scene of the derailment they immediately checked for any injuries sustained by the five-man train crew. The deputies also checked for spillage of any harmful materials and the possibility of an explosion.

He said coke and coal being carried in some of the cars had spilled.

In addition to the freight cars and trackage that was damaged, Crooks said telegraph poles and a fence owned by Dr. Heinz Grain Elevator Co., of Bloomingburg, were damaged.

The Bloomingburg Fire Department was immediately summoned to the scene of the derailment by Crooks in case of a fire.

The five-man crew consisted of L.R. Guard, engineer; F.T. Wheeler, conductor; D.R. Whaley, flagman; D.R. Smith, brakeman, and W.H. Black, fireman. All members of the crew except Black were from Newark. Black resides in Columbus.

Tanker blast kills one; 26 persons hurt

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Searchers plumbed the Delaware River today for eight persons missing from a Greek oil tanker that exploded and burned Tuesday night.

One man was killed and 26 persons were injured or suffered exposure after the tanker Elias erupted in a ball of flame while moored in the river.

Missing were five crewmen, plus a mother and her two children who were visitors on the ship, the Coast Guard said.

Chunks of steel were hurled into the air and burning oil spread on the surface of the river. The Coast Guard said the explosion occurred at the ship's middle tanks.

Crews began surveying for pollution from the spilled oil early today. It was not known how much oil escaped as a result of the explosion.

Flames roared through the 650-foot vessel for more than two hours at the Atlantic Richfield Co. pier near a sprawling complex of oil refineries in South Philadelphia before firemen brought the blaze under control.

"I couldn't see anything but flames," said Frank Kelly, a dock guard who witnessed the blast.

Rescuers and police told of crewmen from the burning tanker leaping from the ship into the frigid water.

Officials said the Elias was almost empty and was due to sail this morning. She had delivered 250,000 barrels of Venezuelan asphalt oil on Monday and was to finish pumping off by midnight Tuesday.

The blast left a gaping, 200-foot hole in the steel and concrete dock and damaged nearby cars and buildings.

"Everything happened very quick," said Joannis Soteris, a 26-year-old Greek crewman who was in the engine room at the time of the blast. "I grabbed a rope and got out like a monkey."

Authorities refused to speculate what caused the explosion, and they were unsure of the total complement of crew.

At least 10 of the 26 injured were listed in serious condition at three area hospitals.

One of the injured was William Gary, a janitor who was in a nearby building when the blast occurred.

All of the other injured were on board, including Merope Baltas, 23, the wife of one of the Elias' crewmen.

The explosion was heard from 25 miles away. One man called a local news bureau asking if there had been an earthquake.

Starvation predicted in Asia, Africa

WASHINGTON (AP) — Widespread, persistent starvation may hit South Asia and Africa within 10 years unless those areas cut their population growth and get massive aid, say the authors of a new computer study.

The grim warning came from Mihail Mesarovic, director of the Systems Research Center of Case Western Reserve University, and Eduard Pestel, professor of engineering at the Technical University of Hannover, Germany.

Their findings parallel a report by the Overseas Development Council, which warned that Asia could face famine next year. But the new report goes far beyond the council study, which recommended foreign aid in the form of food, fertilizer and agricultural help.

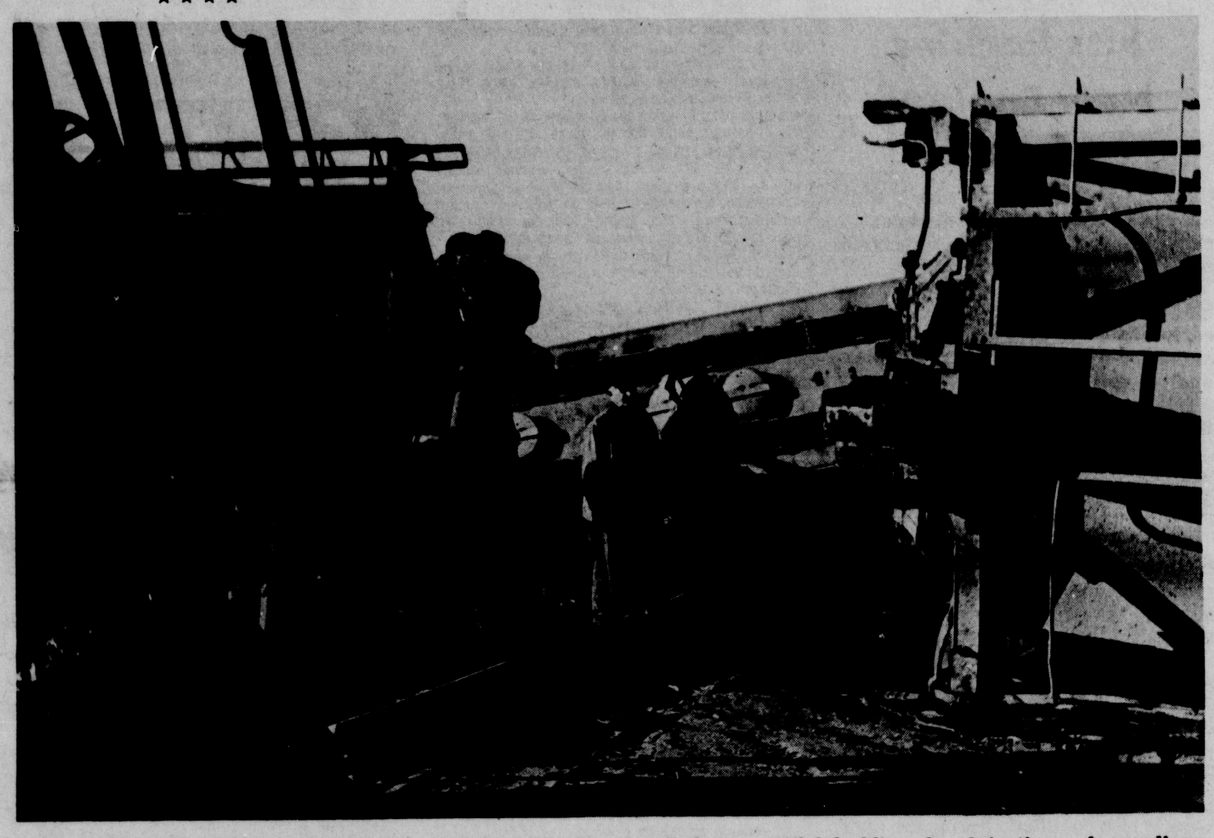

In an interview Tuesday, Mesarovic and Pestel said food shipments and agricultural aid alone cannot stave off starvation in South Asia and Africa.

Pestel estimated the industrialized nations would have to provide some $700 billion of investment aid over the next 50 years to prevent starvation, plus perhaps an equal amount to prevent massive unemployment in the underdeveloped world.

Mesarovic and Pestel conducted their computerized studies, comparing the worldwide effects of various economic and population policies, for the Club of Rome, a private international study group.

Some of Mesarovic and Pestel's preliminary findings:

—In South Asia even moderately successful population control would not keep population from outracing food supply. Without help, starvation levels would be reached by around 1985 with no end in sight.

EQUIPMENT BLAMED — Crew members from a 32-car B&O Railroad Co., freight train stand on the tracks between derailed cars. Officials blamed a defective axle-coupling bar for the derailment Tuesday. There were no injuries. The derailed cars carried coke and coal.

Answer 'maybe' to tape demands

WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of the House Judiciary Committee met in a mood of anger and resentment today to consider a White House proposal to wait two more weeks before replying to the committee's request for tapes of presidential conversations.

At separate party caucuses, both Republicans and Democrats called the White House letter postponing any response until April 22 unsatisfactory.

Individual members talked of issuing a subpoena for the material.

Chairman Peter Rodino, D-N. J., scheduled a full committee meeting Thursday for whatever action the committee wants to take.

The White House said Tuesday that "additional materials" would be given to the committee sometime after Congress returns from its Easter recess April 22, but it didn't say what the material would be.

James D. St. Clair, who is in charge of President Nixon's defense against impeachment, sent a letter to the committee. St. Clair said the White House still is reviewing the request for the taped talks between Nixon and his chief aides about the time the Watergate coverup was becoming known last year.

"We expect that the review can be completed by the end of the Easter recess and that the additional materials furnished at that time will permit the committee to complete its inquiry promptly," he said.

Chairman Peter W. Rodino, Jr., D-N.J., had no immediate comment on St. Clair's letter, which was not delivered until after the House had adjourned and most members had left. The committee had demanded the reply by Tuesday "at the latest" as to whether the tapes would be forthcoming.

Rodino said last week he thought the committee had waited long enough and that he would consider asking it to issue a subpoena for the tapes if there was not a satisfactory answer by Tuesday.

He is expected to convene the committee Thursday to consider St. Clair's letter. The promise that appears implicit in it to deliver some material after April 22 may be enough to head off demands for a subpoena at this time.

"We'll probably acquiesce," said Rep. Robert McClory, R-Ill., a senior committee Republican, who expressed disappointment at the White House response. "I don't think we're very anxious to face the alternatives."

Another member, Robert F. Drinan, D-Mass., said the panel has three options: "One is to go whole hog for a subpoena now, two is to give Rodino and (senior committee Republican Edward) Hutchinson standby power to subpoena, or three to cancel the recess for the committee and meet next Tuesday.

"I'm in favor of canceling the recess, forcing the issue," Drinan said.

Although the request remains unanswered, committee counsel John Doar told Democratic committee members Tuesday he is prepared to start presenting evidence gathered by the staff to the committee May 7. The committee has received 19 tapes and over 700 documents from the White House and also has been given secret grand jury evidence relating to Nixon's role in the Watergate cover-up.

Special Holy Week services scheduled

Services to celebrate Maundy Thursday and Good Friday will be held at Grace United Methodist Church.

The Good Friday service is planned for community-wide participation and will include presentations by the pastors of seven area churches. The public is invited to attend either or both of the special services.

There will be a Tenebrae, (Vigel of Darkness,) service on Maundy Thursday. This solemn observance of the Lord's Supper was first celebrated in the Fourth Century and centers around a graduated darkening of the church.

Eight candles symbolizing the qualities of the disciples are lighted. Then, as the disciples forsook Christ, the candles are extinguished one at a time while the minister and congregation meditate.

A ninth candle, symbolizing Christ, the light of the World, remains glowing throughout.

The service will begin at 7:30 p.m. Thursday and last for about an hour.

FRIDAY's community service will begin at noon and last until about 3 p.m. Area pastors, representing seven different churches, will take part in the Good Friday observance. Each minister will discuss one of the seven "Words of Christ," including "love," "forgiveness" and "pardon."

Also taking part in the service will be the Miami Trace Folksingers; Karen Shook, New Holland music teacher; students from Wayne and Wilson elementary schools and a double trio from the Cecilian Club.

The collection taken during this service will be used to continue and expand the chaplaincy program at Fayette Memorial Hospital. Babysitting will be provided for both the Thursday and Friday services.

Taking part in the Good Friday program will be pastors Eugene Griffith, Gerald Wheat, Robert Kline, Donald Baker, Harold Shank, Ralph Wolford and Allen Puffenberger.

Court rejects Rhodes appeal

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Supreme Court refused today to block a hearing by the state Real Estate Commission on the validity of a broker's license issued to former Gov. James A. Rhodes.

Rhodes complained in his petition to the high court the hearing before state panel is improper and in violation of his legal rights.

The commission notified Rhodes in a letter dated Mar. 12 that he should surrender the license within 30 days or face a hearing to determine whether it should be reversed, vacated or altered.

Rhodes obtained the license by taking an oral examination in the governor's office four days before his term expired in January of 1970.

Nixon visit gives lift to Xenia residents

By TERESA C. PITTS
Associated Press Writer

XENIA, Ohio (AP)—Small town hearts were stirred Tuesday when President Nixon toured this community nearly a week after a tornado spewed death and destruction through its center.

"It's truly lifted a lot of people's spirits around here," said Joan Anderson, a clerk in the Greene County Commissioner's office.

"For people from a small town, for the President to come and show his concern, it's done a lot for all our morale," she said.

"Xenia has suffered physically, but it has not suffered spiritually," Nixon told newsmen as he toured the rubble-strewn area. "I think the more it has suffered physically, the stronger it is spiritually. That speaks a lot for the people of this town."

Nixon spoke privately with county commissioners and city officials, pledging federal help and promising help to cut red tape for disaster victims.

He praised rebuilding efforts already underway. As he spoke, about 600 Ohio National Guardsmen continued clearing the debris spread out over nearly 80 per cent of the city.

"These people have lost their homes, their schools and their jobs," he said after one stop. "When we see these people smiling and saying, 'we're going to stick it out,' it's that kind of spirit that will help rebuild this town."

The President landed at Wright Patterson Air Force Base 10 miles away shortly before noon and flew by helicopter to Xenia.

"In terms of destruction—total devastation—this is the worst I've ever seen," he said on his arrival. The twister claimed 32 lives here, destroyed hundreds of homes and left thousands homeless.

He instructed his aides to "cut the red tape to the bare bone" to aid disaster victims.

The visit included stops at the city's Red Cross headquarters and the Greene County Building. He spent a few minutes at each location, chatting, shaking hands and answering reporters' questions.

Nixon's decision to visit Xenia was announced only a few hours before his arrival, and crowds were small, but friendly.

Some residents complained that the surprise visit and the barrage of newsmen surrounding the President made it impossible to get to him.

"I'm so disappointed. He was here and I missed him!" wailed Mrs. Pat Stuart after the President's motorcade pulled away from his final stop. "I dragged all four of my kids down here

Iraq claims U.S. arming rebel Kurds

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Iraq has accused the United States and Iran of supplying arms to the rebel Kurds.

"We are aware of massive military assistance rebel Kurdish leaders in the mountains of the north are getting from the Unted States via Iran," Vice President Saddam Hussein told a news conference Tuesday. "This is not a surprise for us."

He also charged Iran with a troop buildup along Iraq's eastern border to "encourage Kurdish insurgents in our north.

"But we are prepared to fight hard on all fronts...and shall carry the fighting into the territory of any country that fights us," Hussein declared.

Soviet-backed Iraq and American-armed Iran have fought a series of border clashes in the past three months.

Hussein, generally considered the strongman of Iraq's ruling Baath Socialist party, spoke to Lebanese reporters in Baghdad.

He said the 95,000-man Iraqi army has refrained from moving against the estimated 20,000-man Pesh Merga, the army of the Kurdish leader, Mulla Mustafa Barzani.

Xenia gets gas

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Public Utilities Commission of Ohio said today tornado stricken Xenia will get an emergency gasoline allocation of 375,000 gallons.

The PUCO said, in addition, the Federal Energy Office has approved an emergency shipment of 1 million gallons of fuel oil to the Cincinnati Gas and Electric Co. to meet emergency demands.

The gas will be taken from the state's reserve, the PUCO said. Ohio's reserve for April is about 12 million gallons.

Just after last week's tornadoes, the PUCO ordered 8€,000 gallons of gas shipped to Xenia.

A PUCO spokesman said the fuel is necessary to service emergency vehicles in the area devastated by tornadoes.

Ronald Haines, magic specialist, dies at 67

Services for Ronald Haines, 67, a native of Fayette County who gained fame as a magician, inventor and the world's leading production specialist in playing card tricks, will be held at 1:30 p.m. Thursday in the Tredway Funeral Home, Norwood.

Mr. Haines, died Monday in Bethesda Hospital, Cincinnati, after a long illness.

A practitioner of magic since early boyhood, he was head of Haines House of Cards in Norwood for 30 years. He was past international president of Society of American Magicians, the International Brotherhood of Magicians and numerous other professional organizations.

Though his personal repertoire included all forms of legardemain, most of his original tricks involved cards. His 'doctoring' of playing cards was confined strictly to entertainment uses and eschewed any form of gaming. Mr. Haines supplied tricks in hundreds of variations to professional and amateur magicians throughout the world, and he had been known to give hour-long performances with only an ordinary deck of cards.

Born May 13, 1906, in Fayette County, Mr. Haines' early schooling was in Greenfield. He later attended the University of Cincinnati. His first paid performance as a magician was at age 17 for the Rotary Club of Greenfield.

Mr. Haines was a Master of the Greenfield Masonic Lodge, No. 318. He was a Shriner, Knights Templar, a member of the Grotto and a member of the "Invisible Lodge."

He worked as maintenance engineer for the Norwood Public Schools during the 1930's and 40's. During his military service in 1943-45 he entertained at various military hospitals in Europe and Great Britain.

Mr. Haines married the former Ruth Fritzsch of Cincinnati in 1937. She died three years ago.

He is survived by two brothers, Samuel E. Haines of Chicago, and Herbert Haines, of Port Washington, Long Island, and three sisters, Mrs. Glenn Heistand, of Washington C.H., Ruth Haines and Mrs. G.F. Lampkin of Bradenton, Fla.

Friends may call at the Tredway Funeral Home, 2131 Cameron Ave., Norwood, on Wednesday from 4 p.m. to 9 p.m. Memorials may be made to charity of the donor's choice.

Apartment blaze hits Hamilton

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP) — Fire raced through at least 10 units of an apartment building here today before firefighters brought it under control.

Firemen said one woman was injured, apparently not seriously, when she jumped to safety.

They said other occupants of the building were roused by a tenant who spotted the blaze about 6 a.m. It was extinguished within three hours, firemen said.

They said all apartments in the building, 30 or 40 of them, were damaged by smoke and water.

An estimate on the damage was not available.

just to see him, and now he's gone," she said.

Xenia's tornado death toll rose to 32 Tuesday when two more victims died in hospitals. Sabina Ehret-DeJanarette, 13, died in Miami Valley Hospital and Mrs. Ivra Taylor, 33, died in the Wright-Patterson hospital.

The toll for the state climbed to 39, not counting the two guardsmen killed in a fire Saturday in a furniture store that had been ripped by the tornado.

As cleanup efforts continued, there were these other developments:

—Police in Xenia arrested two men, Mark Leroy Wilson, 23, and Gerry Robert Jack, 23, both of Xenia, on looting charges, the guard said.

The two were picked up in the city's Arrowhead section Friday evening, said the guard.

—Gilligan announced the availability of $100,000 to local law enforcement authorities to replace vehicles and equipment damaged in the tornadoes and to restore emergency communications systems.

—The Federal Disaster Assistance Administration said the U.S. Corps of Engineers has been assigned to contract with private firms in the area for clearing rubble left on public and private property.

The FDAA estimated the cost for the work, statewide, would be $3.5 million.

Residents of the six counties hit by tornadoes were declared eligible by the Ohio Bureau of Employment Services for Disaster Unemployment Assistance.

The OBES said applications for the special aid would be processed in Adams, Butler, Greene, Hamilton, Madison and Warren counties.

—The Ohio Department of Rehabilitation and Correction said employes and inmates of the Lebanon and London correctional institutions had been made available for cleanup work in their areas.

Spring eluded Ohio again this morning, as temperatures dipped into the 20s and 30s. Youngstown was the chilly spot in the state, with a pre-dawn reading of 18 degrees.

But improvement was on the way. High pressure was to give Ohio fair skies today and the sun was expected to warm afternoon temperatures to the low 40s near Lake Erie, the 50s in the central counties and the 60s along the Ohio River.

Cloudiness was to increase tonight, with readings falling only into the 30s and 40s. Skies were to be mostly cloudy across the state Thursday in advance of another storm front. Temperatures were to remain on the mild side.

Showers and thundershowers are forecast Friday and Saturday, ending Sunday. Highs Friday will range from the 60s to low 70s and lows in the 40s. Cooler weather will arrive by Sunday with highs forecast in the 50s and lows in the upper 30s and low 40s.

Heavy snow hits Rockies, New England

By The Associated Press

One April snowstorm swirled through the Rockies today, while another in New England began to subside after dumping up to 18 inches of snow on higher elevations.

Portions of the Salt Lake Valley were hit by 4 to 6 inches of snow during the early nighttime hours. Scattered rain and snow spread through the northern and central Rockies into the intermountain areas and Pacific Northwest.

Advisories for heavy snows and cold, wet weather were issued for portions of Montana, Wyoming, Nevada, Utah, Colorado, Arizona, and North Dakota.

Although heavy-snow warnings were canceled for most of the Northeast, the snowfall was expected to continue today in the hardest-hit areas of New Hampshire, Vermont and Maine.

The Lakes Region of central New Hampshire was buried by 13 inches of snow Tuesday. The Stratton Mountain ski area of southern Vermont received 18 inches less than 24 hours after the board of directors voted to install snowmaking machines.

Snow also continued during the night in northeastern Pennsylvania, and freezing temperatures crept into the southern Appalachians.

Elsewhere, winds gusting up to 60 m.p.h. mostly in desert areas of Arizona, Utah and California cut visibility with blowing sand and dust and created hazardous driving conditions.

Winds and high clouds also increased over the Plains and Texas.

Showers sprinkled the Ohio Valley during the night.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 19 at Limestone, Maine to 70 at El Paso, Tex., and Key West, Fla.

Legion urges paid tuition for veterans

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Legion proposed today that Congress pay up to $1,000 a year in tuition and fees for Vietnam-era veterans so they will have a wider choice of schools they can afford to attend.

Its views were presented by E. H. Golembrieski, director of national veterans affairs and rehabilitation commission of the legion, in testimony prepared for the Senate Veterans Committee.

The committee has before it a bill to increase monthly payments to the veterans by 25 per cent and to set up a loan program as a supplement.

The House has passed a 13 per cent increase, higher than the 8 per cent President Nixon proposed. The administration opposes any form of tuition-fee grant.

Neighbor rescues mother, children from suffocation

A Washington C.H. mother and her two young children narrowly escaped death from carbon monoxide poisoning at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday.

An unidentified neighbor had gone to the Boyd Kerns Jr. residence, 311 W. Circle Ave., and knocked on the door.

Hearing the two Kerns children, Kristina, five months old and Angela, 2, crying and receiving no answer, the neighbor entered to find Mrs. Rhonda Kerns, 20, in a semi-conscious state, lying on the floor.

Dayton Power and Light Co., workers were contacted and they quickly summoned the Washington C.H. Fire Department to run a carbon monoxide test. The test proved positive and they were able to trace the cause to a malfunctioning furnace.

Mrs. Kerns and her two children were taken to Fayette Memorial Hospital where they were treated and released for carbon monoxide poisoning.

Fire Chief Maynard L. Denen stated the gas in the Kerns household was shut off until the malfunctioning furnace was repaired.

The name of the neighbor who made the discovery and possibly saved the lifes of the Kerns woman and her two children was not known by fire department officials.

Stock list posts gain

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market showed a small gain today in trading interrupted for 26 minutes by an equipment failure at the New York Stock Exchange.

Trouble in data-processing equipment which feeds information to the ticker tapes caused a halt in trading from 11:09 to 11:35 a.m., the Big Board said.

The market had been advancing gradually before the halt and picked up at pretty much the same pace when activity resumed. The exchange said no trading information was lost in the equipment failure.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 4.46 at 851.30, and advancing issues outpaced declines by about 5-to-3 on the New York Stock Exchange.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market-value index was up .04 at 94.74. The Amex said it had halted trading for the 26-minute period in issues related to Big Board-listed securities, but the smaller exchange appeared otherwise unaffected.

Metzenbaum urges economic council

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Howard M. Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, has proposed an Economic Preparedness Act as a means of taking preventive action before economic crisis hits.

The major provision of his proposal, Metzenbaum said in his first speech in the Senate, is the creation by Congress of a politically independent National Economic Preparedness Council.

The 12-member council appointed by the President and congressional leaders would "re-examine all aspects of American economic life and the role the United States should play in the international economic community," he said.

The council would be empowered to draft legislation and would be responsible for issuing an annual report on national economic goals and the means to achieve them.

Metzenbaum also proposed creation of a National Food Reserve over the next five years to build up a one-year's supply of grains and dry beans through a combination of government purchases at market prices and privately held inventories.

To make sure the country is never caught unprepared again, he said, a National Commodities Survey Office should be established in the General Accounting Office to provide accurate reports on strategic commodities and resources.

"Authoritative supply forecasts do not presently exist, and the lack of information on food and oil was a prime factor in the shortages and inflation that developed in these areas over the past two years," Metzenbaum said.

He also proposed:

—A $250 tax credit per dependent for individuals. Taxpayers would be given a choice between the present $750 personal exemption that is deducted from taxable income and the new $250 tax credit that would be deducted from taxes due.

Ford's censure highlighted

The Chapin trial's reprise of the 1972 presidential campaign "dirty tricks" shenanigans throws Vice President Gerald R. Ford's recent remarks about CREEP into higher relief. The vice president's observations about the two-party system derive pertinence from courtroom disclosures about how that system was undermined by men who bypassed the party machinery.

The Committee for the Re-election of the President was an extreme manifestation of a phenomenon that has developed to some extent in both parties at the presidential campaign level. Candidates tend to concentrate on their own immediate concerns, raising their own funds and more less setting themselves apart from the party organizations.

This has played hob with the party structures, and it has opened the way to serious departures from respected political practice. This was the theme of Ford's remarks to audiences of party leaders.

Using the derogatory acronym for the Nixon re-election committee, he told them that "never again must Americans allow an arrogant guard of political adolescents like CREEP to bypass the regular Republican organization."

Ford said that those "political adolescents" had run "roughshod over the seasoned political judgment and experience of the regular Republican party organization in the 50 states." That is the nub of the matter. It is a criticism to be taken to heart by the leadership of both major parties. The party system is far from perfect.

But as the Chapin trial reminds us, there is a kind of stability and continuity in that system which helps to safeguard the political process from gross abuses.

THESE DAYS . . . by John Chamberlain

Kissinger needs a strong Navy

Henry Kissinger admires Prince Metternich, the Austrian statesman whose peace, achieved at Vienna in 1815, lasted for just short of a century insofar as any big troubles were concerned.

But, in his maneuverings to bring about a lasting Middle East settlement, our bouncy Secretary of State more closely resembles Talleyrand, the French plenipotentiary who succeeded in exploiting the differences between Russia, Prussia, Austria and Great Britain to his advantage in spite of the weakness of his own position.

The Arabs, as the fighting came to an end along the Suez Canal, still held the "oil weapon" over the U.S. But Egypt and Saudi Arabia were evidently persuaded by Kissinger that to use it as a continuing bludgeon would not serve the long-term good of the more conservative Arab states.

To take Western currencies for oil and then destroy the value by forcing the U.S. and Western Europe into a continuously galloping inflation would hardly enrich the Arab countries.

Oil needs prosperous markets — and, once the little matter of reaching a modus vivendi with Israel has been taken care of, the whole future of the conservative Arab economies depends on the intelligent use of the investment funds generated by oil profits. If the Arabs propose to spend their oil money to diversify their economies at home, they must import technology — and the only sure source of technology is in the capitalist West.

If, on the other hand, they want their money to earn money, they need a thriving world economy in which to invest. Socialist Moscow offers neither banks nor industries capable of absorbing the billions that will be accruing to the Arabs from their oil sales.

THE ECONOMIC realities have been enough to cause a split between the more radical Arab states such as Libya and Syria and the Egyptians who want to borrow the Persian Gulf oil profits to take the Nile valley fellaheen out of their economic misery. By 1980, Saudi Arabia alone will have some $200 billion to spread around; it will be distinctly a "have" nation, with no interest whatsoever in making eternal alliances with countires committed to Marxist revolution.

Even though he may be in no haste to industrialize his underpopulated desert country, King Faisal needs someone to pay him interest on his capital, a powerful conservative Egypt to guard his flank, and a protector such as the U.S. to supply him with weapons to defend himself against revolutionaries.

The fact that the oil-rich Arab lands are due to become capitalist financial centers is Henry Kissinger's top card. By playing astutely on Arab expectancies he can conceivably wangle a peace that will assuage Arab pride and, at the same time, result in a guarantee that there will be no more talk of driving the Israelis into the sea.

The Israelis would, of course, be expected to give up much of the Sinai and some of the Golan Heights, with the surrendered territory marked off as demilitarized zones that would be off base for any soldiers save those of the U.S.

NONE OF THIS would please Moscow, or for that matter, its client state of Syria.

The Soviets have not been building a modern navy for nothing; their interest in an Egyptian victory lies in opening the Suez Canal for relatively quick passage to their ships into the Red Sea and the Indian Ocean. They must continue to have some hold on Egypt's Sadat or their investment in restoring the Sinai and the East bank of the Suez to Egyptian control will come to nothing.

The whole business, in the long run, will come down to a question of power. The U.S. Pentagon still thinks the Soviets are a power in Egypt; after all, they have been supplying Sadat with weapons. The Pentagon may underestimate Sadat's desire to shake himself free of Moscow's control.

But it is surely right in its feeling that the Russians don't have to have their technicians and advisers inside Egypt to keep Sadat in line. As long as the Soviet eastern Mediterranean fleet is stronger than U.S. naval power in that part of the world, the conservative Arabs will have to walk a tightrope.

One thing is clear: if Henry Kissinger is to become the modern Talleyrand, he had better reach an understanding with the Pentagon and Congress on the need to build a U.S. Navy second to none.

Highly favorable influences should give you new incentive, spur your amibitions, give you surer appreciation of the many benefits within your reach.

TAURUS

You may have a tendency to be too impressionable now. Avoid becoming involved in ticklish situations into which you could be trapped, and which could disturb you later.

SAGITTARIUS
(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

In both business and financial matters, use only time-tested procedures. Don't attempt anything risky. And DON'T try for the unreasonable.

CAPRICORN
(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

Be discriminating. No matter what the situation, don't judge on surface appearances only. Don't completely disregard first impressions of strangers, however.

AQUARIUS
(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

This should be a highly profitable day for those of you who capitalize on your innate imagination and originality. In the personal field, emotions may rise and fall, so maintain equilibrium and poise.

PISCES
(Feb. 20 to March 20)

Benefits indicated if you are alert, but opportunities could be lost through indifference or tendencies toward extremism.

YOU BORN TODAY are courageous, energetic and ambitious. Being a born leader, others follow you, and your opinions carry weight, so it's important that you never express yourself impulsively, without careful forethought. You are extremely versatile and could make a name for yourself in many fields — but especially in the law, politics and statesmanship, where your leadership and dynamic personality would be tremendous assets. You could also excel in the world of education — making a forceful and brilliant teacher — IF you can curb tendencies to be overexacting with those under your supervision. Other careers suited to your talents: music, literature and science.

Make energy from trash

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— Scrap metal and scrap paper recovery have been proposed as the first phase of a program to save money and make energy from Ohio's annual 1.8 million tons of trash.

"Each year Ohio communities spend more than $300 million to bury or burn waste," Gov. John J. Gilligan said Tuesday, unveiling the program which he said will be presented to the 1975 Ohio General Assembly.

As metropolitan areas run out of landfill space, residents will face bigger bills for hauling away garbage, he said.

"Our ultimate goal is the elimination of the environmental problems now created by solid waste disposal and full recovery of recyclable and energy-producing wastes," the governor added.

Ohio's Environmental Protection Agency drafted the proposal.

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

A big smile and a big thanks to all the wonderful people of Fayette County who gave so generously of their time, money, resources, love and devotion to help ready the truckloads of gifts to our neighbors and loved ones, the recent tornado victims at Xenia. The helpers want to especially thank those who served them food, hot and cold drinks.

So much love went into the preparation of all those boxes of food, clothing, blankets, toys and many other items. Our hopes are that the sick and injured will rest a little better, the babies will sleep a little sounder and the children will laugh a little louder at play; that the fathers and mothers of Greene County will smile a little more then their hearts will be a little lighter because we the people helped.

A special thanks to Murphy's, Middle States Motor Freight, Armco, Mead Containers, United Church Women and Krogers.

If it had not have been for them it would not have been possible for the above to have happened. Also the city police station for allowing the truck to be parked on the street. And all the unmentioned good people who donated money, time, and labor.

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

In recent events in the news it makes a person wonder in what direction we as a nation are heading.

I am referring to the indictment of the National Guardsmen at Kent State. Here are men who are put into a position to maintain law and order and then when they do their job they are put on trial for an unfortunate incident. These men were ordered out to do this job; they didn't go out on their own. They weren't doing it for the kicks.

Now they will be on trial for carrying out orders. Where are their civil rights?

Recently here in our city we had something similar happen where one of our patrolmen had his life put in jeopardy. He also did his job, and I understand he had to face an inquiry over it. Wonder if it was necessary to do what he did.

Mike Stritenberger just did not happen to get on the force. He had to pass the requirements first. He chose this job because he, like the other police and firemen, are dedicated enough to believe in their city, state and country.

I ask you, what would we have done if we were in their moccasins. I, for one feel we should back them, not knock them. As long as our welfare is in their hands I feel we are safe.

Remember two of them lost their lives doing it.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Yesterday's Cryptoquote: THE WHOLE CONCEPT OF DEMOCRATIC SOCIETY RESTS UPON AN INFORMED PEOPLE.—HENRY T. HEALD

First U.S. coin was 'Fugio' cent

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first coin authorized by the United States Congress was the 1787 Fugio cent. The Latin inscription Fugio, in conjunction with a sundial, supposedly was to signify "time flies."

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Take a second look at that 'loving friend'

DEAR ABBY: As my husband and I were preparing to make a trip to Europe by air, one of my so-called dearest friends came to me and asked me if I would please get a $50,000 airplane insurance policy naming her as beneficiary. She said she would gladly pay for the insurance.

I was shocked to say the least.

What do you think of such a suggestion from a supposedly loving friend? I'd really like your opinion.

PEACHES

DEAR PEACHES: Let me put it this way: If this loving friend invited me to her home for dinner, I'd wonder who she was loving, and I'd also take a food-taster along.

DEAR ABBY: It's a cinch you've never been to Alaska, otherwise you never would have told that 45-year-old woman who was looking for a husband to go hunting there.

There are no extra marriageable men here, plus jobs are scarce and prices are double. You should have told her not to go to Alaska unless she had a round-trip ticket and plenty of money. She's too old to be a go-go dancer.

ERMA IN ANCHORAGE

DEAR ABBY: A few months ago I was hospitalized for a heart condition, and upon release, my doctor told me I had to take it easy.

My son, his wife and their three very active young children are neighbors to us, and the children are here more than they are at home. They wear me out but I can't bring myself to send them home.

My husband hired a housekeeper to help me the last few weeks, but my daughter-in-law has begun to "borrow" her, so once again I am alone with those undiciplined children.

My daughter-in-law is a good girl, and I'm sure she doesn't know the toll the children take on me. She's also very sensitive. My son tried talking to her about letting the children spend so much time at my house unsupervised, but she ended up in tears, all upset, and the next day they were back.

How can I handle this without hurting anyone? I love them all very much.

NAMELESS, OF COURSE

DEAR NAMELESS: First, tell your housekeeper that she is not to be "borrowed" by your daughter-in-law. Then tell your daughter-in-law to please quit commandeering your help that you love her and the kiddies but you aren't up to having them when she isn't there to discipline them. Don't worry about her ending up in tears. Better that than you ending up in a box before your time.

CONFIDENTIAL TO WORRIED AND WAITING IN N.J.: The answer is YES! See a physician at once. And if you can't get an appointment immediately or can't afford one, contact your public health department and tell them what you have told me. And do not wait another day.

Problems? you'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90212.

NEW YORK (AP) — While barely in their teens, the twin daughters of artist Harry Liebovitz already were regulars in the criminal courts of Philadelphia — as budding sketch artists drawing the fine line of law.

Now they're grown, married, of middle age. Each has three children. But they're still courtroom regulars, still sketching away. Only now their work is seen by millions on ABC and NBC television news programs.

Oddly enough, neither Ida Libby Dengrove of NBC nor Freda L. Reiter of ABC has covered the same trial in the three years they've worked — on a free-lance basis — for their networks. But it almost happened recently.

Mrs. Reiter said she nearly was assigned the federal court trial here of former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and ex-Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans. Her sister has sketched the trial for nearly eight weeks.

Alas, an ABC News executive in Washington, where Mrs. Reiter has sketched Watergate trials since January 1973, "would not let me go," she said. "He felt I was covering Watergate completely and he wanted me here on a full-time basis."

The sisters are part of a small network art colony whose specialized work is lucrative, if sporadic. Network officials won't say what the pay is, but industry sources say it goes as high as $100 a day.

Only NBC says it has a fulltime sketch staff under contract — seven artists, augmented by a few first-call freelancers like Ida Dengrove. CBS says it regularly calls on five freelancers, while ABC uses four of the breed.

Mrs. Reiter and her sister said they began courtroom sketching for the networks after years of similar work for a newspaper in their hometown of Philadelphia, where they attended separate art schools.

Mrs. Dengrove says she's been a bit busy of late, sketching the Mitchell-Stans trial for not only the "NBC Evening News," but also the "Today" show and the two local evening news show of WNBC-TV here.

Does she have to do different sketches for each show?

"Well, there are times when each reporter seems to have a different slant for the story, and I do try to accommodate them the best I can," she said. "But it varies.

"Usually before the (court) session we'll talk a little bit about what they want," added Mrs. Dengrove. She says it usually takes her 30 minutes to do an entire court scene "with the whole cast of characters."

Like her sister, Mrs. Dengrove says she uses pastels, charcoal pencils and a 14-by-17 sketch pad while working. She's done as many as 12 sketches and as few as three in a day at the Mitchell-Stans trial.

The artists, when they aren't in New York or Washington courtrooms, live in New Jersey only 65 miles apart—Ida in Allenhurst, near the ocean, and Freda in Cherry Hill, near Philadelphia.

Inouye says contributions returned

HONOLULU (AP) — Sen. Daniel K. Inouye said Monday he returned two campaign donations cited in the recent indictment of a Cleveland shipbuilder.

George Steinbrenner III, board chairman of American Shipbuilding Co., was indicted for allegedly contributing company funds to the election campaigns of President Nixon, Inouye and other influential members of Congress.

Inouye said he returned checks totaling $500 at the request of the donors, Robert Bartolme and Stanley Lepkowski. They were named as co-conspirators in the federal complaint but were not indicted.

No specific reason was given when the two men asked that their checks be returned, the Hawaii Democrat said. But he believes it had nothing to do with the investigation that led to Steinbrenner's indictment.

Inouye said his campaign staff also returned $5,160 donated by American Shipbuilding Co. executives. Reimbursement checks were delivered to Steinbrenner last September, he said.

Inouye said he also returned an additional $5,000 in personal funds donated by Steinbrenner.

Inouye said he met Steinbrenner in September, 1969, when they worked on a Democratic fund-raising dinner.

Procter & Gamble names chairman

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)— Edward G. Harness was elected chairman of the board and chief executive officer at the Procter and Gamble Co.'s annual election Tuesday.

Harness succeeds Howard Morgens, who has served as chief executive for 17 years.

In other changes, effective May 1, John G. Smale will become president with responsibility for company operations in the United States.

Owen B. Butler was elected vice chairman of the board and William Gurganus was named president of P&G International.

Glenn agrees to TV debate

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Democratis senatorial candidate John Glenn agreed Tuesday to meet his opponent Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, in a live television debate in Cleveland April 25.

Earlier Tuesday, Metzenbaum challenged Glenn to a series of televised debates.

A spokesman for Glenn said the former astronaut turned down Metzenbaum's request for a debate in Cincinnati May 1 because of a schedule conflict and was not aware of a proposal to debate in Columbus April 21.

Marriage vows exchanged in Christian Union Church

Miss Rosemary Long became the bride of Roger Fuller in a double ring ceremony performed by the Rev. Robert Kline in the Church of Christ in Christian Union.

Miss Long is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Long, Rt. 3, and Mr. Fuller is the son of Mrs. Forrest Johnson and Wayne Fuller of Anderson, Ind.

Yellow bows marked the first three rows of pews in the church and candelabra entwined with greenery were also marked with bows. Mrs. Mary Jane Carter, vocalist, and Miss Sue Cummins, organist, presented wedding selections.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal length white organza gown which featured Venice lace on the bodice and sleeves. Venice lace formed the panel down the front of the skirt which fell into a chapel length train in the back. Her nylon tulle veil was caught to a headpiece of petals. She carried a cascade of white and yellow roses accented with baby's breath and ivy on a white Bible with white streamers.

Mrs. Linda Rumer, matron of honor, wore a long gown of yellow and peach sweetheart dotted Swiss with white organdy pinafore. Miss Cindy Buster, Miss Susan Long, Miss Carol Delawder, Mrs. Barbara McCain and Miss Chris Lindsey were the bridesmaids. They wore long gowns of yellow and peach sweetheart dotted Swiss. Each carried long-stemmed roses accented with baby's breath and long peach streamers.

Hospital Auxiliary adds members

Fayette Memorial Hospital's Auxiliary met in the board room at the hospital when Mrs. Ralph Child presided. She gave the opening prayer and welcomed six new members. She announced that a very nice sum was earned for the Auxiliary by several volunteers who assisted taking inventory at Buckeye Mart.

During the committee reports, Mrs. James Carr, chairman of the gift shop, disclosed the weekly receipts had averaged $300.00 per week.

It was voted to furnish the new basement facility with floor tile from some of the gift shop proceeds. Mrs. Jean Tracy spoke to members and asked for volunteers at the emergency entrance. Since the new switch board, purchased by the Auxiliary, has been moved to the front office, there was a need for more volunteer help.

Volunteers help at the admission desk, work in gift shop, assist in the X-ray department, and maternity ward and help with Dr. Kubiac's program.

Mrs. Child read a letter from Mr. Robert Kunz of appreciation from him, the staff and board to volunteers who are doing such a good job and are such a great help to the hospital.

There were more than 24,000 hours of work donated during 1973.

The TV project is progressing very well under the chairmanship of Miss Marjorie Evans, her assistant Mrs. Robert Woodmansee and other helpers.

The first man volunteer was welcomed and a call for others to join the Auxiliary will be appreciated. There are many jobs to do to improve the hospital and its progress. More ladies are invited to join also.

After Mrs. Child asked for volunteers at the emergency entrance, the meeting was adjourned.

State won't aid indicted Guardsmen

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The state attorney general's office reaffirmed Tuesday its decision not to provide legal counsel for Ohio National Guardsmen indicted in the 1970 Kent State University shootings.

James Gravelle, press aide to Atty. Gen. William Brown, was responding to a statement by a guard spokesman that it was the guard's understanding the state would defend soldiers in suits resulting from actions they took while on state active duty.

"There is a big difference between a civil suit and a criminal indictment from a federal grand jury," Gravelle said. He said it is not the policy of the state to defend employes indicted on criminal offenses.

Gravelle said the guardsmen were offered legal advice when first subpoenaed, but were told they could not be defended if indicted.

He said they also were told they could make a claim with the Sundry Claims Board for reimbursement of legal expenses, which would "probably be reimbursed if they were acquitted."

The attorney general's policy concerning defense of state employes on criminal charges was outlined in a letter from Brown to Adj. Gen. Dana L. Stewart in December 1973, Gravelle said.

The guard official, Col Joseph McCann, public affairs officer, referred to a memorandum dated April 23, 1971, from Stewart to all Ohio guard units which said state defense would be provided guardsmen involved in suits "arising from actions resulting from state active duty. Robert Tenenbaum, press aide for Gov. John Gilligan said he believed the memo referred to civil not criminal action.

"The Gilligan administration can't require the attorney general to do anything," Tenenbaum said. "The attorney general is as independent as the governor and in those areas he controls he is the absolute authority."

Meanwhile, George C. Smith, a candidate for the Republican nomination for attorney general, said in Lima Tuesday he would provide a defense for the guardsmen if he held the office.

And Rep. Kenneth Cox, D—41 Barberton, said he planned to introduce legislation in the House requiring the state to provide legal counsel for the soldiers.

Health curbs on chemical demanded

WASHINGTON (AP) — United Rubber Workers President Peter Bommarito said Tuesday emergency temporary health standards placed on vinyl chloride are inadequate to guarantee workers safety.

He called on tighter government restrictions on worker exposure to the chemical, believed responsible for a rare form of liver cancer.

The Labor Department's Occupational Safety and Health Administration this week ordered that the maximum allowable concentration of vinyl chloride be reduced from 500 parts per million in the atmosphere to 50 parts per million until a permanent standard is formulated.

The action came after it was disclosed that four workers at a B.F. Goodrich Co. vinyl chloride conversion plant in Louisville, Ky., had died.

Bommarito said the deaths "served the brutal purpose" of showing how little is known about how dangerous chemical substances are in the work place.

Speaking at a one-day health and safety meeting sponsored by the union, he said "it has uncovered what industry, government and labor do not known — the toxicological and cancer potential of thousands of chemicals used in industry."

Grandpa Jones likes 'old' music best

By SYLVIA RECTOR
Associated Press Writer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A flurry of old songs reborn and a sudden resurgence of youthful respect for the old timers have so far missed one of country music's most authentic performers.

But at least Grandpa Jones believes there's now a market for his brand of music.

"If you want to hear real country music these days, you've got to go to a college or to one of these clubs the kids go to. They want the real old stuff, especially in the colleges. They're tired of this modern country," he declared.

Now 60, he's still doing the same kind of music and telling the same kinds of jokes he started with in 1935. Of course, as he says, "there aren't any new jokes, just variations on old ones."

Well known as a humorist from his weekly appearances on television's syndicated "Hee Haw," Grandpa still loves his music best.

"I'm not doing what's popular — or at least, what has been popular. You know, that modern country and the bluegrass. I don't pick like Earl Scruggs does. That's bluegrass."

His picking style is often called "claw-hammer" or "frailing."

"And I don't do any of this modern country ... about men running around on their wives and all. I like songs about the country or mother or train wrecks or something. Us oldtimers call that other stuff 'skin songs'."

He records but, evidentally, has had less success than he would have hoped.

"Oh, I do lots of records, but you'd never know it. The disc jockeys know I don't do modern country or bluegrass so they just pitch it out. "That's why I want to do some of these college shows. I believe there's a lot of young people who would like what I do," he said.

He's starting the college circuit soon, with a first appearance scheduled at Western Kentucky University.

The problem, Grandpa feels, is that too many writers are turning out "skin songs" and not the gentle, down-to-earth music he thinks is beginning to see a revival.

"One of the prettiest songs to come out in a long, long time is "The Green, Green Grass of Home," he said. "And that's about home and just plain people. I'd like to see a lot more songs like that."

Grandpa has another album coming out in the near future, "Heading South with Nashville on my Mind."

Then, he's going to another record label.

"They're already looking for some material. Maybe it'll turn out and maybe it won't. We'll just have to see," he said.

Cincy schools remain struck

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — While half of Cincinnati's 3,000 public school teachers stayed home Tuesday, school officials said classrooms would remain open despite the strike.

The strike entered its third day today.

A crucial meeting of the Cincinnati Federation of Teachers (CFT) was held Tuesday night, but the group barred newsmen.

Meanwhile, the board of education said that negotiations would not resume until teachers returned to their classrooms.

The CFT, a rival of the official bargaining agent Cincinnati Teachers Association (CTA), could apply more pressure by backing the CTA-sponsored strike.

Ohio Perspective

State has little damage insurance

By PERRY SMITH
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The state of Ohio has more property and less insurance than any other real estate owner in the state.

In fact, the state has no property damage insurance at all except on university dormitories—mandatory coverage because the dormitories are built with the proceeds of bonds.

Ironically, dormitories at Central State University, latest property disaster for state government, suffered least from the tornado that decimated Xenia last week.

The rebuilding bill at Central State, where practically every building except some dormitories was either demolished or heavily damaged, has been estimated at $50 million to $75 million.

The state does carry loss of business policies on state buildings, so that it would be reimbursed for emergency space rentals.

John B. Olsen, director of the Office of Budget and Management, said he didn't really know why the state carries no property damage insurance, but said he expected that premiums on state property would be too high.

Howard Collier, former Ohio finance director now a vice president of the Medical College of Ohio, verified Olsen's theory. "In the past 10 or 15 years I know about we haven't suffered more than a $10 million loss because of disasters," Collier said.

"Insurance premiums on everything the state owns would have been more costly."

Insurance is required on university dormitories built through bond issues, Olsen said. "The bonding firms insist upon it," he said.

Otherwise, the state is a selfinsurer. It sets aside money in an emergency fund.

"That fund is pretty lean right now," Olsen said. It does not contain enough to pay Central State damages, he said.

There are two other approaches to finance reconstruction: A bond issue or an outright appropriation by the legislature, probably in the capital improvements bill.

"Right now," said Olsen, "our first task is to get an assessment of damages down there, determine costs and see if we can get it in the next capital improvement bill."

Olsen doesn't like the bond issue approach. There are complicating factors, he said.

"But a bonded debt is always possible," he said.

Conservation jobs open to area youths

WASHINGTON — Youths interested in applying for possible summer employment in the four Youth Conservation Corps camps to be operated in Ohio this year should first contact their high school counselors or conservation science teachers, Congressman William H. Harsha said today.

Those meeting the age (15 through 18) requirements and other qualifications but not attending school should also register at their nearest high school.

Congressman Harsha said that, according to the Ohio Department of Natural Resources which will operate the program, it will accept one application for consideration from each high school in the State. Candidates from each congressional district in Ohio will then be evaluated by a selection board which will review each application and make the final selections for the 348 openings in the conservation camps.

The four camps are located at the Hebron National Fish Hatchery in Licking County, the Wayne National Forest in Monroe County, the Zaleski Forest in Vinton County and the Shawnee State Forest in Scioto County.

The deadline for applications is April 15.

Boyle vigorously denies plotting to kill Yablonski

MEDIA, Pa. (AP)—W. A. "Tony" Boyle, the former United Mine Workers president, vigorously denies he had anything to do with the 1969 assassination of his union rival Joseph "Jock" Yablonski.

"Absolutely not," the 72-year-old defendant said loud and clear Tuesday afternoon, staring hard at the jury of nine men and three women while answering his lawyer's questions on whether he had helped arrange the murders of Yablonski, his wife and daughter.

Later, under sharp cross-examination by Special Prosecutor Richard A. Sprague, Boyle insisted he always tells the truth.

"I have told the truth under oath all my life," Boyle said. "I have never lied under oath."

Sprague, sarcastically, responded: "The jury will decide that Mr. Boyle."

Boyle was the fourth defense witness. Three others may testify today before the defense rests.

Then the prosecution, which already has had 56 witnesses, is expected to offer a brief rebuttal before the case reaches the jury, probably by Friday.

The Yablonskis were slain Dec. 31, 1969, as they slept in their rural Clarksville home in southwestern Pennsylvania. The killings occurred three weeks after Yablonski lost a bitter battle to unseat Boyle for the presidency of the 200,000-member union.

Testifying in his own defense, the ailing Boyle—he failed in a sleeping pill suicide attempt last September and has a bad heart—also said he was positive he had never suggested to anyone at any time that Yablonski must be killed.

"I certainly did not," Boyle said, flatly refuting the prosecution's star witness Monday that the "kill Yablonski" order originated with Boyle on June 23, 1969.

William J. Turnblazer, 52, former president of UMW District 19 embracing Kentucky and Tennessee, had testified Boyle suggested the assassination during a brief afternoon meeting in the hallway of the union's national headquarters building in Washington, D.C.

Turnblazer, who has pleaded guilty to participating in the murder plot, said Albert Pass, 52, former secretary-treasurer of District 19, also was present at the time.

Pass was convicted of murder last June.

"Did you have any such conversation with Albert Pass (on June 23, 1969)?" asked Boyle's lawyer, Charles F. Moses.

"I did not," Boyle said.

"Did you have any meeting with William Turnblazer?" Moses continued.

"I did not," Boyle replied again.

Laos Reds open drive on highway

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

About 150 North Vietnamese and Pathet Lao troops have launched a series of attacks along a strategic highway in southern Laos, sources in the capital said today.

It was the first reported cease-fire violation since the Pathet Lao joined a coalition government with the conservative-neutralist regime in Vientiane last Friday.

The sources said the Communist forces made their first attack Sunday along a stretch of Highway 13 about 250 miles southeast of Vientiane and several miles inland from the Mekong River border with Thailand.

Defense Minister Sisouk Na Champassak of the Vientiane faction protested the attack to a Pathet Lao minister today at the first meeting of the new coalition cabinet, the sources reported.

Meanwhile, in Cambodia, government troops battled through insurgent forces along Kampot's shipping channel and cleared one bank of the besieged town's main supply route after four days of heavy fighting, military sources reported today.

The sources said about 500 men were landed on the east bank of the four-mile channel from the Gulf of Thailand and fought their way into the town. Navy gunboats had blasted Khmer Rouge positions along the 300-yard-wide channel earlier.

Kampot, 85 miles southwest of Phnom Penh, has been under Khmer Rouge pressure for more than a month. But one Western military observer said the insurgents appeared to be pulling back a bit, "possibly for a rest."

In Saigon, South Vietnam's delegation to the Joint Military Commission said it proposed a cease-fire at the besieged government bases of Duc Hue, near the Cambodian border 35 miles northwest of Saigon, and Tong Le Chan, 50 miles north of the capital. The delegation said it proposed the truce to allow the evacuation of wounded and burial of the dead.

The Viet Cong rejected the request, calling it a trick by the Saigon administration to gain public support while pursuing "land-grabbing operations."

A spokesman for the Saigon command said the Communists were attacking Duc Hue and other positions in the area in an attempt to reopen supply routes from Cambodia.

Mitchell-Stans speedup sought

NEW YORK (AP) — Federal Judge Lee P. Gagliardi is seeking to step up the pace at the criminal conspiracy trial of former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and ex-Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans.

With Good Friday an off-day for the trial, Gagliardi said Tuesday he is "giving some thought to a Saturday session."

But he appeared willing to go along with a defense suggestion that to compensate for the long weekend, court sessions be extended daily by an hour or so.

The government objected to this. It said it needs all the time it can get to prepare for each day of defense testimony.

Mitchell and Stans are accused of obstructing a Securities and Exchange Commission investigation into the operations of financier Robert L. Vesco in return for his secret $200,000 contribution to President Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign.

The Vesco donation was the largest cash contribution received by the Committee to Reelect the President, which Mitchell and Stans took over after leaving the cabinet.

The defense presentation was enlivened Tuesday by the appearance as a witness of an ebullient multimillionaire insurance tycoon from Winnetka, Ill - W. Clement Stone. His more-than-$2-million, non-cash donation was the largest single contribution of the 1972 campaign.

Gagliardi refused to let Stone say how much he gave Nixon and why, and the judge said he would not permit the defense to call as witnesses other large Nixon contributors.

The defense wanted to call other heavy contributors in an effort to show that many of them had insisted on anonymity and were seeking no favors.

But Gagliardi said, "What went through their minds is not relevant as to what went through Mr. Stans' mind as to criminal intent."

Stone testified he hosted a table of 10 at a $1,000-a-plate fund-raising dinner for Senate and House candidates in the Washington Hilton Hotel March 8, 1972. Among his guests were Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell.

A government witness, Daniel Hofgren, a volunteer GOP campaign aide, had testified that he talked to Mitchell at a reception preceding the dinner and was warned by Mitchell to "stay away" from Vesco, and the subject of his planned $200,000 contribution.

One count in the indictment charges Mitchell with perjury, because of his testimony that he never talked with Hofgren about Vesco at the party, or told him to "stay away" from the financier.

Stone testified that Mitchell never made it to the reception, and arrived late for the dinner itself.

In another ruling Tuesday, Gagliardi refused to let the defense call as witness Berl Bernhardt, Sen. Edmund S. Muskie's campaign manager during the Maine senator's attempt to win the Democratic presidential nomination in 1972.

Stans' attorneys had said that Bernhardt's testimony would show that it was the "custom and practice" of all candidates to take anonymous contributions.

Detente unreal, Soviet dissident tells newsman

NEW YORK (AP) — Exiled Soviet dissident Pavel M. Litvinov says detente between Russia and the United States can't be real if only the top leaders "meet and smile and talk to each other."

Litvinov, the 34-year-old grandson of Stalin's late foreign minister, arrived here with his family earlier this week. The chemical engineer says he hopes to stay and teach college physics in the United States.

"I can't consider detente real if only at the very top the leaders meet and smile and talk to each other, but the Soviet working man is told to look on every foreigner as a spy," he said in an interview Tuesday.

He said there "can't be such a thing as a cold peace. Real peace must be warm and friendly."

Home loan rule blasted

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— James Nolan, who is seeking the Democratic nomination for governor, says the Cleveland Trust Co. should rescind its "hard-nosed" policy on homeowners' loans.

Cleveland Trust announced this week that it will boost the minimum down payment on home mortgages to one-third.

Nolan said Tuesday night in campaign appearances before the Lyndhurst and Bedford Democratic clubs that Cleveland Trust should "rescind this policy and re-examine their reasoning."

He said it was "unconscionable for Ohio's largest and wealthiest bank to take this action making it more difficult for families to buy and become home owners."

Nolan added that he believes the bank is trying to put pressure on the State Legislature to lift the eight per cent ceiling on loans.

2 escape injury in plane crash

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP)— Two Ohio men escaped injury when their twin engine Cessna 310 crashed on takeoff from Worcester Airport early today in a snowstorm.

Police said the plane apparently stalled out and crashed into woods about 100 yards from the end of the runway.

Officials identified the pilot as Joseph A. Jansen of Bluffton, Ohio, and his passenger as Scott R. Bushong of Elida, Ohio.

Ohio Army deserter stays in Australia; fears prison

MALVERNE, Ohio (AP)— Mrs. Russell James says her son, Russell, "would like to come home" from Australia, but she fears U.S. officials would put him in prison to make an example of him as a Vietnam War deserter.

Russell F. James, 24, walked away from the U.S. Army while on leave in Australia 1969. He had been held by Sidney authorities for the past month, but Mrs. James said her son told her by telephone Tuesday that Australian officials have decided not to honor a U.S. request for his deportation and will grant him citizenship.

She said her son and his wife, Marie, whom he met in Australia, manage a small hotel in Sidney.

"He has the wife and his son to think about," said Mrs. James. "I told him I was behind him 100 per cent....

"It's not that he's turning his back on his country," she added. "He feels that it's for a good reason."

Mrs. James said her son enlisted in 1967 at the age of 17 and served 1½ years in Vietnam. He was wounded in the leg by shrapnel.

He re-enlisted and planned to make the Army his career, but "something must have happened in that time to make him change his mind," said Mrs. James.

She said he signed up for an additional six months in Vietnam so he could come home for Christmas in 1968. That was the last time his parents saw him.

James went to Sidney on leave in 1969 and stayed there.

Mrs. James said her son told her that U.S. officials have threatened to "make an example" of him if he returned.

"I'd like to have him home, but not that way," she said.

"And I wouldn't take their word if they told me they wouldn't do anything if he was to come home. That's a terrible way to feel about your country, isn't it?"

Man identified in fatal blast

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—Firemen identified a 21-year-old Dayton man, Delberg Aikins, as the victim in an explosion Tuesday that rocked the Monsanto Chemical Co. plant here.

Four others injured in the blast that triggered fires, causing damage estimated at $250,-000, were Richard Juterbeck of Mainville and Michael Widner, Thomas Hughes and Thomas Durcher, all of Dayton.

Officials said Aikins was in a room 40-50 feet from a 2,000-gallon container of paint resin when it exploded. The other men were treated and released, company spokesmen said.

Larceny, vandalism checked

A soft drink machine was burglarized and a screen door was damaged by a thrown piece of asphalt, police reported today.

The Sheriff's Department reported a stolen bicycle.

Two dollars in change was taken from the vending machine at the Bonded Oil Service Station, 131 N. North St., sometime between 10 p.m. Monday and 1:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Police investigating the incident believe the thief had the master key to the machine, because the door lock was not damaged, although a padlock was broken off.

A chunk of asphalt was thrown through the front door of the Charles Tucker residence, 932 Millwood Ave., at 6:50 p.m. yesterday. Police estimated the value of the damaged screen at $10.

A bicycle was taken from the front porch of the Betty Stoops residence, Jeffersonville, sometime between 6:30 p.m. and 12 p.m. Sunday sheriff's deputies reported. The bicycle was described as being a Joplin 26-inch with an attached book rack.

Lake waters receding

PORT CLINTON, Ohio (AP) — Officials said major roads through Ottawa County were open again today, with the exception of Ohio 2, as flood waters continued to recede.

School administrators planned to reopen classes today after most of the outlying schools resumed operations Tuesday.

Entire families were stranded Monday in the eighth major flood to hit the area in 18 months, sheriff's deputies reported, when Lake Erie's waters climbed more than 100 inches.

Damages in the county were expected to rise again into the tens of thousands of dollars, especially along lake shore properties.

But Port Clinton Mayor John Fritz said inside the city limits, only one basement was threatened and only one road will need rebuilding.

"Of course, we lost our lake shore and all the debris will have to be cleaned up," he said.

Ohio State University's Army ROTC Unit has commissioned 9,038 young men as second lieutenants since it was established on campus in 1916.

Grange makes activity plans

NEW MARTINSBURG — Forest Shade Grange 368 met Tuesday night in the meeting hall in New Martinsburg with Worthy Master Max Carson presiding.

Mrs. Russell Grice, chairman of women's activities, thanked those who worked during the Heart Fund drive and reminded members that the sewing and baking contest will be held at the May meeting.

Applications for membership from Mr. and Mrs. James Washburn and Mrs. Richard Carson were accepted, and the obligations of new members will be explained at the next meeting.

A special meeting to discuss the Rattlesnake Creek Watershed will be held at Sabina High School at 8 p.m. April 18. Those interested in investigating the project were urged to attend.

The Pomona Grange meeting has been postponed until April 19 when it will be held in the Forest Shade Grange Hall.

The Forest Shade has voted to make a donation to help Fayette County residents who suffered loss due to last week's tornadoes.

The literary program of Easter readings and articles was led by Miss Louise Ritter. Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Eckle, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Carson and Charles Carson were in charge of refreshments.

"I feel that my years at Miami Trace have been very fulfilling. I will miss all the great friends I have made and the fun times I have had," comments Dawn Schlichter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max Schlichter, Myers Rd.

Musically-inclined is the best adjective to describe Dawn. Buckeye State delegates selected at Miami Trace

By DIANE CONLEY

Delegates for both Buckeye Girls and Boys State have been selected by the teachers and counselors.

This year's Buckeye Girl's State will be held from June 15-23 at Capital University in Columbus. Delegates and their alternates are listed below along with the name of their sponsors.

Delegates for Boy's State are selected in the same manner and all are sponsored by the American Legion. They are Dave Louis, Dean Stockwell, and Mark Spears. There is only one alternate, Dan Lowe, chosen for the boys.

A hearty congratulations is extended to each of these students.

Nursery school finished at MT

By SUSAN THACKER

The Home Economics III and Child Development classes at Miami Trace High School have concluded their annual nursery school.

The three-to-five-year-old pupils were brought to school for an hour and a half five times during the two weeks. Their activities included songs, creative periods in which they painted and drew, and story telling. On the last day the children enjoyed an Easter egg hunt.

Planning the activities, working with the children, and observing their reactions gave the girls in the two classes a chance to apply what they had been learning about child behavior.

The children and the students involved enjoyed their days of nursery school and were disappointed when it was over.

Miss Betsy Hamrick and Mrs. Mary Myers were the advisors.

Metzenbaum, Taft vote same

WASHINGTON (AP)—Ohio Sens. Robert Taft Jr., a Republican, and Howard Metzenbaum, a Democrat, voted with the majority Tuesday when the Senate adopted an amendment cutting proposed spending limits in the campaign reform bill by 20 per cent.

When the Senate voted to invoke cloture to shut off debate on the campaign financing bill, Metzenbaum sided with the majority, while Taft voted against cloture.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The American Civil Liberties Union of Ohio Foundation will present its first civil rights awards to four Ohioans at a dinner here April 20.

Those to be honored are Robert Lazarus Jr. and the Rev. Colby Grimes, both of Columbus, U.S. Rep. William M. McCulloch of Piqua and U.S. Rep. Louis Stokes of Cleveland.

Rotary Club hears Easter season talk

A comparison of Rotary's Four-Way Test with the life of Jesus Christ was heard by members of the Washington C. H. Rotary Club during their noon luncheon meeting Thursday in the Country Club.

Rev. Allen Puffenberger, associate pastor of Grace United Methodist Church in Washington C. H., spoke on the theme, "Will the Four-Way Test Stand the Test?"

The Four-Way Test is basically a Rotary Club creed and asks four questions to be observed by Rotarians in their thinking. The questions are: Is it the truth? Is it fair to all concerned? Will it build good will and friendships? and Will it be beneficial to all concerned?

Rev. Puffenberger explained the thoughts behind the four questions and told Rotarians how each affected Christ, especially during Holy Week.

He then coupled the Rotary creed with an Easter season message in an attempt to assist the club members in becoming more aware of the four basic questions.

THE BUSINESS meeting was conducted by the club president, Phil Grover, and Jim Hanawalt was the program chairman.

Robert Haigler, district Rotary governor, said the Rotary district is now establishing a relief fund for tornado-torn Xenia. Various clubs in the Rotary district will be launching fund-raising projects for the relief fund.

Serving on the Rotary relief fund committee for the Washington C. H. club are Joe Peters, chairman; Donald Murdock, Max Lawrence, Bill Pool and Walter Seifried.

Grover announced that Dr. C. Elton Rhoad has been appointed historian for the Washington C. H. club.

Student guests were Mike Coe, of MTHS, and Brent Thompson, of WSHS. Guests were Norris Highfield with Grover and Andy Lachat with his father, John Lachat. Visiting Rotarians were Merrill Kaufman, of Delaware, Robert Head, Greenfield, and Ed Jones, Hong Kong.

Man claims income tax act illegal

CHICAGO (AP)—Businessman and historian W. R. Anderson claims he's found the biggest tax loophole of all time.

Anderson says he's discovered the federal Income Tax Act of 1913 is illegal and the government should return all the income taxes it has ever collected.

When William Howard Taft signed the income tax law 60 years ago, he was not legally President, Anderson explained.

"Through a monumental oversight, Ohio (Taft's home state) was not officially admitted into the Union until 1953," Anderson contends. "He could not have been a legal President because he did not qualify under Article 2, Section 1 of the Constitution, which specified 14 years' residence in a state."

Anderson said congressional doubts over Ohio's legal status as a state prompted a 1953 action in which Congress "went through the motions of making Ohio a state, just in case."

Despite the congressional action, Anderson said, laws enacted under Taft's administration—including the income tax—were and still are illegal.

Business techniques come to campuses

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Caught in a financial crush, universities today are being forced to borrow budget and administrative processes from corporate management, a procedure often thought to be fraught with danger.

The fear, actively expressed by deans and students alike, is that the use of business techniques eventually if not immediately means the ascendancy of money over eduction.

Inefficiency, it is said, must be tolerated for the sake of truth. Academic standards, the argument continues, must not be infringed upon by financial standards.

But when financial inefficiency constitutes the threat rather than the alleged safeguard, as is the case with scores of universities today, administrations are forced to act. And so, business techniques come to campus.

At the University of Pennsylvania, which handles more than $200 million in funds a year, Martin Meyerson, president, has borrowed a technique from the world of conglomerates and insituted what he calls responsibility centers.

In a business conglomerate these units would be called profit centers, but profit isn't the goal of a university. Neither is loss, however, so the 22 centers are assigned the main responsibility for supporting themselves.

Each school within the university must make its own decisions on how its earned income, mainly tuition, is to be used. Instead of simply applying to the university for financing, it must learn to live within its income.

Decision making is thus diversified in each school. If a school wants to increase the ratio of faculty to students it must justify the move financially. If it wants to offer more student aid it must check its bank account first.

Each center is also assessed for costs of the university as a central enterprise, depending upon the use it makes of libraries and other common facilities. And each school shares in the university's general income.

If a responsibility center wants to embark on a new project that might result in sharp startup costs it can borrow from what is called the intercenter bank at the prime rate. It can save there too.

Prof. John Hobstetter, a metallurgist and chairman of the university budget committee, speaks directly about the consequences of a center not maintaining good financial relations with the bank.

"Accumulating deficits or failure to repay such loans would raise critical questions about a center's viability," he explained to the faculty. "Unless the campus could agree to an increased subvention at the expense of other centers, intervention would be necessary."

Meyerson and Hobstetter seek to avoid that type of confrontation, the purpose of their program being to decentralize decision making while simultaneously encouraging a sense of cohesion with the central university.

Meyerson maintains the system already is producing results, although it is always being re-evaluated. "Deans are concerned about a number of things they never paid attention to. Deans and faculty are asking more about the general problems of the university."

Still, he agrees, "a good deal of resistance" exists. "The deans by and large recognize the importance of it but feel many corrections are needed. To most of the faculty it is puzzling, but budgets always have been."

Hobstetter, a quiet scholar, refers to the "happy old days" when he could spend more time teaching, but he finds his role "fascinating." He finds it "a whole new dimension; it's fun, although there are days I wouldn't admit it."

Meyerson, who must satisfy a disparate constituency that includes the trustees, faculty, city, state and federal governments, as well as students "who are both customers and products," is optimistic.

He feels university budgeting too often has been haphazard, failing to identify the academically desirable with the financially possible. His budget, he claims, is meant to implement planning, not to set priorities.

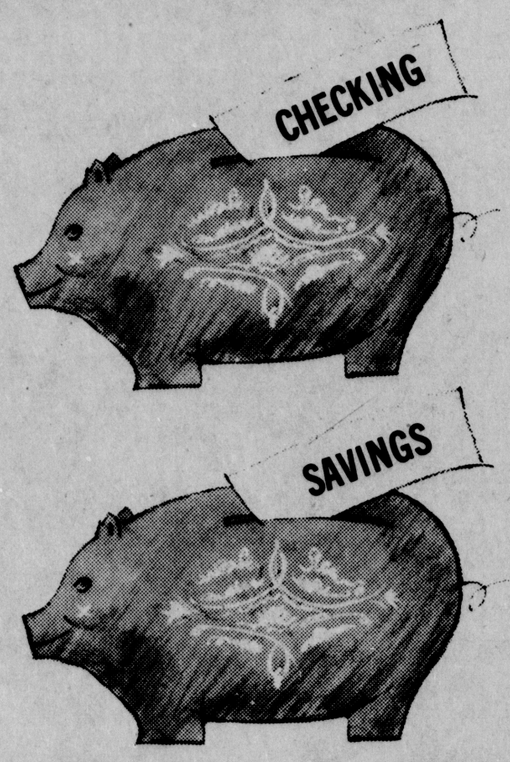

Owens-Corning divided down

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. stockholders will pocket 66 cents a share of $9.8 million first-quarter earnings, a drop from 78 cents for the same period in 1973.

Officials said consolidated net sales for the quarter closing March 31 were $194.9 million, compared with $167.6 million in 1973.

The growing demand for products did not pay increased dividends due to rapidly rising costs and Phase IV rules which prohibited passing those costs on in the form of prices, said William W. Boeschenstein, president.

Venezuela pushes oil nationalization

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Venezuela is preparing to nationalize its oil industry, one of the chief foreign suppliers of the United States, in the next decade.

Most foreign oil concessions expire in 1983, and already two bills calling for immediate nationalization of the 3.3-millionbarrel-a-day industry are before a congressional committee.

The bills were introduced by the Social Christian party, the leading opposition faction, and the small, left-wing People's Electoral Movement. President Carlos Andres Perez's new Democratic Action government has set up a special committee to study eventual nationalization and report in 60 days.

The foreign oil companies — most of them American — have not objected to nationalization and say they are willing to discuss new arrangments with the Venezuelan government.

The government last week ordered a 5 per cent cutback in oil production effective April 15. Valentin Hernandez, the minister of mines and hydrocarbons, said the purpose was to conserve natural gas lost in pumping crude oil.

Several Venezuelan experts favor as much as a 50 per cent production cut to save oil for future sale at better prices. But President Perez has said this would not be advisable on moral and political grounds.

Exxon's Venezulan subsidiary, the Creole Petroleum Corp., was hit hardest by the 5 per cent cut because it is the largest oil producer. The company said it will ship about 100,000 barrels a day less as a result.

A score of foreign oil companies, which also include Shell, Mobil, Sun, Gulf and Texaco, produce about 95 per cent of Venezuela's oil output. The companies operate under a system of 40-year concessions. A 1970 oil reversion law was designed to ensure a smooth and orderly state takeover without compensation when the concessions run out. But all political parties agree the government does not have to wait until 1983 to take over the industry.

To the demands for immediate nationalization, the center-left government — which has a majority in Congress — has said: "We cannot play with the backbone of our economy. We must proceed carefully and intelligently."

Venezuela supplies the United States with about 1.7 million barrels of oil a day and ships another 450,000 barrels a day to Canada.

Auto firm breakup hit

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors said today a proposed federal law which would break up the large auto companies to spur competition could do irreparable harm to the nation's economy.

The auto company said enactment of the proposed Industrial Reorganization Act would adversely affect consumers and workers, reduce industrial efficiency and raise prices.

In testimony prepared for a Senate subcommittee hearing today in Washington, three GM officials defended the level of competition within the auto industry and said the proposed legislation is a punitive measure levied against the car makers.

A Senate antitrust and monopoly subcommittee headed by Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., is hearing Hart's proposal to restructure seven major industries to increase competition.

Last week, a Chrysler Corp. official denied the auto industry is engaged in monopoly practices at the expense of the American car buyer.

Six injured in rural accident

Six persons were slightly injured in a two-car accident at the intersection of U.S. 35 and West Lancaster Road at 4:18 p.m. Tuesday.

Patrolman Loren Butcher, of the Ohio Highway Patrol post in Wilmington, said only one of the six persons involved in the two-car mishap received hospital treatment.

Butcher said John A. Dunn, 73, Rt. 1, Jeffersonville, was treated and released at Fayette Memorial Hospital for minor lacerations he received in the collision with a car driven by Everett E. Ward, 31, of Dayton.

According to the report, Dunn attempted to cross U.S. 35 from Edgefield Road onto West Lancaster Road when the car he was driving was struck in the side by the westbound Ward car. Dunn was cited by the Ohio Highway Patrol for failure to yield the right of way.

Ward and four passengers, Sharon McDaniel, 16, Ena McDaniel, 14, Pamela McDaniel, 12, and Tara Ward, 3, all of Dayton, received minor contusions in the accident, but did not receive hospital treatment.

Butcher said Dunn's auto was heavily damaged, and the late model station wagon operated by Ward received moderate damage.

Probe arms shipment

TORONTO, Ont. (AP) — The Royal Canadian Mounted Police are investigating a large shipment of arms and explosives seized aboard a ship in Britain. British police said the shipment was believed to have been shipped from Canada to the guerrilla Irish Republican Army. Two Britons appeared briefly in a Southampton court Tuesday in connection with the case and were ordered held without bail.

Connally investigated in bribery

WASHINGTON (AP) — Columnist Jack Anderson said today that former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally is under investigation by Watergate prosecutors for alleged bribery.

Connally, who in recent months has addressed Republican groups and met with party leaders in more than 30 states in what may be an effort to line up support for a 1976 GOP presidential bid, denied the allegation.

In his column, Anderson said FBI investigators assigned to the special prosecutor's office have evidence that Connally pocketed $10,000 from Associated Milk Producers Inc., the nation's largest dairy cooperative.

Anderson indicated the money changed hands in 1972, while Connally was still treasury secretary, but did not cite a specific date for the alleged transaction.

Anderson quoted FBI sources as saying the $10,000 was passed by a Milk Producers official to lobbyist Jake Jacobsen, who delivered it to Connally.

Jacobsen is under indictment for perjury after testifying that he stashed the $10,000 in a safe deposit box and never removed it until the FBI opened the box last November.

The indictment by a Watergate grand jury said Jacobsen claimed the money "was to be paid to a public official for his assistance" in getting President Nixon to raise federal milk price supports in March, 1971.

Taxpayers not being advised of rights, official claims

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service often fails to advise taxpayers of their rights at the beginning of a tax dispute, and many times misinforms when it does, a tax court commissioner says.

The IRS realizes this first contact is the most important, yet the agency often leaves a citizen puzzled, said U.S. Tax Court Commissioner Joseph N. Ingolia. He testified at a hearing on taxes held by a enate Appropriations subcommittee.

Ingolia said that when the IRS audits a return and an aspect is questioned, the taxpayer is sent a form letter or is called by an agent.

"He is not advised of his rights to go to the courts at this time but instead is invited to discuss or settle his problem usually by bringing in additional information.

"It seems clear that when the first contact is made with the taxpayer, there is no desire to inform him that he may go to court rather than discuss settlement. This is so because the IRS believes settlement is the current answer, but is this fair to the taxpayer? I think not," Ingolia said.

He said that when the IRS does advise the taxpayer of the tax court option, it often tells them such a course would be time consuming and expensive. But, he said, for small cases, the court usually takes an hour for a $10 fee.

He also said IRS does not clear up the misconception of many taxpayers that the tax court is an arm of the IRS.

Also appearing before the subcommittee was a former revenue agent now head of the tax agency employe's union who said IRS agents work under a quota system for closing cases.

Vincent L. Connery, president of the National Treasury Employe's Union, said the collection division of IRS is more concerned with the number of cases closed "with little or no regard to the effects of the orders on the individual taxpayer.

"Revenue officers are oftentimes rewarded for seizing a taxpayer's assets and severely disciplined if they permit him to remain in business and repay his debt to the federal government: part payment plans do not close cases," Connery said.

Both sides expecting gains from Nixon's Michigan trip

SAGINAW, Mich. (AP) — Both Republicans and Democrats expect their congressional election campaigns to get a boost when President Nixon barnstorms this heavily Republican district in rural northeast Michigan today.

Republican candidate James Sparling insists Nixon is coming to explain his policies rather than campaign for him. He needs a heavy turnout in the small towns the President is visiting to win Tuesday's special election.

The district has been held by the GOP for 40 years.

Democrat J. Robert Traxler, the early favorite in the race now believed to be quite close, has made Nixon and his administration the major issue. He feels the President's visit will illustrate his contention that Sparling is "Nixon's stand-in."

Nixon himself may have the biggest stake.

He hopes to give Sparling a boost toward a victory that could ease impeachment pressure among House Republicans, who are shaken by three Democratic victories this year in special elections for House seats previously held by Republicans.

Nixon's five-hour visit marks his first participation in an election campaign since his own re-election effort in 1972.

The President flys from Washington to a rally at the Tri-City Airport between the district's population centers of Saginaw and Bay City. He then travels by helicopter to this farming area for a motorcade.

From Bad Axe to Sandusky, a distance of 57 miles, friendly crowds were expected along Nixon's route. It marks the first visit by any president to this area and has become an occasion for civic pride.

Sparling, who had said he "cannot and will not defend the actions of the President," said in an interview Tuesday night he fears the trip's format won't permit Nixon to discuss issues such as inflation, the energy crisis and the economy.

"That's what I want," said the 45-year-old former newsman who was top aide to former Rep. James Harvey for 13 years.

Earlier Tuesday, as he waited to greet women workers outside the Wolverine Knitting Mill in Bay City, Traxler said the President "clearly defines what the election is about.

The most common element in the universe is hydrogen, which makes up 90 per cent of all matter.

Red Cross makes appeal for disaster relief funds

Gov. John Gilligan has urged Ohioans to "generously provide funds through their local Red Cross" for the relief of Southwestern Ohio tornado victims.

He has appointed the American National Red Cross as the official volunteer disaster agency in the area.

The Fayette County Red Cross chapter, 323 Gregg St., is appealing for direct cash contributions. It has been able to respond to inquiries concerning 21 families, 17 of which have been reported safe. Four inquiries are still pending notification from Xenia.

Since the devastating tornado struck Southwestern Ohio, the American Red Cross has met the emergency needs of some 27,000 people affected by the storms and continues to feed 30,000 people daily, including victims, relief workers, National Guardsmen and others.

Four hundred people have received first aid for minor injuries and 100 for major injuries.

In Columbus, a total of 300 volunteers have been manning telephones and operating radio communications from early morning until late evening to handle the more than 3,600 disaster welfare inquiries.

A Red Cross mass feeding committee has been responsible for serving these volunteers, and food has been contributed by Deibels, Wendys, Arbys, Borden Burger and McDonald's.

The Red Cross requests those who have called to inquire about relatives in tornado stricken areas, and have since heard from them directly or through some means other than the Red Cross, should call the Red Cross and cancel their inquiry.

Crissinger formerly served as an air traffic controller in San Francisco, Calif.

Sanders said the Fly-In and runway lighting will also be discussed.

Future meetings of the pilots group are Monday, May 13; Tuesday, June 11; Wednesday, July 10; Thursday, Aug. 15; Monday, Sept. 9; Tuesday, Oct. 8; Wednesday, Nov. 13, and Thursday, Dec. 12.

Walkout hits Borg Warner

MANSFIELD, Ohio (AP)—Officials on both sides Tuesday refused to confirm that a wildcat strike was triggered by suspension of two union workers from the Borg Warner vitrous china plant in suburban Ontario.

Union and management met after night shift workers staged a walkout at 4 a.m. The plant's 280 members of International Union of Electrical Workers Local 719 refused to cross picket lines.

New Holland to beautify village park

NEW HOLLAND — The New Holland Area Chamber of Commerce park and recreation committee along with the New Holland American Legion auxiliary and the Pic-Fay Garden Club have purchased pink and red flowering crab for the village park.

William Davidson, secretary-treasurer, said 22 trees will be planted around the perimeter of the lake. He said this will add to spring color and also afford a sanctuary and food for birds and other wildlife during the year.

A master plan is being followed to include tennis courts and other facilities in the park area.

Court dismisses assault charge

A charge of assault, filed on a private warrant, was dismissed in Municipal Court Tuesday by acting Judge John P. Case at the request of the plaintiff.

Robert McNutt, 23, of 905 E. Temple St., agreed to pay court costs when the assault charge against him was dismissed.

Jackie Garrison, 30, of 903 Gregg St., was fined $50 and sentenced to 30 days in jail for shoplifting at Alber's. Judge Case suspended the jail term.

Elton H. Jenkins, 57, of 401 E. Paint St., forfeited $100 bond on a charge of intoxication.

Canada cracks down on U.S. beef

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Canada has cracked down on the $100 million U.S. beef export market by requiring certification that imports contain none of the growth hormone DES.

The order, which also applies to live animals, was announced Monday by the Canadian government. It requires that imports, including beef, veal, lamb and mutton, be certified by the government of the country of origin that the products never contained DES.

But Agriculture Department officials say federal certification that meat had always been free of DES are not practicable and that farmers themselves are the only ones who can say with certainty the chemical was not used.

The Food and Drug Administration banned DES — diethylstilbestrol — from use as a livestock growth booster more than a year ago. But a U.S. District Court recently held the order was illegal. Thus, DES now is permitted as a livestock feed additive or as an implant in the animal's body.

Federal meat inspectors still monitor products for illegal traces of the chemical, which can show up in slaughtered carcasses if animals are not withdrawn from DES soon enough before they are marketed.

Department officials said Tuesday they did not know to what extend livestock producers have returned to DES in their operations. Thus, one said, it is "virtually impossible" to estimate how much meat shipped to Canada might come from animals which had been exposed to the chemical.

Canada is the largest foreign market for U.S. beef and slaughter cattle. In calendar 1973, sales of cattle for slaughter in Canada totaled 185,300 head worth about $71.2 million, up from 61,359 head valued at $18.7 million in 1972.

Also last year, USDA officials said, Canada bought about 35 million pounds of U.S. beef valued at $36 million. That compared with 34.5 million pounds worth $29.4 million in 1972.

Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Clayton Yeutter said Tuesday in a statement that he was "extremely disappointed" by the Canadian action and that it constituted an embargo on U.S. cattle and beef products.

"Canada has insisted that it can only accept certification by a full-time U.S. government employe who has periodically visited the ranches and feedlots from which the live animals or meat originated to insure that DES has never been fed the animals to stimulate their growth," Yeutter said.

The department head proposed Canada accept certification by individual U.S. livestock producers and to accept federal inspection and monitoring programs as guarantee meat is free of the chemical.

"Canada has rejected this proposal creating an impasse in our efforts to resolve this issue through negotiations," Yeutter said.

An Editorial

Dress code policy eyed

Well here's your old Blue Lines editor at work again! This time, the dress code policy needs to be discussed. I'm not going to go into any great detail but just touch on some main points.

The dress code policy at Washington Senior High School has been a major topic of discussion for quite a while and nothing positive seems to have been done about it.

Now, for the first time, a real interest is being taking in changing board policy and someting is being done. The present dress code, while not allowing beards and mustaches, which is the main topic, is set up with the minority and not the majority in mind. What I mean by the minority is maybe 10 or 20 students and not one-fourth or more. It is the majority that counts in our form of government and the majority wants beards and mustaches allowed in the dress code.

It is said that beards and-or mustaches are distracting to the educational process. Just ask any student and I don't think you'll find one who doesn't want them allowed. An investigation of the dress code policy is now underway and has been for a while. The purpose of this is to prepare for the annual spring review of dress code policies and I fully expect the code to be revised. It will be a long anticipated and welcome change! Oh, by the way. Any comment from the public is welcomed!

Hi-Co groups campaigning for better access to lake

GREENFIELD — At least two Highland County groups have launched a drive to promote improvements of access to the soon-to-be-filled Paint Creek Lake.

Concern of both the Highland County Regional Planning Commission and the Greenfield Paint Creek Lake Association is Rapid Forge Road, one of the primary routes from Greenfield to the lake area.

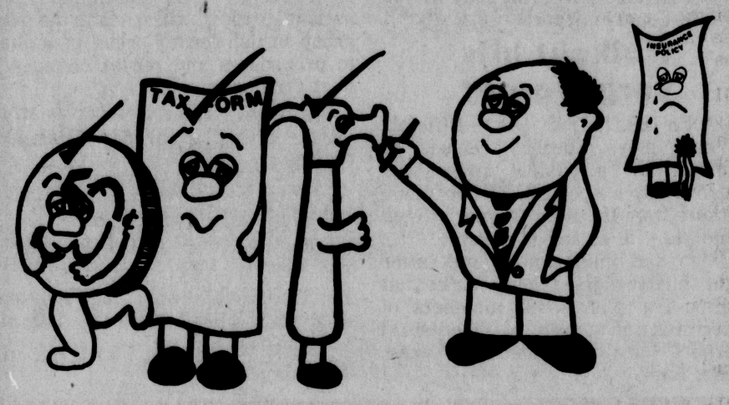

Noting that the road is "unsafe and impassable," both groups say there is need for assistance in improving the road. Highland County commissioners will be asked to present a proposal to Ross County's commissioners for improvements.

Increased use of the road by sightseers and use by the Greenfield fire department and buses of the Greenfield Exempted Village School District were cited among primary reasons for the needed improvement.

Dedication ceremonies are scheduled for Saturday, June 15 at the dam site with Rep. William H. Harsha (R-Ohio) as the featured speaker.

Convention spending shows big increase

ATLANTIC CITY (AP) — An estimated $90 million is expected to be spent by convention visitors here in 1974, according to the local Convention Bureau.

This is an increase of about $15 million over 1973.

The higher figure is based on an anticipated increase of some 50,000 convention visitors over 1973, pushing the total attendance figure close to or, perhaps, past the record level of 1970.

In 1974 the city will have approximately 400 conventions of all sizes.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — "I am helping the United States to conserve energy," said Ambassador Radha Krishna Ramphul of Mauritius as he arrived Tuesday for the special General Assembly on raw materials in a horse carriage rented from the Central Park fleet. A sign on the coach said "Sugar Power" and Ramphul explained: "Here you find nuclear powers, superpowers, oil powers, major powers and minor powers. We are a sugar power — 93 per cent of our exports are sugar."

Arab oil flows into U.S. again

WASHINGTON (AP) — A big tanker-load of Arab oil has reached the United States in the first major shipment received since the lifting last month of the Arab oil embargo.

The Federal Energy Office announced Tuesday that the Italian tanker Elba Lolligeiti has arrived at Norfolk, Va., carrying 344,000 barrels of crude oil from Algeria.

Exxon Corp. said its own initial shipment of Mideast oil since resumption of Arab supplies — 50,000 barrels of crude aboard the Esso Barcelona — was due to arrive today in New York Harbor.

Anticipating the renewed availability of Arab oil, the FEO has told U.S. petroleum companies to draw upon current inventories to boost gasoline allocations for the month of April.

Meanwhile, the American Automobile Association said its latest survey shows that motorists will find it easier to obtain gasoline this week, but they will probably be paying more per gallon.

The AAA's weekly spot check of some 6,000 service stations across the nation found that since the week before, the average price of regular gasoline has climbed a penny to 54 cents a gallon. Premium average 57 cents per gallon, the survey reported.

Highest average prices for regular gas were 56 cents in Hawaii, Illinois, New York and South Carolina while peak prices for premium reached 60 cents a gallon in Illinois, New York and Hawaii, according to the AAA.

In other energy-related developments:

—Federal energy chief William E. Simon said the Environmental Protection Agency is too restrictive in its standards for utilities which convert to coal for generating electricity. He said EPA policy will not encourage increased use and production of coal.

—Deputy energy chief John C. Sawhill said more federal funds may be required to offset the impact of rising fuel costs on the aged.

—The House Ways and Means Committee voted to retain the 22 per cent depletion allowance for natural gas shipped across state lines.

Japanese commuters stranded

TOKYO (AP) — Workers on the Japan National Railway began a four-day strike today, forcing 8 million commuters to find other transport or stay home.

Another 5 million commuters were delayed by a slowdown of transport workers who had not yet struck.

Some 6½ million government and private employes were scheduled to strike Thursday for 24 to 72 hours, stopping almost all rail, bus and taxi services.

Japan's 260,000 telephone and telegraph workers and 200,000 postal employes struck Tuesday. The dock workers were holding meetings to decide whether to join the walkout Thursday.

The government lined up convoys of trucks to haul foodstuffs to major population centers, and the National Police Agency said it mobilized 340,000 men to maintain order and direct the increased automobile traffic expected.

The strikes are part of Japanese labor's annual spring offensive for higher pay.

Militants object of IRS attention

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service until recently was prepared to audit the taxes of anyone attending a rock festival or burning his draft card, according to an IRS internal memo.

The memo was made public Tuesday by Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr., R-Conn. It is a January 1973 status report on a what was called a special compliance group set up inside IRS to collect intelligence information on all persons or groups advocating so-called extremist views.

The unit was set up in the first year of the Nixon administration and by 1973, according to the memo, had amassed 8,000 files on individuals and 3,000 on organizations. It had collected 12,000 classified documents and had compiled a list of 16,000 groups or individuals "who fall into the category of posing a threat and probability of tax violations," the IRS memo said.

"The magnitude and potential of this facility is unlimited," the memo said. "A recent audit supports the conclusion that this function offers high potential as a deterrent to widespread tax violation by activist groups."

The memo was signed by John J. Flynn, regional commissioner of the North Atlantic region of the IRS. It was addressed to IRS directors.

The document said that the IRS was collecting information, with the help of law enforcement agencies, on so-called violent groups.

It also said that members of non-violent groups also were being included.

"Included are those who publicly destroy and burn draft cards, destroy Selective Service records, participate in and organize May Day demonstrations, organize and attend rock festivals which attract youth and narcotics..." the memo said.

It also said IRS agents were interested in the tax returns of those aiding in the sale of firearms to the Irish Republican Army, who travel to Cuba, Algeria or North Vietnam or who are engaged in "inciting commotion and resistance to authority by encouraging defectors in the Armed Forces to enter into alliances to subvert this nation..." the memo said.

Weicker said Monday that the special unit was dismantled in August 1973 at the same time that allegations were being made before the Senate Watergate committee that the White House had used the IRS to benefit President Nixon's friends and to punish his political "enemies."

Boating safety slogans eligible for Ohio prizes

COLUMBUS — Ohioans can compete for valuable prizes and help the boating public at the same time in a statewide boating safety slogan contest being sponsored by the division of watercraft of the Ohio Department of Natural Resources.

Division Chief Thomas Smith said the contest is part of a program to make Ohioans aware of the need for boating safety and to reduce the growing number of boating accidents and deaths.

Winning slogans will be used on safety posters and in other division safety promotional activities.

Smith said the contest is open to Ohioans of any age, except employes of the Department of Natural Resources. Entries are being accepted now.

There will be 60 prize winners, 10 each from the state's six boating districts. Winners will be ranked first through 10th place in each district.

THE SLOGANS will be centered around the division's nautical cartoon character, Commodore Buckeye. The slogan format will be: "Commodore buckeye says. . . (slogan)." Slogans must be 10 words or less, not including the lead-in.

Slogans must be postmarked no later than May 31. They should be sent to the Division of Watercraft, Ohio Department of Natural Resources, Fountain Square, Columbus 43224. Entries should have the name, address (including county) and telephone number of the person entering the contest.

A panel of judges in each district will select the winning slogans on the basis of originality, appropriateness and aptness of thought. The judges will be teachers and representatives of the commercial boating industry, boat clubs, marine patrols, newspapers and broadcast media.

Slogan writers will compete for a variety of prizes, including water skis, boat fire extinguishers and other equipment. The prizes will be donated by marine dealers.

Winners will be announced in June and will be honored at an awards banquet.

More information can be obtained from the division's Columbus office or from any of the six district offices.

The district offices are at 1500 Dublin Rd., Columbus; Grand Lake St. Mary's State Park, Celina; Salt Fork State Park, Cambridge; West Branch State Park, Ravenna; Geneva State Park, Geneva-on-the-Lake and East Harbor State Park, Lakeside.

Sub base under fire

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. nuclear submarine base on Scotland's Holy Loch came under attack in the House of Commons Tuesday. A Scottish Nationalist and a Labor member reminded Defense Secretary Roy Mason that the Labor party had made a campaign pledge to close down the base. But a Conservative member from Scotland, George Younger, said that to represent that the Scots were opposed to the base was "a travesty of the truth."

Padres poor in 9-5 defeat

By The Associated Press

The San Diego Padres are leaving a sour taste in the mouth of their new owner that even some of his own garnished hamburgers can't erase.

Ray Kroc, the McDonald's burger tycoon, is finding out that he may be the king of baseball's hamburgers rather than the hamburger king and he sounded off publicly while his Padres were being chewed up by the Houston Astros in their home opener Tuesday night.

Kroc grabbed the public address system with the Padres trailing 9-2 in the eighth inning.

"Ladies and gentlemen, I suffer with you," he told a crowd of 39,083, second largest in San Diego's history. "I've never seen such stupid baseball playing in my life."

He was interrupted when a naked man jumped out of the stands and dashed across the field.

The winless Padres woke up long enough to score three runs in the eighth, but lost 9-5, their fourth straight defeat.

Elsewhere in the National League, the Atlanta Braves, minus Hank Aaron, were shelled by the Los Angeles Dodgers 9-2; the Cincinnati Reds defeated the previously unbeaten San Francisco Giants 6-3 and the Chicago Cubs finally opened their season by blanking the Philadelphia Phillies 2-0.

Bad weather postponed the Montreal-Pittsburgh and St. Louis-New York games.

Cesar Cedeno drove in four runs and Larry Dierker, battling back from arm and shoulder problems, held San Diego to six hits and two runs in seven innings.

Dodgers 9, Braves 2

Aaron didn't play any baseball Tuesday night...and his 13 Atlanta teammates who got in the line-up didn't play much, either. With the game's all-time home run king and his record-breaking bat sitting it out following Monday night's historic 715th home run, the Braves were no match for Los Angeles.

The 40-year-old Aaron was held out because of cold weather. Rookie Rowland Office took his place in the Atlanta outfield and managed a single in four trips against Don Sutton and Mike Marshall, who held the Braves to seven hits, including Dave Johnson's first home run of the season.

Cubs 2, Phillies 0

After having their first two scheduled games postponed in Montreal, the Cubs came home and defeated the Phillies behind Bill Bonham's four-hit, nine-strikeout pitching, his first major league shutout.

Bonham held the Phils hitless until pitcher Ron Schueler's one-out scratch single in the sixth.

Bonham became a key man in Chicago's pitching rotation when the Cubs traded Ferguson Jenkins last winter.

Cincinnati Reds defeat Giants, 6-3

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds are best known for their awesome batting attack, yet Manager Sparky Anderson points to their pitching as the key to the club's 1974 pennant plans.

Despite a solid 15-hit attack in Tuesday night's 6-3 victory over the previously unbeaten San Francisco Giants, Anderson praised his bullpen following Pedro Borbon's three-inning shutout stint.

Anderson, whose Reds concluded the three-game series with the Giants this afternoon, had good reason to rave about his relievers—they haven't allowed a run in 20 1-3 innings this season.

"Batting can't carry you," Anderson said. "If it could, teams like Pittsburgh and Boston would have won lots of pennants in recent years.

"A solid bullpen is the key," he continued. "In this league, games are won from the seventh inning on. Everyone has tough hitters, so you've got to be able to go into the hole and stop people.

"That's how the Mets got to the World Series last year and that's how the Dodgers will be right up there this September," he added. "With those starters and Mike Marshall and Jim Brewer in the bullpen, they don't need much hitting."

Anderson, of course, feels the Reds will be in the race, too, especially if the four-man relief crew of righthanders Borbon and Clay Carroll and southpaws Tom Hall and Fred Norman come through.

"I'm going to be using my bullpen a lot more this season," Anderson said. "I'm fortunate to have flexibility with two lefties and two righties, so I'm going to make use of it."

The Reds broke a 3-3 tie off loser Tom Bradley, 1-1, with a run in the sixth. Cesar Geromino opened with a triple. Bradley bore down and fired called third strikes past pitcher Jack Billingham, 1-0, and Pete Rose.

Joe Morgan then grounded a single to left, scoring Geromino with the go-ahead run. Borbon blanked the Giants over the last three innings for his first save of the season and Cincinnati added two runs in the ninth.

Rose, hooted by Giants fans each time he came to bat, finished with three hits for the game, giving him a 5-game total of 11.

"Maybe it's because they think Bobby Bonds should have been the MVP last season," Rose said. "The booing didn't make me bear down more, I always bear down. But it did make me feel better when I got a hit."

Tony Perez contributed a two-run homer in the first inning, giving him three homers and nine RBIs this season. Garry Maddox belted a double and a single for the Giants, extending his hitting streak to 16 games.

Rose on Reds poster

CINCINNATI — Pete Rose, the peppery Reds' captain who has batted over .300 for the past nine seasons, will be the subject of this year's Cincinnati Reds poster.

The full color, two-foot by three-foot wall poster will be given away free to everyone, 21 and under, entering a paying gate on Sunday, June 2 when the Reds meet the Pittsburgh Pirates at Riverfront Stadium.

This year's poster captures Rose as he rounds second base after hitting his dramatic 12th inning home run that beat the New York Mets in the fourth game of the Championship Series last year.

Highlight of the picture is Rose's clenched fist, held triumphantly in the air.

The poster is the fifth in a series of individuals and sixth overall that the Reds have produced. It will fit right into the collection of the previous posters.

The Poster Day game against the Pirates climaxes a six-game homestand. The Mets make their first appearance at Riverfront for three games on May 27, 28 and 29. The Pirates are in for games May 31, June 1 and 2.

Yankees blank Tigers 3-0

By The Associated Press

The people in Tiger Stadium seem to have the impression that streaking is something you do with your clothes off. The New York Yankees have a different idea.

While one nude man was swinging from the scoreboard in center field and another scampered across the outfield without his pants, the Yankees were extending a streak of their own with a 3-0 victory over the Tigers Tuesday afternoon.

The victory was the fourth in as many contests for New York, marking the first time since 1945 the team has gone unbeaten in the baseball season's opening four games.

Elsewhere in the American League, the Minnesota Twins tripped the Chicago White Sox 3-1, the Oakland A's clipped the Kansas City Royals 6-4, and the Texas Rangers bombed the California Angels 10-2.

The Milwaukee-Cleveland and Baltimore-Boston games were postponed by bad weather.

Yankee pitchers Steve Kline, Fred Beene and Sparky Lyle held the Tigers to eight hits, handed pitching ace Mickey Lolich his second loss in two starts this season, and ruined the home opener in chilly Detroit before a crowd of 44,047.

Lou Piniella's first-inning single drove in two runs, and New York added a run in the seventh on Roy White's double and Elliott Maddox' single.

Twins 3, White Sox 1

Rod Carew backed a strong pitching performance by Bert Blyleven with two singles, two stolen bases and two runs scored in Minnesota's victory over Chicago.

In eight innings, Blyleven scattered seven hits and struck out 10, but tired in the ninth and gave way to reliever Bill Campbell.

Carew built Twins runs in the first and second innings by singling and stealing second. He scored first on a sacrifice fly by Harmon Killebrew and later on a double by Bobby Darwin.

A's 6, Royals 4

Joe Rudi's third double of the game came with two outs in the ninth inning, driving in two runs and giving Oakland its triumph over Kansas City.

With the bases loaded, Rudi hit the first pitch from reliever Lindy McDaniel to right field.

Sal Bando's first home run of the season had given the A's a 4-3 lead in the top of the sixth, but Kansas City came back to tie in its half of the inning.

Rangers 10, Angels 2

California's Nolan Ryan, who issued 10 walks over eight innings in his first start, continued to have control trouble and ended up on the short end of a 10-2 score Tuesday.

Ryan walked the first three batters in the second inning. Then Joe Lovitto scored two with a double and Rich Billings walked before Dave Nelson and Toby Harrah delivered runscoring singles to knock out Ryan.

Lee Stanton homered for the Angels.

Larry Laub leads bowling winners

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—The 1974 Professional Bowlers Association winter tour has come to an end and Larry Laub of Santa Rosa, Calif., is at the top of the money list.

Laub won $49,260 in 13 stops during the 14 tournament season. Laub finished fifth in the $125,000 Tournament of Champions last week and collected $4,000 to push him into the lead.

Jim Stefanich of Joliet, Ill., who led the money list until last week finished second with $47,505.

New league draws NFL players

By The Associated Press

National Football League players, already yielding to the call of the World Football League in the sometimes frozen North, are now signing on for the WFL's franchise in the balmy Pacific—Hawaii.

"How can anyone turn all this down?" asked Mike Giddings coach of the Hawaiians, glancing around Tuesday at the dramatic setting provided by Diamond Head and Honolulu as he announced the signing of Dallas Cowboy running back Calvin Hill to a WFL contract.

The Hawaiians made a whole day out of making announcements, also breaking the news that New York Giants quarterback Randy Johnson and Jim Sniadecki, San Francisco 49er linebacker since 1969, would join Hawaii after playing out their options in 1974.

The signings were part of the NFL exodus which has included Miami Dolphin stars Larry Csonka, Jim Kiick and Paul Warfield to Toronto, Ted Kwalick to the Hawaiians and Ken Stabler to the Birmingham franchise.

"We view this as a chance of a lifetime," said Hill, who will play out his option with the Cowboys in 1974. "It was a question of what was better for me and my family."

There were indications that Dallas Coach Tom Landry might be in for more bad news. A Houston radio station, KPRC, reported that Craig Morton, discontent in the past over his status as the No. 2 Dallas quarterback, has signed with the WFL Houston Texans.

The Texans had earlier Tuesday acquired the WFL rights to negotiate with Morton from Birmingham.

Johnson, the No. 2 signal caller for the Giants, became the fourth Giant to announce his intentions to migrate to Hawaii following John Douglas, Richmond Flowers and Vin Clements.

The Giants' tight end Bob Tucker also was being lured to move to the new league. Team sources on the Philadelphia Bell said Tuesday that Tucker had been offered a three-year $500,000 contract.

Even the coaching ranks were not out of reach for the fledgling football league.

Kansas City Chiefs Coach Hank Stram said he had been approached about becoming the coach of the Houston Texans.

There were reports that the Texans had offered Stram a $2 million deal, with part ownership included in a 10-year package.

The New York Stars announced the signing of Don Gault, a former quarterback for the Cleveland Browns and two other ex-NFL players, Tom Sherman, formerly with New England, and Dick Hart, a former guard for the Philadelphia Eagles. The Stars also said they had signed Don Abbey, a running back for Penn State in the late 1960s.

Meanwhile, there was some good news in Miami. Tight end Jim Mandich and safety Jake Scott signed three-year contracts for an estimated combined price of $650,000.

Boston Celtics beat Braves in NBA playoff, 100-97

By The Associated Press

Would you believe Bob McAdoo, the National Basketball Association scoring champion, a scared player?

It happened Tuesday night— and because of it, his Buffalo Braves were beaten by the Boston Celtics.

"I was as nervous as I've ever been," McAdoo admitted unabashedly after scoring a mere 16 points on a woeful five-for-20 shooting performance from the floor and six of nine from the free throw line during the Braves' 100-97 loss that gave the Celtics a 3-2 lead in the best-of-seven Eastern Conference semifinal series.

"I guess it's what you'd call pressure," said the 6-foot-10 McAdoo, who had averaged 30.6 points per game during the regular season and 33 points in the first four games against the Celtics. "I tried to concentrate on my defense and not worry about offense."

In the only other pro basketball playoff game Tuesday night, the Chicago Bulls built a 25-point second-quarter lead, then withstood a late Detroit rally and beat the Pistons 98-94 for a 3-2 lead in their best-of-seven NBA Western Conference semifinal series.

Two playoff games are scheduled tonight. The New York Knicks, with a 3-2 lead over Capital in their NBA East semifinal, face the Bullets at Landover, Md.; and the Indiana Pacers, leading San Antonio 3-2 in their American Basketball Association West Division semifinal, meet the Spurs in Texas.

The Utah Stars, in the West, and the New York Nets and Kentucky Colonels, in the East, already have advanced to the divisional finals in the ABA.

The Milwaukee Bucks are the only NBA team to have reached the conference finals so far, eliminating the Los Angeles Lakers in the West.

McAdoo, also the NBA's third leading rebounder during the season with a 15.1 average, managed only 10 rebounds in his sub-par effort against the Celtics.

Nicklaus looms over Masters

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — There's Johnny Miller and the youth threat.

There's Gary Player and the foreigners.

There's Tom Weiskopf and defending champion Tommy Aaron.

There's Arnold Palmer and Sam Snead.

But over and above them all looms the awesome figure of Jack Nicklaus, the domineering character in the international cast assembled for the 38th Masters Golf Tournament.

The 72-hole tee, generally acknowledged as one of the world's premier sports events, gets underway Thursday on flower-bedecked Augusta National Golf Course.

An elite field of 79 of the world's best shotmakers—including 13 foreign players, 11 American amateurs and 55 U.S. professionals—are primed to test the 7,020-yard par-72 layout.

The powerful Nicklaus, considered by many to be the finest player the game has ever seen, has won this tournament four times, a record he shares with Arnold Palmer. And in his last three starts here he's been second, first and third, in that order.

"My goals are always the same," said the Golden Bear, who had collected a record 14 major championship titles. "They're the big four tournaments (the Masters, U.S. and British Opens and the PGA.)"

Miller, 26, who won the U.S. Open last year, has dominated the regular tour this year. He scored a record sweep of the first three titles of the year and is the year's leading money winner with almost $150,000—a record for this stage of the season.

Among the other young stars are:

—Jerry Heard, golf's whistling man, who won the Citrus Open, then finished second and third in his next two starts;

—Hubert Green, a two-time winner this year;

—John Mahaffey, who hasn't won this season but has finished second twice, third and fourth once;

—Lanny Wadkins, who set money-winning records in each of his first two seasons on the tour and is one of the game's most fiercely competitive players, and

—Ben Crenshaw, the young Texan who has finished second twice this year and hit the tour with more impact than any rookie since Nicklaus.

Player of South African is one of only four men to win all the world's major titles. He heads a strong foreign field including Australian Bruce Crampton, Tony Jacklin and Peter Oosterhuis of England and Bob Charles of New Zealand.

Philadelphia tops Flames in NHL tilt

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Flyers delivered a message to the Atlanta Flames Tuesday night—to win in the Stanley Cup Playoffs you have to attack as well as defend.

"They didn't challenge us," said Philadelphia Coach Fred Shero after his team posted a 4-1 victory to take a 1-0 lead in the best-of-seven first round National Hockey League playoff series.

Atlanta played the Flyers to a 2-2-2 standstill during the regular season, but they were never a threat in the nationally-televised game. The Flames at times appeared to be sleepwalking, unable to get the puck out of their own zone.

As the Flyers' Barry Ashbee put it, "the one goal they (Atlanta) scored was a fluke." It came with the score 3-0, on a 50-footer by Bob Murray.

In World Hockey League playoff action, the Toronto Toros edged the Cleveland Crusaders 4-3 and the Chicago Cougars beat the New England Whalers 8-6.

Shero's Flyers had won the West Division title with aggressive offensive play, backed up by superior goaltending from Bernie Parent. The Flames wound up fourth in the West, playing a defensive style that featured sitting on the puck until they got a scoring break.

Tribe set for opener with Brewers

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland Indian Manager Ken Aspromonte said he felt fine as the Tribe prepared for their scheduled home opener against the Milwaukee Brewers today.

The Indians had an unexpected day of rest after losing their first three games to the New York Yankees. Snow forced the Indians to cancel the previous opener set for Tuesday.

If the weather holds up today — the forecast is for clear skies and temperatures in the mid-40s — the Indians will be seeking their first victory behind Jim Perry. Perry was acquired from the Detroit Tigers three weeks ago. He finished last season in Detroit 14-13.

Milwaukee split their first two games of the 1974 season and will be sending Clyde Wright, who was 11-19 last year, to the mound.

"Everything is fine," Aspromonte said. "I can't do much about not getting the pitching and the hitting at the right time. Our defense collapsed when we needed them. That should be enough to explain our problems in New York."

Aspromonte, who is beginning his third year as field marshal of the Tribe, added, "we are a much better ball club then we've shown so far. It was just one of those things in New York. We'll straighten out pretty soon."

Three teams erased from cage activities

Three teams were eliminated from the second annual Sabina Lions Club invitational basketball tournament Tuesday night. Two more teams will be erased from action Wednesday night as two of the three games are in the losers bracket and one in the winners bracket.

Tuesday's card saw Charles Electric, behind a 20 point performance from Dan Pursley and a 16 point output from Mason, Prater and Pursley, downed Conchemco 81-67. Jake Jordan scored 30 points for the losers.

In the second game Superior Carpet kept its hopes alive defeating Carmac Sunoco 110-86. Phil Snow led the winners with 30 points and Dale Jones and Junior Rollins scored 24 and 23 points respectively. Sam Radel and Jack Fisher scored 24 and 26 points for the losers.

In the final game of the night Welsh's Drainage defeated Sabina Bank. Mike Henry led the winners with 29 points and Steve Stewart supported him with 19. Bob Lanman and Dean Snow led the losers with 19 and 16 points.

Wednesday's games start at 6 p.m. with Charles Electric going against Superior Carpet. At 7:30 Welsh's Drainage tangles with Creditt's Construction and at 9 p.m. Harris Auction meets Porter Hybrid in the winners bracket.

Mark Orr named top MAC athlete

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Western Michigan University center fielder Mark Orr, who slammed four homers and drove in six runs in four games, has been named MidAmerican Conference Spring Athlete of the Week.

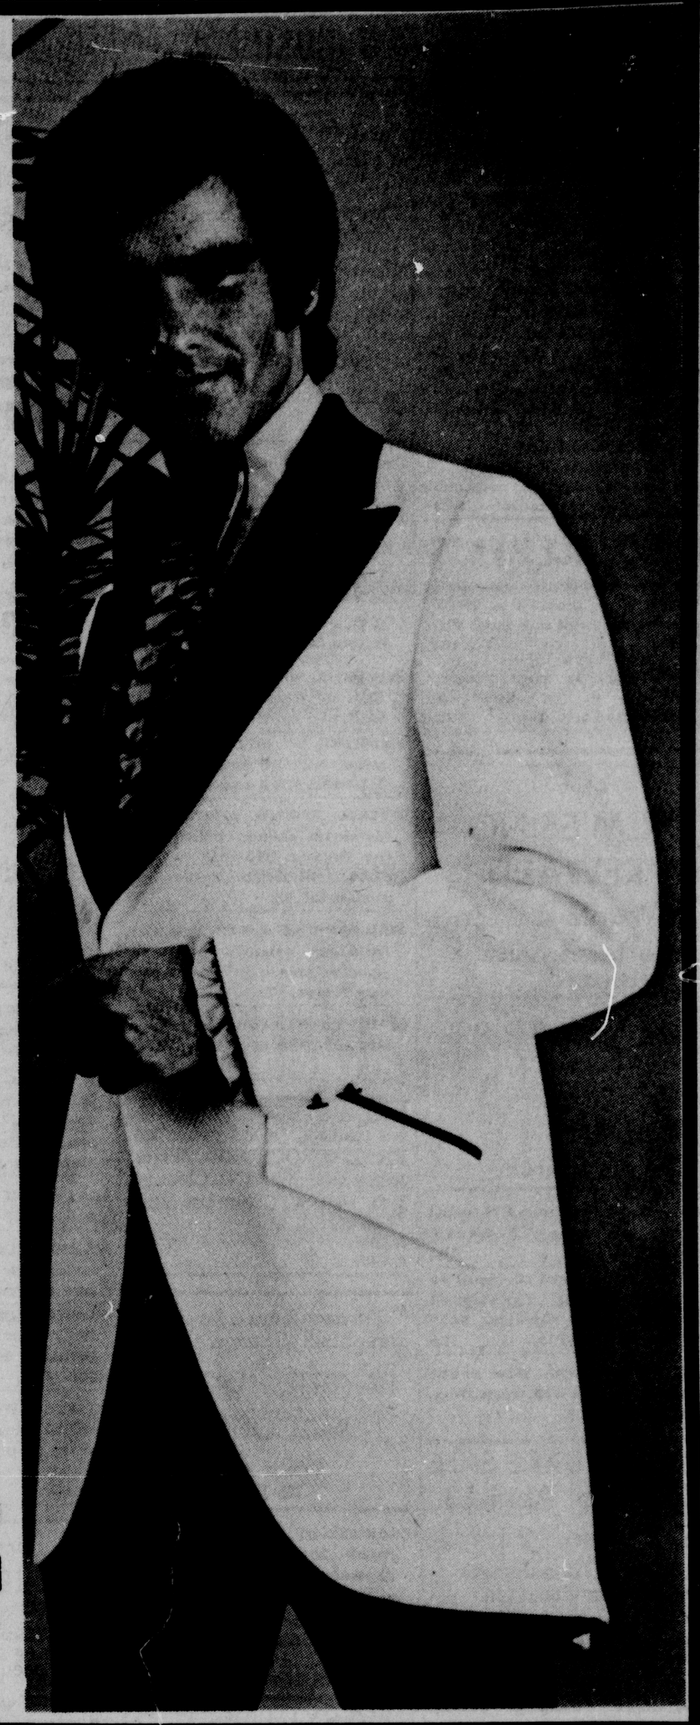

The 5-foot-10, 170-pound senior from Detroit went 6-for-14 and accounted for 18 total bases as the Broncos swept four games from the University of Louisville.

Medical Terms: Shorthand

I never heard of "pernio" until my doctor said my son had it.

How do doctors come up with such strange-sounding names?

Mr. T.N., Fla.

Dear Mr. N.:

Medical terminology often sounds strange and confusing. In reality, a complex-sounding name may be shorthand to describe a total medical condition.

For example, a tongue-twister like "subacute bacterial endocarditis" brings to the doctor's mind a portrait of a disease that would take twenty pages of description.

"Subacute" describes a condition somewhere between "acute" and "chronic." "Bacterial" refers to the invading germ. "Endocarditis" is an inflammation and infection of the inner lining of the walls of the heart.

Medical terms are not deliberately meant to confuse the laity, nor to give an air of pomposity. Each scientific discipline has its own technical jargon which is reserved for easy communication between those who work in a specific scientific area.

Now this seems to be a far cry from your original question of "pernio." Actually, I took advantage of your letter to give readers a better insight into the reasons for complex-sounding terminology.

"Pernio" is more commonly known as "chillblain." Severe itching and burning of the skin, followed by tiny blisters, may be caused by water seeping into the shoes over the tops of even waterproof boots.

The apparent protection of waterproof boots is not enough to keep the feet from being drenched after long exposure to rain or snow.

The unpleasant and often painful effects of pernio can be avoided if children and adults are instructed to remove their boots quickly when the feet are saturated.

It is important, too, that the lining be absolutely dry when they are used again.

Is it safe to use hormone cream to remove excess hair on the face?

Miss R.A., Penn.

Dear Miss A.:

The promiscuous use of hormones in creams, lotions and ointments must be avoided.

It is amazing how much of the hormone can be absorbed into the system through the skin.

It is for this reason that hormones must be used only when prescribed by a physician.

The condition "hirsutism" (excess hair) may have a number of different causes, each of which should be investigated and ruled out.

Fire Association votes to adopt 'associates' plan

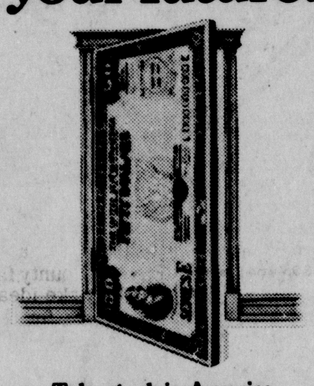

The Washington C. H. Firemen's Association, meeting this week, voted to accept associate memberships from men 18 years of age and over beginning in May. New volunteer firemen probably will be chosen from this group.

The object of an associate membership is to become exposed to the Fire Department before being hired or becoming a volunteer.

Applications for associate memberships may be picked up at the Fire Department after May 1. Associate members will receive first aid training, community fire defense training and training involving special disaster situations.

It was announced at the meeting that the association made a profit of $260.98 on its lambburger concession at the Dorset Sheep Sale here March 22 and 23.

'Sesame Street' helps Appalachian children

NEW YORK (AP) — A group of small Appalachian towns are finding television's "Sesame Street" and a self-help pre-school project effective in bringing early education to 150 youngsters who otherwise wouldn't get it.

Organized by the Dilenowisco Educational Cooporative with the help of the field staff of the Children's Television Workshop, producers of the TV program, the project employs a mobile classroom that travels up and down the mountain roads with trained paraprofessionals and the tutoring skills of parents to help teach the children in and near their homes.

According to Brainard Hines, a researcher for the Appalachian Educational Laboratory, "the results of a battery of tests indicate the youngsters who were involved in the preschool project are more prepared for entry into first grade than their counterparts in other areas across the country."

The Sesame Street preschool project conducted in a three-county area in Southwest Virginia is now in its second year.

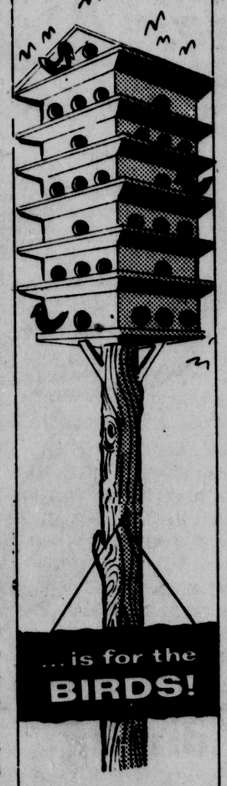

'Long-board days' in Sierra recalled

WASHINGTON (AP)— In a National Geographic article, Robert Laxalt writes of long-board days in the Lost Sierra. A major ingredient of speed skiing was "dope," as ski wax was called. One of the last of the long-board racers told Mr. Laxalt:

"Making sik 'dope' was a fine science a hundred years ago in the Sierra. Those old-time ski riders had as many as 20 different secret recipes to match any kind of snow, and they would have shot anyone who tried to pirate them."

Possibly the beginning of the present day perfume industry was in the 14th century, when the art of combining alcohol with perfume began, although attar of roses has been traced back to the early Persians.

Bargain Days dates set at retail meet

The date for the annual Old-Fashioned Bargain Days promotion in Washington C. H. was scheduled during the regular monthly meeting of the Downtown Business Association Wednesday in the Chamber of Commerce office.

Ray Downing, association chairman, said the annual summer promotion will be held Wednesday, July 31 and Aug. 1-3 this year.

He said the event will follow the pattern of previous years with a variety of activities including sidewalk sales. The actual events will be announced at a later date, Downing said.

Association members also heard a report from Robert McArthur, president of the Washington C. H. Shrine Club, regarding the Shrine ceremonial event which will be held in Washington C. H. Aug. 24.

McArthur said the ceremonial involves the induction of new Shrine members for all clubs under the Aladdin Temple Shrine in Columbus, and a large parade with Shrine units from throughout Ohio participating. The size of the parade will be comparable to the Christmas parade held here each winter.

McArthur asked for the support of the Downtown Business Association in promoting the event. The association members indicated that support and backing would be available.

Members also discussed Substitute House Bill No. 1092 which deals with the reduction of personal property tax to a uniform level of 35 per cent statewide in an effort to stimulate business investment in Ohio.

All 12 members present agreed to contact elected state officials regarding the measure.

Man changes plea in stolen property case

A Jeffersonville man changed his original plea shortly before a jury was seated to hear evidence in a case involving receiving stolen property Wednesday morning in Fayette County Common Pleas Court.

Judge Evelyn W. Coffman said Dale E. Wilson, 32, of Jeffersonville, entered a "guilty" plea to a charge of receiving a stolen color television set before the trial was scheduled to begin Wednesday morning.

Judge Coffman said prospective jurors had been summoned to Common Pleas Court, but before a panel could be seated Wilson changed his original plea after discussing the matter with Albert Stewart, a Springfield attorney.

The case was scheduled to be prosecuted by James A. Kiger, Fayette County prosecuting attorney, and Assistant Prosecutor John H. Roszmann.

Judge Coffman said a pre-sentence investigation is being conducted by the court.

Wilson was arrested Feb. 13 by Fayette County sheriff's deputies after he received a stolen television set owned by Jerry Brown, of Washington C. H. The defendant was indicted by the February term of the Fayette County grand jury.

Road resurfacing eyed by trustees

The Union Township trustees met Tuesday night to discuss resurfacing some of the area roads. Trustee Delbert Haines was ill and did not attend.

The trustees were again approached by residents of some of the area subdivisions about improper water drainage and surface leachate. They reiterated that the responsibility for drainage of these areas is the responsbility of the contractor, and that he is the one that should handle the situation.

Harry Campbell, trustee, stated some of the proposed restrictions in the new planning commission codes have been included to curtail these problems.

Sinkhole swallows vegetables

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — The vegetable patch that Preston Keen, 77, meticulously planted six weeks ago is gone.

It disappeared in a sinkhole that has also swallowed seven orange trees and is slowly spreading.

"It's scary," says his wife, Lily. "Sunday it wasn't here. Monday it was like the earth had opened up."

The hole measures some 125 feet across and is about 50 feet deep.

The Keens own 110 acres of pasture and farmland in Balm, a tiny community 30 miles southeast of Tampa. The sink opened about one-quarter of a mile from their home.

Chalky green water flows at the bottom of the hole. An underground stream already has created a tiny waterfall inside the hole. Cracks as long as 12 feet reach out from the expanding sink.

Sinkholes are common in inland Central Florida. They are usually caused by the roofs of underground limestone caves giving way.

Disaster relief bill promoted

WASHINGTON (AP) — A disaster relief bill that could simplify delivery of aid to tornado-damaged Southern and Midwest communities was expected to reach the Senate floor this afternoon.

It won approval Tuesday in the Senate Public Works Committee and passage by the full Senate could send it to the House by Thursday, before the close of business for the Easter recess.

Sen. Quentin N. Burdick, DN.D., rushed his bill through the Senate committee, citing the emergency needs of the 11 states struck by more than 300 tornadoes last week.

The measure attaches several new provisions to the 1970 Disaster Relief Act. Most are aimed at minimizing the red tape involved in obtaining federal aid.

President Nixon promised Xenia, Ohio, residents Tuesday to remove most of the stumbling blocks to aid.

One provision would allow federal reimbursement up to 75 per cent on state costs of providing aid to families whose needs are not met by existing programs. The ceiling would be $5,000 per family.

Another section would allow the President to make loans to local government equal to 25 per cent of the operating budget to make up any loss of tax base from storm damage.
